U.S. Orders Voelker To Jury Probe

Wiretap Inquiry Is Scheduled To Be Held In N.O.

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Chairman Frank Voelker Jr. of the Louisiana State Sovereignty Commission said Saturday he had been ordered to testify before a federal grand jury Tuesday.

Voelker revealed a subpoena was handed to him after it was learned the grand jury would open an investigation on that date into a wiretapping case, involving Baton Rouge segregationists, which was ordered personally by U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy.

NO COMMENT

The federal grand jury meets at 10 a.m. in New Orleans. Both the Baton Rouge State-Times and WDSU-TV in New Orleans reported they learned Tuesday was the date the grand jury would begin hearing witnesses in the case.

Government agents have been working on the probe since about Aug. 1 under direction of M. Hepburn Many, U.S. Attorney at New Orleans.

Central figures in the case are a Baptist minister who resigned, apparently under pressure, "for the good of the church and the welfare of my family;" members of his congregation; and the local director of the American Friends Committee (Quaker) office in Baton Rouge.

At least 15 Baton Rouge residents reportedly have been under surveillance by the FBI and the U.S. Department of Justice in connection with the case, which has civil rights overtones.

Syria Ties Extended By Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — Official recognition of Syria's new government by the Communist bloc began Saturday with an announcement that the Soviet Union is establishing diplomatic relations with Syria. The U.S.S.R. was the first major power to do so.

Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia quickly followed suit.

The Soviet news agency Tass said ambassadors would be exchanged between the two capitals in response to a request for recognition by the new Syrian premier, Mamoun Kuzbari. He gained power last month in a military coup that split Syria from Egypt and President Gamal Abdul Nasser's United Arab Republic.

None of the Western powers has recognized the Kuzbari government as yet.

"The Soviet government," said the note to Syria as published by Tass, "hopes that relations between the U.S.S.R. and the Arab Republic of Syria will develop on the basis of peaceful coexistence in the interests of the peoples of both countries, in the interests of strengthening world peace."

The wording of the Bulgarian note of recognition was identical. The Bulgarians have played a major role in Communist aid to Syria with the construction of two large dams.

The new Syrian government is anti-Communist. Kuzbari, soon after accepting the post of premier, said his government would continue a ban on the Communist party.

34 Britishers Die As Plane Strikes Peak

TOULOUSE, France (AP) — A twin-engine British airliner smashed into a forested Pyrenees peak in the darkness early Saturday with a party of British vacationists. Investigators said all the 34 persons aboard were killed.

Bodies were scattered over an area of 100 yards at an altitude of about 6,000 feet on the northwest slope of 9,137-foot-high Mt. Canigou.

FIND BODIES

A search party radioed that some were found dangling from tree limbs. There was no fire.

The airline, Derby Aviation Ltd. said there were 34 persons aboard—30 passengers, 3 crew members and a travel agency courier.

The passengers, all British, had planned a bus tour of Spain's Mediterranean coast. The plane

Cuban Exile Regime Plan Is Rejected

Move To Set Up Government In U.S. Ruled Out

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Saturday strongly objected to efforts by an organization of Cuban judiciary in exile to set up a government in exile aimed at uniting Cubans opposed to Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

In a proclamation read at a Miami news conference Friday, the Association of the Cuban Judiciary in Exile named Dr. Julio Carceran de Vall y Souza, former senior justice of the Cuban Supreme Court, as "provisional president of the Republic of Cuba."

TELEGRAM SENT

A telegram sent Carceran de Vall by Acting Asst. Secretary of State Wymberley DeR. Coerr, told him: "I am constrained to inform you that the government of the United States does not consent to the pretended or assumed existence of the government of Cuba in arms in exile within its sovereign domain and, for that reason, I must suggest that whatever acts you or others associated with you have taken or may be taking looking to the establishment of such a government without the invitation or consent of the United

'Gag' Rules Given Study By Probers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's latest injunction against military participation in public affairs seminars came under scrutiny Saturday by a special Senate armed services subcommittee.

A copy of McNamara's newest order was obtained by the subcommittee staff which discussed it with Stennis.

Also a target of subcommittee research, informed sources said, is a series of so-called cold war seminars which were said to have prompted the new McNamara directive. Among these was a recent seminar at San Antonio, Texas, supported by the U. S. 4th Army, which aired criticism of the Kennedy administration and praise for the controversial John Birch Society.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., has already attacked the directive as a new "muzzling order." He said that, without clarification, the memorandum will make it impossible for Defense Department personnel to speak out against communism in such seminars without jeopardizing their careers.

JFK, Allies To Plan Next Berlin Steps

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration plans to start a new round of consultations with Britain, France and West Germany next week on the next move toward seeking a peaceful solution of the Berlin crisis.

The consultations may lead to a Western foreign ministers' conference late this month. The Western powers are known to be divided in their approaches to a possible Berlin settlement with Russia. High-level policy talks may be needed to develop a unified position for further East-West discussions.

NO PROGRESS

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Saturday that four exploratory meetings with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko have been conducted in a "serious and constructive" mood. But he conceded they have not produced a formula for detailed East-West negotiations.

"As to the outcome," he said, "we'll just have to wait and see."

The fourth talk of the series, two hours long, was held at the White House Friday. It was primarily a meeting between Gromyko and President Kennedy.

But Rusk and Kennedy reportedly gained from Gromyko the impression that Premier Khrushchev prefers to continue exploratory talks in some form rather than allow the situation to move toward a military showdown.

In Friday's session, Gromyko is understood to have done most of the talking. He used the occasion to present to the President Khushchev's argument that a peace treaty with East and West Germany is long overdue and that if the Western powers will not join in making a treaty—as they have declared they will not—then the Soviet Union will proceed with its own pact with Communist East Germany.

Gromyko asserted, it is understood, that this proposed pact would give the East German regime sovereign control of its own territory including the supply

Yanks Take Lead On 3-2 Victory

CINCINNATI (AP) — Roger Maris, the "new Babe Ruth," broke out of a shocking 0 for 10 World Series slump with a ninth inning home run Saturday that gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati and a 2-1 edge after three games.

The muscular blond, who slammed 61 homers during the regular season, had been able to hit only one ball out of the infield until he lashed a long drive into the right field bleachers off Bob Purkey leading off the ninth of a tie ball game.

It was the first time the M&M boys had shown their power against the National League champs. Mickey Mantle, the other half, finally played after missing the first two games because of an abscess of his right hip, but he went hitless in four trips.

POWER STRIKES

Purkey deserved a better fate. The big right-hander with the butterfly knuckler and wide variety of pitches had a no-hitter for 4 1-3 innings and a three-hitter for seven innings before the Yanks' power struck with a pinch homer by Johnny Blanchard in the eighth and Maris' blow in the ninth.

Scrappy Cincinnati led at various stages 1-0 and 2-1 and continued to pour on the pressure in the ninth against Luis Arroyo.

Nike-Zeus Explodes In Test Firing

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP)—A powerful Nike-Zeus missile-killer, the United States' strongest hope as a defense against nuclear weapons, destroyed itself spectacularly in the sky Saturday seconds after launch.

It was the second failure of the antimissile's second stage in a month.

Army officials said the powerful rocket's first stage operated successfully and dropped away as planned. Seconds later the second stage exploded in the sky, sending a shower of burning metal down on the seaside launching cell at this headquarters of the Pacific missile range.

The test took on added significance with speculation that the Soviet Union has tested antimissile warheads in her current series of nuclear blasts at high altitudes.

Whether antimissiles will be effective can be determined ultimately only in high altitude tests like those the Soviet Union is conducting.

The Nike-Zeus is designed to intercept enemy warheads high in

Three Released After 10 Hours Of Questioning

BERLIN (AP) — Communist police captured four West Berliners in two border incidents Saturday. Three were released after 10 hours' detention.

The fourth man was shot and wounded by a Red border guard before being taken away in handcuffs, West Berlin police said.

The West Berlin officers said both incidents occurred on the East side of the border between the French sector of West Berlin and surrounding Communist East German territory.

They said the four were seized by the Communists because they went up to a barbed wire fence along the border. The fence is not directly on the border and at some points is as much as 40 yards on the East side. West Berlin police said this fact apparently is not known by many West Berliners.

AT GUNPOINT

The three men later released were forced at gunpoint to crawl through the wire.

About 10 hours later they reported to a precinct station in Wedding, a borough in the French sector.

They told the police they had been taken by Red guards to the town of Oranienburg, about 20 miles north of Berlin. There they were questioned for several hours.

Eventually they were taken by car to East Berlin and put on the elevated train at the Friedrichstrasse station. This is the only route still operating from East

Local Man Heads State Cancer Drive

DELEGATE

Another Monroe man, businessman Irvin Leibowitz, was elected as one of Louisiana's two delegates to the national convention, which will be held in New York City later this month.

In taking the presidency, Huenefeld said, "My pledge and your challenge is to increase the effectiveness of the annual cancer campaign on all levels."

He urged over 100 delegates to the state convention to "Go home with a fight against cancer," and said the state should increase its annual contribution.

Huenefeld pointed out that the contribution per person in Louisiana was about eight cents, which brought in approximately $250,000 this past year.

"That's less than a pack of cigarettes a year," Huenefeld said. "I think that we can afford to contribute the price of a pack of cigarettes to combat humanity's

Jury Rules Deaths Due To Cyanide

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—An Orange County coroner's jury ruled Saturday night that cyanide poisoning killed two University of North Carolina students whose bodies were found in adjoining dormitory beds Friday.

Police Chief W. D. Blake said, "We're trying to find out how the poison was administered and by whom."

A janitor found their bodies when they failed to show up Friday morning for their self-help jobs in a college dining room.

Blake said, "We are investigating to determine whether it was suicide or what."

He said the police department and the university medical center have been working together in the case.

"A lot depends on what the medical staff says about two milkshake cups found in their room," he said.

The coroner's jury issued its ruling after receiving a report from Dr. William Huffines, a university pathologist, who performed an autopsy.

Details of the autopsy findings were not released immediately.

Asst. Coroner George Cannady said the pathologist is continuing an examination of food and two paper drinking cups found in the room the two students shared this semester.

2,000 Honor Refugees Slain By Red Police

BERLIN (AP)—About 2,000 people, including many teen-agers, gathered on the bank of the Spree River Saturday to honor refugees killed by the Communists.

They erected a wooden cross decorated with flowers to mark the spot where two young East Berliners died Thursday night.

One was shot by Communist guards and the other drowned while trying to swim the river to the west bank.

A roughly painted notice facing the Communists said: "Hunted to death by the concentration camp guards."

Mayor Willy Kressmann, mayor of the borough of Kreuzberg, attended the ceremony. He said the action was spontaneous by young people, who collected money for the cross.

NURSE ALSO HELD

Physician Accused Of Poisoning Wife

PORT ORCHARD, Wash. (AP) — A prominent physician was arrested Saturday and accused of trying to poison his wife. A young nurse the prosecutor said had traveled with the doctor as his wife was held as a material witness.

Dr. Robert Boehme, 41, was charged with first-degree assault with intent to kill. A complaint filed by Prosecutor Gordon Walgren accused Boehme of injecting a lethal toxic into the arm of his wife, Dorothy, 34, Sept. 20 with a blood-sampling syringe.

Walgren said the wife became critically ill but is recovering.

The nurse held as a witness is Mary Boehme, 28, the doctor's former sister-in-law.

Dr. Boehme was held in lieu of $50,000 bond. His attorney arranged a hearing to seek a reduction. Bond for Mary Boehme was set at $25,000.

"I don't even know what this is all about," Dr. Boehme said when arrested.

Later he told reporters: "I loved my wife with all my heart and soul. My wife has been ill. She has had diabetes for 20 years and hepatitis for three years, and now they say that in some way I caused my wife's illness. I just can't comprehend anything like that.

"To say that I tried to destroy my wife is fantastic."

Walgren said Boehme and the nurse had registered as man and wife at San Francisco hotels and made other trips together. The doctor and his wife, married 10 years, have two children.

Forecast Says Mild Weather

Partly cloudy and mild through Sunday night with a few scattered showers expected along the coast forms the forecast. High is predicted to reach from 82-86 degrees.

Saturday brought fair skies with warmer temperatures dropping during the night. The Federal Aviation Agency at Selman Field reported the high temperature at 83 degrees and the low at 47 degrees.

Senator Soaper Says

A man in the upper midwest gets his name in the news by cursing the flag and robbing a church. Well, nobody's perfect.

Whether the International Committee for Demographic Studies is right in its report that blondes are disappearing may be established by checking to see whether mink coat and diamond sales drop off this Christmas.

Everbody seems to agree that our foreign policy should be tough. It might be nice, too, if it could also be right.

College girls talk only an average of 8.7 minutes a day on the telephone, according to a researcher who, somehow or other, was able to get in on the sorority house telephone to inquire.

Jets To Rule Skies For 12-Hour Period

WASHINGTON (AP) — For 12 hours next weekend the skies over the United States and Canada will be cleared of commercial planes and jet fighters will streak aloft to defend North America against mock enemy bomber attack.

The exercise, called Operation Sky Shield, will last from 1 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time Oct. 14 until 1 a.m. Sunday, regardless of weather conditions.

Operating against them will be U. S. and Canadian interceptor planes which will make an estimated 6,000 sorties for simulated strikes against the aggressor force. This will not be an anti-intercontinental ballistic missile exercise—for the simple reason that a defense against ICBMs has not yet become a reality.

All the resources of the far flung North American Air Defense Command will be brought into play in Sky Shield.

These will include radar, fighter craft, antiaircraft missiles, and communications and control stations, among other things.

Missile crews ringing many cities will scramble to their battle stations, but they won't fire any of their rockets at the "enemy" planes.

No live ammunition of any sort will be used.

The exercise will spread far northward to the arctic and out to sea. Joining in will be Navy picket ships off the coasts, the Air Force's radar-carrying patrol

Yanks Take Lead On 3-2 Victory

CINCINNATI (AP) — Roger Maris, the "new Babe Ruth," broke out of a shocking 0 for 10 World Series slump with a ninth inning home run Saturday that gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati and a 2-1 edge after three games.

The muscular blond, who slammed 61 homers during the regular season, had been able to hit only one ball out of the infield until he lashed a long drive into the right field bleachers off Bob Purkey leading off the ninth of a tie ball game.

It was the first time the M&M boys had shown their power against the National League champs. Mickey Mantle, the other half, finally played after missing the first two games because of an abscess of his right hip, but he went hitless in four trips.

POWER STRIKES

Purkey deserved a better fate. The big right-hander with the butterfly knuckler and wide variety of pitches had a no-hitter for 4 1-3 innings and a three-hitter for seven innings before the Yanks' power struck with a pinch homer by Johnny Blanchard in the eighth and Maris' blow in the ninth.

Scrappy Cincinnati led at various stages 1-0 and 2-1 and continued to pour on the pressure in the ninth against Luis Arroyo,

Nike-Zeus Explodes In Test Firing

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP)—A powerful Nike-Zeus missile-killer, the United States' strongest hope as a defense against nuclear weapons, destroyed itself spectacularly in the sky Saturday seconds after launch.

It was the second failure of the antimissile's second stage in a month.

Army officials said the powerful rocket's first stage operated successfully and dropped away as planned. Seconds later the second stage exploded in the sky, sending a shower of burning metal down on the seaside launching cell at this headquarters of the Pacific missile range.

The test took on added significance with speculation that the Soviet Union has tested antimissile warheads in her current series of nuclear blasts at high altitudes.

Whether antimissiles will be effective can be determined ultimately only in high altitude tests like those the Soviet Union is conducting.

Local Man Heads State Cancer Drive

DELEGATE

Another Monroe man, businessman Irvin Leibowitz, was elected as one of Louisiana's two delegates to the national convention, which will be held in New York City later this month.

In taking the presidency, Huenefeld said, "My pledge and your challenge is to increase the effectiveness of the annual cancer campaign on all levels."

He urged over 100 delegates to the state convention to "Go home with a fight against cancer," and said the state should increase its annual contribution.

Huenefeld pointed out that the contribution per person in Louisiana was about eight cents, which brought in approximately $250,000 this past year.

"That's less than a pack of cigarettes a year," Huenefeld said. "I think that we can afford to contribute the price of a pack of cigarettes to combat humanity's

2,000 Honor Refugees Slain By Red Police

BERLIN (AP)—About 2,000 people, including many teen-agers, gathered on the bank of the Spree River Saturday to honor refugees killed by the Communists.

They erected a wooden cross decorated with flowers to mark the spot where two young East Berliners died Thursday night.

One was shot by Communist guards and the other drowned while trying to swim the river to the west bank.

A roughly painted notice facing the Communists said: "Hunted to death by the concentration camp guards."

Mayor Willy Kressmann, mayor of the borough of Kreuzberg, attended the ceremony. He said the action was spontaneous by young people, who collected money for the cross.

Jets To Rule Skies For 12-Hour Period

WASHINGTON (AP) — For 12 hours next weekend the skies over the United States and Canada will be cleared of commercial planes and jet fighters will streak aloft to defend North America against mock enemy bomber attack.

The exercise, called Operation Sky Shield, will last from 1 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time Oct. 14 until 1 a.m. Sunday, regardless of weather conditions.

Operating against them will be U. S. and Canadian interceptor planes which will make an estimated 6,000 sorties for simulated strikes against the aggressor force. This will not be an anti-intercontinental ballistic missile exercise—for the simple reason that a defense against ICBMs has not yet become a reality.

All the resources of the far flung North American Air Defense Command will be brought into play in Sky Shield.

These will include radar, fighter craft, antiaircraft missiles, and communications and control stations, among other things.

Missile crews ringing many cities will scramble to their battle stations, but they won't fire any of their rockets at the "enemy" planes.

No live ammunition of any sort will be used.

The exercise will spread far northward to the arctic and out to sea. Joining in will be Navy picket ships off the coasts, the Air Force's radar-carrying patrol

Jury Rules Deaths Due To Cyanide

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—An Orange County coroner's jury ruled Saturday night that cyanide poisoning killed two University of North Carolina students whose bodies were found in adjoining dormitory beds Friday.

Police Chief W. D. Blake said, "We're trying to find out how the poison was administered and by whom."

A janitor found their bodies when they failed to show up Friday morning for their self-help jobs in a college dining room.

Blake said, "We are investigating to determine whether it was suicide or what."

He said the police department and the university medical center have been working together in the case.

"A lot depends on what the medical staff says about two milkshake cups found in their room," he said.

The coroner's jury issued its ruling after receiving a report from Dr. William Huffines, a university pathologist, who performed an autopsy.

Details of the autopsy findings were not released immediately.

Asst. Coroner George Cannady said the pathologist is continuing an examination of food and two paper drinking cups found in the room the two students shared this semester.

Proposed instead is some method of intercepting missiles shortly after launch, perhaps with rockets fired from satellites so fallout would be over enemy territory.

Army sources counter that Nike-Zeus is years ahead of any other system and that Soviet testing makes crash development of missile defense imperative.

Berlin to the Western sectors.

Police gave these accounts of the incidents:

A man in his mid-50s went up to the Communist barrier at Luebars and exchanged words with the Communist guards. He apparently angered the guards because one of them fired a submachine gun, injuring the West Berliner in an arm.

Then the man was led away in handcuffs. At this point the wire barrier is about 20 yards from the actual border, so the man was on East German territory at the time.

In the second incident passers-by at Frohnau saw three men being forced at gunpoint to crawl through the wire into East Germany. Two were believed to be about 30 and the third was estimated to be 18. Nobody in the West saw what led to their arrest by the frontier guards.

The incidents came as East Germans celebrated the 12th anniversary of the founding of their Communist republic.

Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, speaking at an open-air rally, offered the Soviet Union's "most effective guarantees" for a free city of West Berlin. He did not define these guarantees and he insisted the West must respect the sovereignty of East Germany, snubbed since its creation in 1949.

In those 12 years the Red regime has angled assiduously for diplomatic recognition. So far this has been accorded only by Communist bloc nations.

While such countries as Ghana, Guinea and Cuba sent official delegations to East Berlin for the ceremonies, they have not yet assigned ambassadors.

The nonrecognition by the bulk of the world was obviously much on the mind of speakers as they pressed for a peace treaty with Germany, as demanded by Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Mikoyan said the lack of such a treaty created tension between the big powers and among the German people. He said the treaty should stabilize the situation, which has been built up since World War II, and legalize the borders defined in the Potsdam agreement.

"We are ready to accept all and most effective guarantees for the free status of West Berlin," he said.

The arrangements must respect the sovereign rights of East Germany with regard to the Western access routes across its territory to West Berlin, which the Communists would like to have cleared of its U.S., British and French garrisons, he added.

"Only lunatics and people ready for suicide can answer such proposals for a peaceful (treaty) settlement with military action," Mikoyan said.

The Communists stuck to their demand for a neutralized and demilitarized city of West Berlin dependent for its links with the West on arrangemements with East Germany.

But they appeared to be going easy on the date. The main speakers, Friday night and Saturday, said the treaty was urgently needed but dropped the customary phrase "this year."

The rally in the marx-Engels Square, at the opposite end of Unter Den Linden Boulevard from the Brandenburg Gate, was a lack-luster affair. Perhaps 20,000 persons attended.

The Communists hoisted flags on public buildings and gave children paper ones to wave when ordered. But the cheers were subdued.

A double line of people's police guarded all streets leading to the square. They allowed people in, but nobody was permitted to leave until the 90 minutes of speech-making was over.

People looked grim when Mikoyan spoke approvingly of the "protective measures of Aug. 13" —the barricading of the sector border—and praised the Red regime for its slickness in carrying them out.

In West Berlin, Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., said it would be fatal to concede Berlin to the Communists "just as it was fatal to have made the Munich agreement with Hitler."

He said the United States must insist on allied troops remaining in Berlin and complete freedom of movement for both allies and West Berliners. He also said West Berlin's economic ties with the West must be preserved.

Douglas made these points in a Voice of America broadcast after spending five days in Berlin studying the siuation.

States be dissolved and cease forthwith."

The telegram pointed out, however, that the United States' policy on the formation of a government in exile "in no way affects" the U. S. government's attitude toward the present regime in Cuba.

Joseph Reap, a State Department press officer, explained, "The recognition of a government of Cuba in exile at this time is not in the national interest of the United States because neither the government of Switzerland nor any other government could then represent United States interests before the Castro regime.

"United States citizens are imprisoned in Cuba and can only be offered such protection as is available in Cuba under the Castro regime by the continued ability of a foreign government to represent United States interests," he added.

The Association of the Cuban Judiciary in Exile, which has 30 some members, said that it had remained aloof until now from the activities of the various Cuban exile political organizations trying to establish a united front against Castro.

It said in a proclamation: "Through all these months we have watched the endless political bickering and the interested partisan struggle of the political organizations trying to establish a united front against Castro. We cannot remain silent any longer."

Carceran de Vall, 54, said that a country for the government in exile had not been chosen yet but that it would not be constituted in the United States if it was in violation of U. S. laws.

lines to West Berlin from West Germany.

Gromyko reiterated Soviet readiness to "guarantee" Western access to Berlin, but this was linked to Russia's insistence that West Berlin itself must be given a new status. Under this status Western troops would either be withdrawn or be joined by Soviet troops; if they were withdrawn the Soviets would agree to some new arrangement, perhaps through the United Nations, to guarantee West Berlin status as a "free city."

Kennedy is said to have told Gromyko that in trying to get the Western powers out of West Berlin while guaranteeing the independence of the city and access to it, the Soviets were offering to trade an apple for an orchard. He made clear that the United States and its allies rejected any such bargain.

The White House meeting completed the first phase of exploratory talks which began when Rusk and Gromyko both went to New York last month for the opening of the U. N. General Assembly.

U. S. officials are not certain at the moment what form the next round of discussions with the Soviets should take. One possibility is that talks may be conducted by Western ambassadors in Moscow with Gromyko or other Soviet officials. U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson returned to Washington Friday for a detailed fill-in on the Rusk-Gromyko discussions.

Three radar warning networks strung across Canada and the Far North will be brought into play. These are the DEW — Distant Early Waning line in the arctic, the Mid-Canada Line and the Pine Tree Line close to the U.S. border.

In all about 250,000 members of the U.S. Army, Air Force and Navy and Canada's air force will take part. The operations will range over an estimated 14 million square miles of the earth's surface.

The Pentagon estimates that some 2,100 commercial flights in the United States and Canada will be grounded.

Commercial planes will be barred from entering North American air space during the test period and many privately owned craft will be grounded as well.

One of the reasons for grounding commercial planes during the exercise is the danger that they might run into trouble from the electronic counter measures used by the air defense forces.

Electronic devices are employed to confuse the radar and communications of incoming enemy aircraft.

In this test, they could also confuse the safety devices with which civilian craft are equipped, as well as air traffic control operations from the ground.

The Defense Department said that commercial radio and TV broadcasting will not be affected by the electronic counter measures.

Provisions have been made for emergency flight operations required in the interest of health or safety as, for example, in cases of fire, flood, accident, or emergency medical treatment. Such flights will be handled by the Federal Aviation Agency's air traffic control facilities on an advisory basis.

the Louisiana State Sovereignty Commission, which is dedicated to preservation of state rights and segregation, and the commission's tape recordings and records, also are reported to have been subpoenaed.

Unauthorized telephone tapping is a federal offense, punishable by $10,000 fine or a year in prison.

The first witness to be heard is Wade Mackie, director of the American Friends Service Committee office in Baton Rouge, which works to get additional employment opportunities for Negroes and sponsors an annual series of religious lectures for a non-segregated audience.

Mackie was reportedly target of the telephone wire tap, both at his home and his office, for several months. He told newsmen several weeks ago the FBI and Justice Department were investigating the wiretap.

In September, Mackie told newswoman Martha Wilson of the States-Times he detected the wires going into the tree in front of his house and "looping through the bushes across my back yard in a very crude arrangement."

The newspaper also reported earlier Rev. Irvin Cheney, former pastor of the Baton Rouge Broadmoor Baptist Church, had his telephone tapped after he joined more than 50 other ministers in signing an "affirmation of religious principles."

The affirmation, which drew heated comment from segregationists, stated "discrimination on the basis of race is a violation of the divine law of love."

"I know Cheney's phone was tapped," Mackie said, "because he told me that people reported back to him conversations they could only have known if they had been listening in on his telephone."

Mackie said also individuals appeared at meetings at his office earlier this year several times and took license numbers of cars parked around it. A photographer twice took surprise photographs of those attending the institute of religion series.

John Deer, director of the Sovereignty Commission, denied he had been called before the federal grand jury.

Jack Gould, who handles public relations for the commission, said the law which created the commission specifically exempts the group from the public records act and he doubts the commission's records are subject to subpoena.

Gould said the case "certainly was not discussed" at a meeting of the Sovereignty Commission at New Orleans Friday.

The United States Code, section 605, title 47, sets down that "no person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence, substance purport, effect, contents or meaning of such intercepted communication to any person, and no person not being entitled thereto shall receive or assist in receiving such information."

The U.S. Supreme Court in the 1930s upheld the principle of wire-tapping. Justices Holmes and Brandeis dissented, maintaining telephone tapping is an invasion of the privacy of the home like "unreasonable search and seizure without warrant."

In late cases, the court reversed its earlier position in line with that of Holmes and Brandies.

Besides Huenefeld, new state officers are Dr. Charles V. Sprague, vice president, New Orleans; Dr. Donald B. Williams, chairman of the board, Lafayette; Dr. Lesley M. Warshaw, chairman of the executive committee, Lake Charles; Dr. G. John Buddingh, treasurer, New Orleans, and Benjamin C. Gore, secretary, New Orleans.

Huenefeld, an LSU graduate, lives at 1200 Pargoud Blvd. in Monroe, and is the father of two children.

Active in civic work in the Monroe area, he is vice chairman of the State Board of Welfare.

Delegates from the Monroe area included Mrs. Fred Beckett, and Sam Hanna, Ouachita; Mrs. R. E. Applewhite, Franklin Parish; and Mrs. A. T. Holloway, Jackson Parish.

Huenefeld has been active in cancer work for several years, and in 1959 was state cancer crusade chairman.

lines to West Berlin from West Germany.

Gromyko reiterated Soviet readiness to "guarantee" Western access to Berlin, but this was linked to Russia's insistence that West Berlin itself must be given a new status. Under this status Western troops would either be withdrawn or be joined by Soviet troops; if they were withdrawn the Soviets would agree to some new arrangement, perhaps through the United Nations, to guarantee West Berlin status as a "free city."

Kennedy is said to have told Gromyko that in trying to get the Western powers out of West Berlin while guaranteeing the independence of the city and access to it, the Soviets were offering to trade an apple for an orchard. He made clear that the United States and its allies rejected any such bargain.

The White House meeting completed the first phase of exploratory talks which began when Rusk and Gromyko both went to New York last month for the opening of the U. N. General Assembly.

U. S. officials are not certain at the moment what form the next round of discussions with the Soviets should take. One possibility is that talks may be conducted by Western ambassadors in Moscow with Gromyko or other Soviet officials. U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson returned to Washington Friday for a detailed fill-in on the Rusk-Gromyko discussions.

Three radar warning networks strung across Canada and the Far North will be brought into play. These are the DEW — Distant Early Waning line in the arctic, the Mid-Canada Line and the Pine Tree Line close to the U.S. border.

In all about 250,000 members of the U.S. Army, Air Force and Navy and Canada's air force will take part. The operations will range over an estimated 14 million square miles of the earth's surface.

The Pentagon estimates that some 2,100 commercial flights in the United States and Canada will be grounded.

Commercial planes will be barred from entering North American air space during the test period and many privately owned craft will be grounded as well.

One of the reasons for grounding commercial planes during the exercise is the danger that they might run into trouble from the electronic counter measures used by the air defense forces.

Electronic devices are employed to confuse the radar and communications of incoming enemy aircraft.

In this test, they could also confuse the safety devices with which civilian craft are equipped, as well as air traffic control operations from the ground.

The Defense Department said that commercial radio and TV broadcasting will not be affected by the electronic counter measures.

Provisions have been made for emergency flight operations required in the interest of health or safety as, for example, in cases of fire, flood, accident, or emergency medical treatment. Such flights will be handled by the Federal Aviation Agency's air traffic control facilities on an advisory basis.

the Louisiana State Sovereignty Commission, which is dedicated to preservation of state rights and segregation, and the commission's tape recordings and records, also are reported to have been subpoenaed.

Unauthorized telephone tapping is a federal offense, punishable by $10,000 fine or a year in prison.

The first witness to be heard is Wade Mackie, director of the American Friends Service Committee office in Baton Rouge, which works to get additional employment opportunities for Negroes and sponsors an annual series of religious lectures for a non-segregated audience.

Mackie was reportedly target of the telephone wire tap, both at his home and his office, for several months. He told newsmen several weeks ago the FBI and Justice Department were investigating the wiretap.

In September, Mackie told newswoman Martha Wilson of the States-Times he detected the wires going into the tree in front of his house and "looping through the bushes across my back yard in a very crude arrangement."

The newspaper also reported earlier Rev. Irvin Cheney, former pastor of the Baton Rouge Broadmoor Baptist Church, had his telephone tapped after he joined more than 50 other ministers in signing an "affirmation of religious principles."

The affirmation, which drew heated comment from segregationists, stated "discrimination on the basis of race is a violation of the divine law of love."

"I know Cheney's phone was tapped," Mackie said, "because he told me that people reported back to him conversations they could only have known if they had been listening in on his telephone."

Mackie said also individuals appeared at meetings at his office earlier this year several times and took license numbers of cars parked around it. A photographer twice took surprise photographs of those attending the institute of religion series.

John Deer, director of the Sovereignty Commission, denied he had been called before the federal grand jury.

Jack Gould, who handles public relations for the commission, said the law which created the commission specifically exempts the group from the public records act and he doubts the commission's records are subject to subpoena.

Gould said the case "certainly was not discussed" at a meeting of the Sovereignty Commission at New Orleans Friday.

The United States Code, section 605, title 47, sets down that "no person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence, substance purport, effect, contents or meaning of such intercepted communication to any person, and no person not being entitled thereto shall receive or assist in receiving such information."

The U.S. Supreme Court in the 1930s upheld the principle of wire-tapping. Justices Holmes and Brandeis dissented, maintaining telephone tapping is an invasion of the privacy of the home like "unreasonable search and seizure without warrant."

In late cases, the court reversed its earlier position in line with that of Holmes and Brandies.

was a Dakota DC3, a model discontinued in 1952 by its American makers, the Douglas Aircraft Co.

Control towers at Toulouse and Bordeaux both reported contact with the plane at about that time. It was then in the Toulouse region, 90 miles from its destination.

The contact was lost and an alert was sent out after residents farther south telephoned police that they heard a plane circling overhead..

Construction workers in the ariege Department said the engines sounded as if they were acting abnormally.

Search parties, helicopters and ground parties began combing the mountains shortly after dawn.

A helicopter spotted the wreckage near Mileres Pass. The closest town was Prades, a market center of 5,000 about 25 miles southwest of Perpignan.

A helicopter attempted to land near the wreckage, but was unable to do so. Prades police said both the helicopter and a search plane, which flew low over the wreckage, radioed that no survivors were to be seen.

The DC3 once was the most widely used transport plane in the world. It was standard equipment on major U.S. airlines and on several foreign lines before World War II. A military version became the C47 workhorse of the U.S. Air Force.

A Derby Aviation official said the plane had been modified somewhat to meet British government technical requirements.

"The machine passed all British tests as to air worthiness," he said. He reported it was a number of years old, "but it is difficult to determine immediately just when this particular plane was taken into service."

Poll Helps Airline In Serving Public

WASHINGTON (UPI) —It was back in 1959 that a brand-new airline president sought the answer to an embarrassing question.

The executive was Malcolm A. MacIntyre of Eastern Air Lines. The question: Why don't more people fly—and in particular, why don't they fly Eastern?

MacIntyre ordered a nationwide poll on the subject. He got his answer and it didn't make pleasant reading. More than 87 per cent of those questioned said their biggest beef against Eastern and all airlines was the wide disparity between published schedules and actual performance.

What MacIntyre and Eastern did about this "clouded public image" was a blueprint for the industry.

—Every route on Eastern's system went under special study to determine the exact reasons for all delays. Did a schedule reflect the speed capabilities of the aircraft flying it? Were the bottlenecks on the ground or in the air?

—An "on time" committee was formed by volunteers from every department, including flight crews mechanics, stewardesses, agents and dispatchers. The committee found 74 actual or potential delay factors and recommended ways of eradicating every one.

Eastern's top brass took the recommendations to heart and promptly began scrapping scores of hitherto sacred procedures. Eastern found out, for example, that the same airplane cannot always make the same time between New York and Miami leaving at 8 a.m. as it can leaving at 8 p.m., even with identical wind and weather conditions. The obvious reason: Greater airport and air traffic congestion during daylight hours. But before the "On Time Committee" looked into such factors, Eastern's published schedules had ignored the obvious.

Every Eastern timetable underwent major revisions based on eliminating all delay factors. On MacIntyre's desk recently appeared a report covering on-time performance for the busy summer period, May 1 through Aug. 31. It revealed that:

—More than 90 per cent of the airline's 161,400 scheduled flights in that period left their starting gates on time or no more than 15 minutes late (the 0-15 minutes tolerance set by the Civil Aeronautics Board for a departure to be judged on time).

—More than 86 per cent of all non-stop and one-stop flights arrived within 15 minutes of the schedule time.

—In July, 91 per cent of all flights left on time and 87 per cent of all non-stop and one-stop flights arrived on schedule. This was the highest "0-15" performance recorded by any major airline since the CAB began monitoring trunk airline performance, as compared with published timetables in May, 1959.

—In the four-month period, nearly 80 per cent of Eastern's 1,360 daily flights, including multi-stop trips, departed exactly on time.

Phone Talkers Ignore Pleas In Emergency

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) —A grieving mother said Saturday she had tried twice without success to get a woman to release her party telephone line so she could make an emergency call for her unconscious 4-month-old son.

The boy, Gregory Alan Blalock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Blalock, died a short time later.

Mrs. Blalock said two of her appeals to use the party line were ignored. She then rushed the boy to a neighbor, wher he was given mouth-to-mouth respiration. A short time later the child was pronounced dead by a doctor.

Dr. John E. Johnson, county coroner, said the infant had died of pneumonia. He said emergency treatyment probably would not have been successful had help arrived sooner.

The mother said when she found the boy unconscious she rushed to the telephone and upon hearing conversation said: "Get off the phone. I have to use the phone.

"A woman's voice kept repeating the name of the woman she was talking to. I finally said, 'For God's sake, get off the phone, my baby, my baby . . .'

"I dropped the telephone and ran to the neighbors."

She said that when she returned to the house two hours later the line still was being used.

JFK May Lack Vigorous Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy apparently is going to have to make some compromises with the conservatives to push his "New Frontier" program through the 1962 election-year Congress.

In the expected absence of House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., Kennedy is likely to lack any powerful tactician among Senate and House leaders who can put the necessary drive behind the controversial proposals he is expected to make.

Moreover, because of Rayburn's illness, Kennedy will lack among these leaders a vigorous "no" man who can advise him against the kind of mistakes presidents sometimes make when they misjudge the temper of Congress.

Rayburn, with his standing among his colleagues and his long years of experience, often has been able to find ways of getting the seemingly impossible done in the House. Even though his performance this year was not up to par because of declining health, he remained the most persuasive man in the House.

Rep. John McCormack, D-Mass., designated as acting speaker, seems to lack the power punch Rayburn packed. He does not have a similar political bank account of past favors for members upon which to draw.

While McCormack bucked the President by demanding aid to parochial schools in the session that ended last month, neither he nor any of the other leaders seems to have the disposition—or the power—to tell the President he had better forget about some proposal or modify it drastically if he wants congressional approval for it.

In the Senate, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana operates on the theory that the best leadership is that which does not try to dictate to those who follow. The Montana senator is more apt to take the role of an umpire between disputing party factions than that of a leader who herds them into line.

Mansfield tries to cooperate as fully as possible with Kennedy on all administration requests. As he sees it, his job is to do his best—but without any coercion of fellow Democrats—to get White House sponsored legislation passed.

While he was majority leader of the Senate, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson was not accountable to the White House, then occupied by Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower. But Johnson ran the Senate alternately by cajolery and political headcracking.

Just as Rayburn could calculate and sway the mood of the House, Johnson proved he could accomplish some almost unbelievable results in the Senate. The working liaison between the two Texans was close knit.

Both knew where and when they could pick off from the Republican-Southern Democratic coalition the critical votes that might be needed to get some controversial measure passed.

Lacking this type of generalship, Kennedy seems certain to face the necessity of compromising in a session which will put his program to its severest test.

This year's session dealt primarily with issues long familiar to members of Congress, matters such as housing, unemployment compensation, minimum wage, depressed areas and others that had been debated for years.

Along with the carry-over issues of a general aid to education bill and an over-all farm measure, Kennedy's 1962 program will be filled with proposals for medical care for the elderly, broad tax revision, and extension of the reciprocal trade agreements authority. Each one of [illegible] with controversy.

Negro Injured When Struck By Automobile

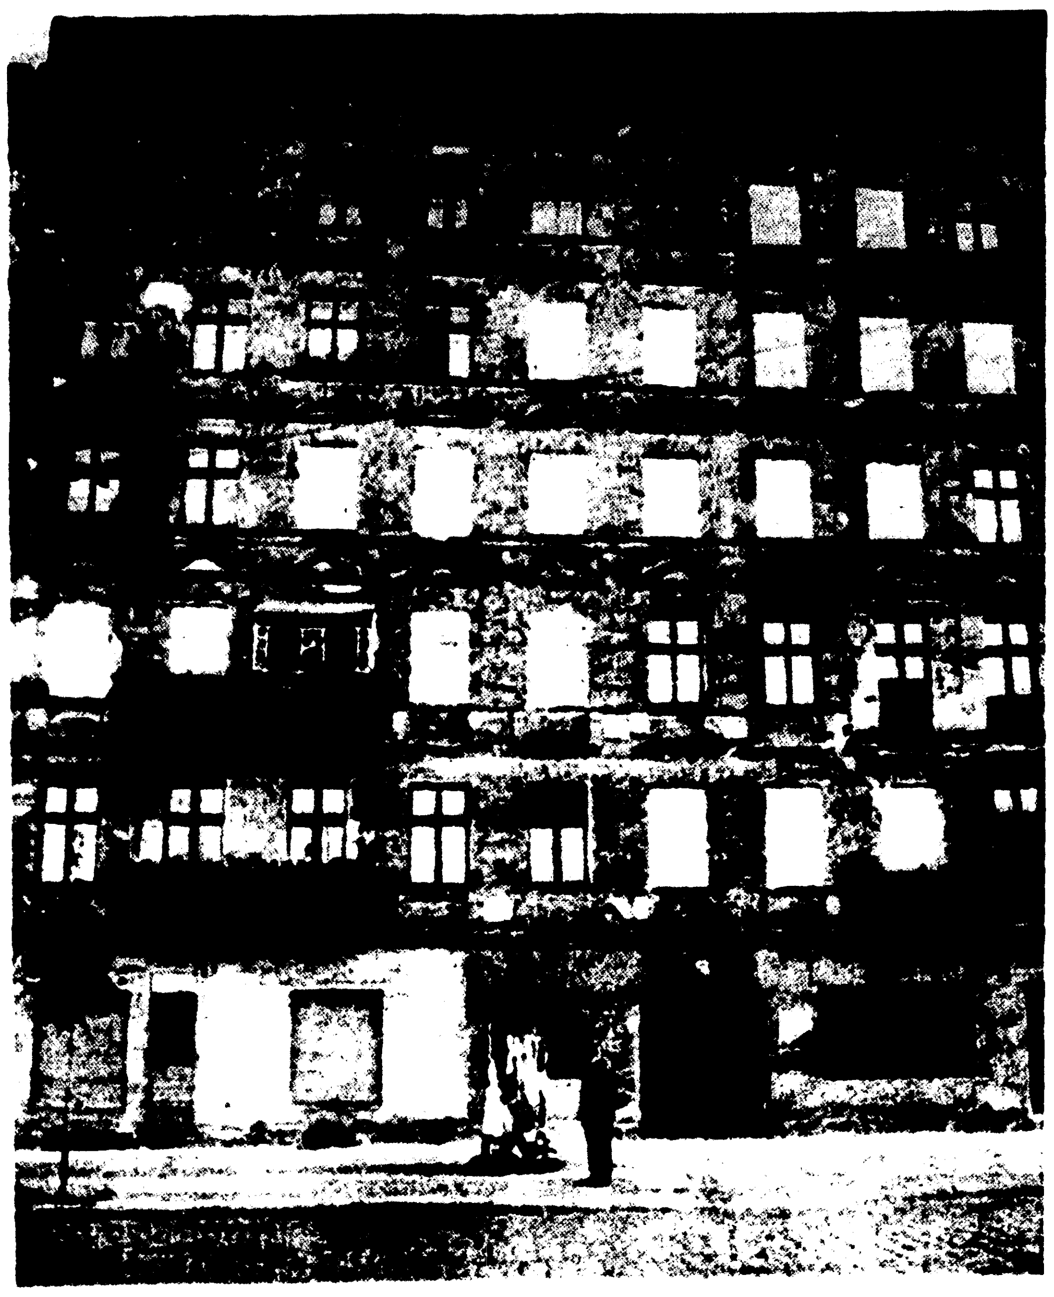
BASTROP (Special) — An 18-year-old Negro youth reportedly suffered serious leg injuries early Saturday when struck in a hit-and-run accident here, according to state police.

He was identified as John Moore Jr. by state troopers who investigated the accident. According to the police his legs were badly mangled when struck on Louisiana 142 three miles east of Mer Rouge.

Authorities believe the hit-and-run automobile to be a late model white car.

Moore was taken to E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital in Monroe where he was scheduled for surgery last night.



TYPICAL of East Berlin measures to halt the escape of refugees to the west are these bricked-up windows in an apartment house along the city's dividing line. The house, on the south side of Bernauerstrasse, is in East Berlin. The sidewalk and street in the foreground are in West Berlin. (AP Wirephoto)

ON PURPOSE

Most East German Police Aim Badly

BERLIN (UPI) —The VOPOS of Berlin's East-West city border do a lot of shooting these days but few people get hurt.

The VOPOS — short for "Peoples Police"—fire at many East Berliners who try to jump the barbed wire to freedom.

But their aim is bad.

"Communist officers have told East German police to be trigger-happy," a West Berlin police officer said. "But most of these poor kids that are doing their duty at the wall are very unhappy about it."

Most East German youths certainly have not joined the Communist "alert police" because they wanted to kill. They became policemen because they could not help it.

There is no exemption in East Germany. But every 18-year-old [illegible] the armed forces of Germany's first workers' and peasants' state as the Communists put it.

A boy who has not served in the army or in the police would not be admitted to a university. Working in a state-run factory, he could not get a raise in wages. After he has married, state-run housing companies would not let him a room or a flat.

So East German youths are forced to "volunteer" for the armed forces.

The police officers are Communists. But most VOPOS are not.

The rank and file VOPOS is like the boy next door. He has learned a trade and wants to make money at it. Or he has completed secondary school and wants to study at a university. But he cannot unless he has served in the armed forces for two, three or—if he wants to be promoted to sergeant rank—five years.

Most VOPOS do not like the border wall that separates Berlin. But behind them there are Communist officers who gave orders to shoot at any East Berliner who tries to escape to West Berlin.

Almost every night, VOPOS on the border pull the trigger. But most East German policemen take care nobody will be hurt.

By shooting, they are able to prove they obeyed orders.

The VOPOS are in a ticklish situation. Their officer will punish them if they do not arrest refugees or do not shoot at them.

JFK May Lack Vigorous Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy apparently is going to have to make some compromises with the conservatives to push his "New Frontier" program through the 1962 election-year Congress.

In the expected absence of House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., Kennedy is likely to lack any powerful tactician among Senate and House leaders who can put the necessary drive behind the controversial proposals he is expected to make.

Moreover, because of Rayburn's illness, Kennedy will lack among these leaders a vigorous "no" man who can advise him against the kind of mistakes presidents sometimes make when they misjudge the temper of Congress.

Rayburn, with his standing among his colleagues and his long years of experience, often has been able to find ways of getting the seemingly impossible done in the House. Even though his performance this year was not up to par because of decling health, he remained the most persuasive man in the House.

Rep. John McCormack, D-Mass., designated as acting speaker, seems to lack the power punch Rayburn packed. He does not have a similar political bank account of past favors for members upon which to draw.

While McCormack bucked the President by demanding aid to parochial schools in the session that ended last month, neither he nor any of the other leaders seems to have the disposition—or the power—to tell the President he had better forget about some proposal or modify it drastically if he wants congressional approval for it.

In the Senate, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana operates on the theory that the best leadership is that which does not try to dictate to those who follow. The Montana senator is more apt to take the role of an umpire between disputing party factions than that of a leader who herds them into line.

Mansfield tries to cooperate as fully as possible with Kennedy on all administration requests. As he sees it, his job is to do his best—but without any coercion of fellow Democrats—to get White House sponsored legislation passed.

While he was majority leader of the Senate, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson was not accountable to the White House, then occupied by Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower. But Johnson ran the Senate, alternately by cajolery and political headcracking.

Just as Rayburn could calculate and sway the mood of the House, Johnson proved he could accomplish some almost unbelievable results in the Senate. The working liaison between the two Texans was close knit.

Both knew where and when they could pick off from the Republican-Southern Democratic coalition the critical votes that might be needed to get some controversial measure passed.

Lacking this type of generalship, Kennedy seems certain to face the necessity of compromising in a session which will put his program to its severest test.

This year's session dealt primarily with issues long familiar to members of Congress, matters such as housing, unemployment compensation, minimum wage, depressed areas and others that had been debated for years.

Along with the carry-over issues of a general aid to education bill and an over-all farm measure, Kennedy's 1962 program will deal with proposals for medical care for the elderly, broad tax revision, and extension of the reciprocal trade agreements authority. Each one of these is packed with controversy.

Negro Injured When Struck By Automobile

BASTROP (Special) — An 18-year-old Negro youth reportedly suffered serious leg injuries around noon Saturday when struck in a hit-and-run accident here, according to state police.

He was identified as John Moore Jr., by state troopers who investigated the accident. According to the police, his legs were badly mangled when struck on Louisiana 138, three miles out of Mer Rouge.

Authorities believed the hit-and-run automobile to be a late model white car.

Moore was taken to E. A. Conway Memorial hospital in Monroe where he was scheduled for surgery last night.

ON PURPOSE

Most East German Police Aim Badly

BERLIN (UPI) —The VOPOS on Berlin's East-West city border do a lot of shooting these days but few people get hurt.

The VOPOS — short for "Peoples Police"—fire at many East Berliners who try to jump the barbed wire to freedom.

But their aim is bad.

"Communist officers have told East German police to be trigger-happy," a West Berlin police officer said. "But most of these poor kids that are doing their duty at the wall are very unhappy about it."

Most East German youths certainly have not joined the Communist "alert police" because they wanted to kill. They became policemen because they could not help it.

There is no conscription in East Germany. But every 18-year-old boy has to join the "armed forces of Germany's first workers and peasants state," as the Communists put it.

A boy who has not served in the army or in the police would not be admitted to a university. Working in a state-run factory, he could not get a raise in wages. After he has married, state-run housing companies would not let him a room or a flat.

So East German youths are forced to "volunteer" for the armed forces.

The police officers are Communists. But most VOPOS are not.

The rank and file VOPOS is like the boy next door. He has learned a trade and wants to make money at it. Or he has completed secondary school and wants to study at a university. But he cannot unless he has served in the armed forces for two, three or—if he wants to be promoted to sergeant rank—five years.

Most VOPOS do not like the border wall that separates Berlin. But behind them there are Communist officers who gave orders to shoot at any East Berliner who tries to escape to West Berlin.

Almost every night, VOPOS on the border pull the trigger. But most East German policemen take care nobody will be hurt.

By shooting, they are able to prove they obeyed orders.

The VOPOS are in a ticklish situation. Their officer will punish them if they do not arrest refugees or do not shoot at them.

RETARDED FACILITIES

Solon Deplores Political Actions

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Rep. Wollen Falgout, chairman of the legislative committee on retarded children,' said Saturday politics should be kept out of the program for new facilities.

"I'm particularly concerned," the Lafourche Parish legislator said, "about the way state money is being provided for new facilities without our committee being consulted."

Falgout singled out a $310,000 allocation by the State Bond and Building Commission for a retarded children's unit at Leesville, and $95,000 earmarked for a site in Algiers, a New Orleans suburb, where plans are being drawn for a children's evaluation center.

"Our group was formed for the purpose of studying needs of all exceptional children and making recommendations to the legislature how to solve these problems," Falgout said. "I feel and the committee feels our program should be above politics.

"If we cannot serve a useful purpose, our committee should be dissolved."

Commenting on both the Leesville project and the Algiers site, Falgout said his committee was not consulted in either instance.

In the Leesville case, he said, "We feel the planned facilities to care for approximately 100 children are not suitable. With Ft. Polk open again, the school building involved can be used again for public classrooms.

"That $310,000 could be put to much better use in providing a new institution for the retarded delinquents."

Falgout said the Juvenile Judges Association, Louisiana Sheriff's Association and his committee believe something should be done immediately to provide facilities for retarded delinquents.

The Falgout committee already has placed itself on record favoring quick action to dispose of pending court litigation standing in the way of a new $3 million retarded children's center near Hammond, backed by Gov. Jimmie Davis.

A few days ago, the court struggle over the Hammond site moved into the First Circuit Court of Appeals in Baton Rouge. Dist. Judge Fred S. LeBlanc granted an appeal to the higher court in the case of a Jefferson Parish father, James Williams, who is contesting the Hammond location.

Williams has charged the Hammond location is contrary to legislative intent that the new center be placed in the New Orleans area.

Both Falgout and state hospital Director Charles Rosenblum want the case settled quickly, so the new facilities can be built to solve a backlog of applications.

Ford, Union Negotiators Take Recess

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiators for Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers apparently settled a tricky problem on skilled trades jobs Saturday, then recessed national contract talks until 1 p.m. Sunday.

Thus it was certain the strike of 120,000 Ford production workers, which began at 10 a.m. Tuesday, would continue at least into next week.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, and Malcolm L. Denise, Ford vice-president labor relations, agreed one major national problem was settled Saturday. But neither was willing to confirm outright the specific issue involved.

It was known the issue of lines of demarcation between skilled jobs had been the only national item under discussion in talks Friday and Saturday.

The problem was to define what jobs belong to what classification of workers. One source said settlement of this on a national level should speed agreement at some of the remaining 36 unsettled local units. So far, 49 local units have settled.

Bargaining sessions Saturday ran one hour and 50 minutes. The full committees have met only seven hours since the strike began.

With the national committees in recess, subcommittees took over Saturday night in another effort to work out contract language on settlements already reached covering pensions, insurance and jobless benefits.

Neither side was willing to speculate on when a settlement will be reached. Both emphasized the importance of getting agreements at the local level, a problem which stymied General Motors for more than two weeks following settlement of its national contract last month.

The national problems will occupy the full committees when they resume Sunday.

Some of these issues involve production standards, representation, outside contracting and relief time.

Both sides have indicated they will seek final settlement at both national and local levels before trying to resume new car production. The details of the economic package were worked out just before last Tuesday's strike.

Youngster Hurt In Fall From Diving Board

Twelve-year-old Charles Freeman was hospitalized last night with a lacerated head after slipping from a diving board at the YMCA.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Freeman of 2007 Spencer Ave., was taken to St. Francis hospital around 7 p.m. by a Hixson ambulance, after the fall.

According to sources, he was getting ready for a clown act and fell from the board fully dressed.

Stitches were to be taken in his head last night and he was kept overnight at the hospital for observation.

FOR GRADE PUPILS

New School Plan Attracts Attention

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Grade school children are able and anxious to do much more work than the average school demands. All the yneed is the opportunity."

Carl F. Hanse, District of Columbia superintendent of schools, thus reported Saturday on his pet project—an experiment in rigorous ejucation in the elementary grades.

Hansen, chief architect of the "Amidon Plan" which has attracted attention and stirred controversy among educators, said Washington youngsters are learning to read in kindergarten, and to start writing compositions in the first grade.

He told the annual meeting of the Council for Basic Education that both children and parents are enthusiastic about the program and that tests show a generally consistent pattern of superiority in all subject fields.

Basically, the Amidon Plan, named for the elementary school where the experiment began a year ago, lays heavy stress on teaching the traditional "Three R's" to a cross-section of children.

Here, as outlined in Hansen's speech, are some of the main ideas of the plan:

"Some principles of geometry are now incorporated in the kindergarten and first grade studies. Phonics and reading are taught in the kindergarten—which is no longer a play school but an integrated part of the total program.

"Written compositions of many kinds should be required from the first grade.

"Grammar should be taught systematically, beginning with the fourth grade.

"A system of phonics should be taught to pupils beginning at the kindergarten level. When they begin to read, kindergarten and first grade children should learn how letters and syllables make up words.

"U.S. history should be taught in chronological order in the fifth grade. That replaces an indefinite curriculum organization that included units on such themes as transportation, inventions, and cereals."

Along with the new and tougher curriculum, Hansen said, the teacher has a new and tougher role to play in th Amidon system.

"The simple truth is that the teacher is in the classroom to teach," he said, instead of being there as "a learner along with the children, a moderator of endless panel sessions, a passive and subdued adult in a situation whre adults are to be seen but not heard.

Motorist Nabbed After Wild Chase

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Johnny Edward Blue, 21, of Crossville, was fined more than $400 and ordered held for state action on a reckless driving charge Saturday after leading five police cars in a wild early morning chase.

Blue was fined $51 each on six counts of running a red light, $51 for driving 80 miles per hour in a 35-mile zone and $51 for reckless driving.

Officers said the chase ended when his car hit a curb and skidded into a garage.

EXPERTS AGREE

Weather Science Still Primitive

ROME (AP) — The science of weather is as primitive today as astronomy was before the days of Sir Isaac Newton (1642-1727), the experts agreed Saturday.

Climatologists ending an international conference here seemed to agree that no one knows the laws of climate. Science is a long way from controlling weather and weathermen can't forecast more than a few days at a time.

Reginald C. Sutcliffe, research director of the British Meteorological Service at Berkshire, was among several specialists who summed up theory during the six-day symposium.

"Climatology," he said, "is now in the same stage as pre-Newtonian astronomy—the period when man could observe what the stars were doing but could not understand why."

Newton's discovery of the law of gravitation told science that all bodies of matter are attracted to each other—stars as well as atoms.

Sutcliffe said the ideal goal was to discover the laws of climate. When every possible piece of variable data can be gathered and fed into computors, he said, a mathematical model of the earth could be used to help discover the laws.

Carl-Christian Wallen, assistant director of the Swedish Meteorological Service in Stockholm, said most attempts at long-range weather forecasting were based on the same methods that climatologists use in their studies of the weather and climate of past ages.

"There are very few areas of the world where we can tell with even reasonable certitude what conditions will be," Wallen said. "Climatology cannot do this everywhere and does not try to."

The Swedish meteorologist said it was unlikely for a long time to comzas't artificial means could be used to change climate appreciably.

An amazing amount of credibility has been found in old Turkish farm proverbs, one research paper disclosed. Lionel Smith of the British Meteorological Service quoted the British proverb: "A peck of dust in March is worth a king's ransom," meaning: If March is dry you can plow early.

"We can rely on farmers' observation but not their explanation," Smith said.

South Korean Junta Arrests Own Probers

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—South Korea's ruling military junta announced Saturday night the arrest of 15 officers appointed last May to investigate illegal fortune building.

None of the officers are members of the 28-man junta led by Lt. Gen. Park Chung-hee. But it was apparent that the arrests deeply embarrassed the military men who seized control of the country May 16. They have consistently promised to clean up the corruption of past civilian regimes.

The junta's announcement said, "There are suspicions that irregular acts were committed in the course of investigations contrary to the spirit of the revolution."

The announcement gave no names but said the entire 15-man "No. 1 investigation team" had been arrested Sept. 25 along with an undisclosed number of civilians. Twenty-eight civilians also were in the investigating group.

The group won praise from the junta in August when it ended its probe of businessmen accused of acquiring illegal wealth during past egimes. The junta subsequently announced a toal of 27 businessmen would be required to pay the equivalent of $34.5 million dollars in six months.

RETARDED FACILITIES

Solon Deplores Political Actions

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Rep. Wollen Falgout, chairman of the legislative committee on retarded children, said Saturday politics should be kept out of the program for new facilities.

"I'm particularly concerned," the Lafourche Parish legislator said, "about the way state money is being provided for new facilities without our committee being consulted."

Falgout singled out a $310,000 allocation by the State Bond and Building Commission for a retarded children's unit at Leesville, and $95,000 earmarked for a site in Algiers, a New Orleans suburb, where plans are being drawn for a children's evaluation center.

"Our group was formed for the purpose of studying needs of all exceptional children and making recommendations to the legislature how to solve these problems," Falgout said. "I feel and the committee feels our program should be above politics.

"If we cannot serve a useful purpose, our committee should be dissolved."

Commenting on both the Leesville project and the Algiers site, Falgout said his committee was not consulted in either instance.

In the Leesville case, he said, "We feel the planned facilities to care for approximately 100 children are not suitable. With Ft. Polk open again, the school building involved can be used again for public classrooms.

"That $310,000 could be put to much better use in providing a new institution for the retarded delinquents."

Falgout said the Juvenile Judges Association, Louisiana Sheriff's Association and his committee believe something should be done immediately to provide facilities for retarded delinquents.

The Falgout committee already has placed itself on record favoring quick action to dispose of pending court litigation standing in the way of a new $3 million retarded children's center near Hammond, backed by Gov. Jimmie Davis.

A few days ago, the court struggle over the Hammond site moved into the First Circuit Court of Appeals in Baton Rouge. Dist. Judge Fred S. LeBlanc granted an appeal to the higher court in the case of a Jefferson Parish father, James Williams, who is contesting the Hammond location.

Williams has charged the Hammond location is contrary to legislative intent that the new center be placed in the New Orleans area.

Both Falgout and state hospital Director Charles Rosenblum want the case settled quickly, so the new facilities can be built to solve a backlog of applications.

Ford, Union Negotiators Take Recess

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiators for Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers apparently settled a tricky problem on skilled trades jobs Saturday, then recessed national contract talks until 1 p.m. Sunday.

Thus it was certain the strike of 120,000 Ford production workers, which began at 10 a.m. Tuesday, would continue at least into next week.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, and Malcolm L. Denise, Ford vice-president labor relations, agreed one major national problem was settled Saturday. But neither was willing to confirm outright the specific issue involved.

It was known the issue of lines of demarcation between skilled jobs had been the only national item under discussion in talks Friday and Saturday.

The problem was to define what jobs belong to what classification of workers. One source said settlement of this on a national level should speed agreement at some of the remaining 36 unsettled local units. So far, 49 local units have settled.

Bargaining sessions Saturday ran one hour and 50 minutes. The full committees have met only seven hours since the strike began.

With the national committees in recess, subcommittees took over Saturday night in another effort to work out contract language on settlements already reached covering pensions, insurance and jobless benefits.

Neither side was willing to speculate on when a settlement will be reached. Both emphasized the importance of getting agreements at the local level, a problem which stymied General Motors for more than two weeks following settlement of its national contract last month.

The national problems will occupy the full committees when they resume Sunday.

Some of these issues involve production standards, representation, outside contracting and relief time.

Both sides have indicated they will seek final settlement at both national and local levels before trying to resume new car production. The details of the economic package were worked out just before last Tuesday's strike.

Youngster Hurt In Fall From Diving Board

Twelve-year-old Charles Freeman was hospitalized last night with a lacerated head after slipping from a diving board at the YMCA.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Freeman of 2007 Spencer Ave., was taken to St. Francis hospital around 7 p.m. by a Hixson ambulance, after the fall.

According to sources, he was getting ready for a clown act and fell from the board fully dressed.

Stitches were to be taken in his head last night and he was kept overnight at the hospital for observation.

FOR GRADE PUPILS

New School Plan Attracts Attention

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Grade school children are able and anxious to do much more work than the average school demands. All the yneed is the opportunity."

Carl F. Hanse, District of Columbia superintendent of schools, thus reported Saturday on his pet project—an experiment in rigorous ejucation in the elementary grades.

Hansen, chief architect of the "Amidon Plan" which has attracted attention and stirred controversy among educators, said Washington youngsters are learning to read in kindergarten, and to start writing compositions in the first grade.

He told the annual meeting of the Council for Basic Education that both children and parents are enthusiastic about the program and that tests show a generally consistent pattern of superiority in all subject fields.

Basically, the Amidon Plan, named for the elementary school where the experiment began a year ago, lays heavy stress on teaching the traditional "Three R's" to a cross-section of children.

Here, as outlined in Hansen's speech, are some of the main ideas of the plan:

"Some principles of geometry are now incorporated in the kindergarten and first grade studies. Phonics and reading are taught in the kindergarten—which is no longer a play school but an integrated part of the total program.

"Written compositions of many kinds should be required from the first grade.

"Grammar should be taught systematically, beginning with the fourth grade.

"A system of phonics should be taught to pupils beginning at the kindergarten level. When they begin to read, kindergarten and first grade children should learn how letters and syllables make up words.

"U.S. history should be taught in chronological order in the fifth grade. That replaces an indefinite curriculum organization that included units on such themes as transportation, inventions, and cereals."

Along with the new and tougher curriculum, Hansen said, the teacher has a new and tougher role to play in th Amidon system.

"The simple truth is that the teacher is in the classroom to teach," he said, instead of being there as "a learner along with the children, a moderator of endless panel sessions, a passive and subdued adult in a situation whre adults are to be seen but not heard.

Motorist Nabbed After Wild Chase

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Johnny Edward Blue, 21, of Crossville, was fined more than $400 and ordered held for state action on a reckless driving charge Saturday after leading five police cars in a wild early morning chase.

Blue was fined $51 each on six counts of running a red light, $51 for driving 80 miles per hour in a 35-mile zone and $51 for reckless driving.

Officers said the chase ended when his car hit a curb and skidded into a garage.

EXPERTS AGREE

Weather Science Still Primitive

ROME (AP) — The science of weather is as primitive today as astronomy was before the days of Sir Isaac Newton (1642-1727), the experts agreed Saturday.

Climatologists ending an international conference here seemed to agree that no one knows the laws of climate. Science is a long way from controlling weather and weathermen can't forecast more than a few days at a time.

Reginald C. Sutcliffe, research director of the British Meteorological Service at Berkshire, was among several specialists who summed up theory during the six-day symposium.

"Climatology," he said, "is now in the same stage as pre-Newtonian astronomy—the period when man could observe what the stars were doing but could not understand why."

Newton's discovery of the law of gravitation told science that all bodies of matter are attracted to each other—stars as well as atoms.

Sutcliffe said the ideal goal was to discover the laws of climate. When every possible piece of variable data can be gathered and fed into computors, he said, a mathematical model of the earth could be used to help discover the laws.

Carl-Christian Wallen, assistant director of the Swedish Meteorological Service in Stockholm, said most attempts at long-range weather forecasting were based on the same methods that climatologists use in their studies of the weather and climate of past ages.

"There are very few areas of the world where we can tell with even reasonable certitude what conditions will be," Wallen said. "Climatology cannot do this everywhere and does not try to."

The Swedish meteorologist said it was unlikely for a long time to comzas't artificial means could be used to change climate appreciably.

An amazing amount of credibility has been found in old Turkish farm proverbs, one research paper disclosed. Lionel Smith of the British Meteorological Service quoted the British proverb: "A peck of dust in March is worth a king's ransom," meaning: If March is dry you can plow early.

"We can rely on farmers' observation but not their explanation," Smith said.

South Korean Junta Arrests Own Probers

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—South Korea's ruling military junta announced Saturday night the arrest of 15 officers appointed last May to investigate illegal fortune building.

None of the officers are members of the 28-man junta led by Lt. Gen. Park Chung-hee. But it was apparent that the arrests deeply embarrassed the military men who seized control of the country May 16. They have consistently promised to clean up the corruption of past civilian regimes.

The junta's announcement said, "There are suspicions that irregular acts were committed in the course of investigations contrary to the spirit of the revolution."

The announcement gave no names but said the entire 15-man "No. 1 investigation team" had been arrested Sept. 25 along with an undisclosed number of civilians. Twenty-eight civilians also were in the investigating group.

The group won praise from the junta in August when it ended its probe of businessmen accused of acquiring illegal wealth during past egimes. The junta subsequently announced a toal of 27 businessmen would be required to pay the equivalent of $34.5 million dollars in six months.

IN STALINGRAD BATTLE

Letters Reveal Thoughts Of Soldiers About To Die

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just 19 years ago, in the waning months of 1942, one of the bloodiest and most terrible battles in all the wars of man was being fought around and over the ruins of Stalingrad.

Early in 1943, the remnants of the Germany army were surrendered to the encircling Russians, who had cut them off two months before. At the end, the axis forces had lost some 330,000 men.

In January, the last month, the last German plane left Salingrad. From it, the Nazis seized seven bags of mail. Some of those who were about to die had put down on paper how it was — and posted their thoughts homeward to Germany.

The letters were opened, classified by content and tone, bundled neatly, and sent to the high command. They were to have formed part of a documenting of the battle by which the German supreme command hoped to exculpate itself. After looking at the language of the documents, Goebels suppressed the book.

A German Army Weatherman to His Girl

Monica, what is our life compared to the many million years of the starry sky! On this beautiful night, Andromeda and Pegasus are right above my head. I have looked at them for a long time; I shall be very close to them soon...

Around me everything is collapsing, a whole army is dying, day and night are on fire, and four men busy themselves with daily reports on temperature and cloud ceilings. I don't know much about war. No human being has died by my hand...but I know this much: The other side would never show such a lack of understanding for its men...

What disturbs me (is) the unspoken desire I read between your lines to have not only the husband and lover with you again but also the pianist...So it is well that this letter should reach you, and that you know...that my hands are ruined and have been since the beginning of December. I lost the little finger on my left hand, but worse still is the loss of the three middle fingers of my right hand through frostbite. I am quite helpless...The thing I can still do best with my little finger is shoot....

Kurt Hahnke, I think you remember him from the conservatory in '37, played the Appassionata a week ago on a grand piano in a little side street close to Red Square. Such things don't happen every day. The grand piano was standing right in the middle of the street. The house had been blown up...A hundred soldiers squatted around in their great-coats with blankets over their heads. Everywhere there was the sound of explosions, but no one let himself be disturbed. They were listening to Beethoven in Stalingrad...

It is so easy to say: Put down your weapons. Do you think the Russians will spare us? You are an intelligent man, so why don't you also demand that your friends refuse to produce ammunition and war materiel?

It is easy to give good advice; but it just won't work the way you think it will. Liberation of nations, nonsense. Nations remain the same. Their rules change, and bystanders will keep arguing for liberating the people from their respective rulers. The time to act was in 1932; you know that very well. Also, that we let the moment go by. Ten years ago, the ballot would still have done the trick today, all it will cost you is your life.

An Officer Tells His Wife

...You are the wife of a German officer; so you will take what I have to tell you, upright and unflinching, as upright as you stood on the station platform the day I left for the East...

You know how I feel about you, Augusta. We have never talked much about our feelings. I love you very much and you love me, so you shall know the truth. It is in this letter. The truth is the knowledge that this is the grimmest of struggles in a hopeless situation. Misery, hunger, cold, renunciation, doubt, despair and horrible death. I will say no more about it...I cannot deny my share of personal guilt in all this. But it is in a ratio of 1 to 70 millions...

I tell myself that, by giving my life, I have paid my debt...Augusta, in the hour in which you must be strong, you will feel this also...I am not cowardly, only sad that I cannot give greater proof of my courage than to die for this useless, not to say criminal, cause.

An Actor...And a Stage Too Real

What good does a hero's death do us? I have played death on the stage dozens of times, but I was only playing, and you sat out front in plush seats, and thought my acting authentic and true. It is terrible to realize how little the acting had to do with real death.

You were supposed to die heroically, inspiringly, movingly, from inner conviction and for a great cause. But what is death in reality here? Here they croak, starve to death, freeze to death—it's nothing but a biological fact like eating and drinking.

They drop like flies; nobody cares and nobody buries them. Without arms or legs and without eyes, with bellies torn open, they lie around everywhere. One should make a movie of it; it would make the "most beautiful death in the world" impossible once and for all. It is a death fit for beasts; later they will ennoble it on granite friezes showing "dying warriors" with their heads or arms in bandages.

A Man Thinks of His Children

In January you will be 28. That is still very young for such a good-looking woman ... Let a few months pass, but no more. Gertrud and Claus need a father. Don't forget that you must live for the children, and don't make too much fuss about their father ... Take a good look at the man of your choice, take note of his eyes and the pressure of his handshake ... Raise the children to be upright human beings ...

---

A General Hears from His Son

...I should have known better when I asked you to help me. You always were and you remain forever "righteous" ... The time is coming when every German with any sense will curse the madness of this war ...

There is no victory, Herr General; there are only flags and men that fall, and in the end there will be neither flags nor men. Stalingrad is not a military necessity but a political gamble. And your son is not participating in this experiment, Herr General! You blocked his way to life; he will choose the second way, which also leads to life, but in an opposite direction and on the other side of the front.

The Night Is for Crying

.. On Tuesday I knocked out two T-34s with my mobile anti-tank gun. Curiosity had lured them behind our lines. It was grand and impressive. Afterwards I drove past the smoking remains. From a hatch there hung a body, head down, his feet caught, and his legs burning up to his knees.

The body was alive, the mouth moaning. He must have suffered terrible pain. And there was no possibility of freeing him. Even if there had been, he would have died after a few hours of torture. I shot him, and as I did it, the tears ran down my cheeks. Now I have been crying for three nights about a dead Russian tank driver, whose murderer I am.

The crosses of Gumrak shake me and so do many other things which my comrades close their eyes to and set their jaws against. I am afraid I'll never be able to sleep quietly, assuming that I shall ever come back to you, dear ones...

CROSSETT (Special) — Victor "Buddy" Hoar, chairman of the committee of workmen said Chase Bag Company employees voted Saturday to return to work Monday morning. The picket lines have been removed, he said.

Over 200 workers declared a "wild cat strike" two weeks ago and according to John J. Bender, manager of the local branch, the men lost approximately $10,000 a week in pay while on strike. Although Bender could not be contacted when the agreement was reached, he had said all through the strike that when the men were ready to go back to work he was ready to talk with them.

Soviet Urged To Keep His Laos Pledge

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Kennedy has challenged Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to keep his promise to convert the precarious cease-fire in Laos into a secure peace.

Authoritative sources said Saturday that Kennedy's verbal message to Khrushchev was given to Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Friday evening during their two-hour talk on the twin war threats in Germany and Southeast Asia.

Gromyko's answer was not disclosed. But U. S. officials remained pessimistic about what one called "the extremely serious situation in Laos and South Viet Nam."

Kennedy urged the Soviet Union to help make Laos an example of the possibility of peaceful and equitable settlement of conflicts between the two great power blocs.

In effect, he was asking Khrushchev to give up, in Laos at least, a declared Communist policy of expansion through local "wars of liberation." So long as the uninspected cease-fire continues, Laos can serve as a corridor for Communist arms and guerrillas reinforcing the war in South Viet Nam now and possibly in Thailand later.

Whatever hope Kennedy had in making his renewed appeal, officials said, was based on Khrushchev's promise during the Vienna summit meeting last June to cooperate with the West in making Laos a neutral, independent and unified buffer state.

So far, Kennedy was said to have told Gromyko, Russia has failed to keep that promise, and there is good reason to suspect deliberate stalling.

IN STALINGRAD BATTLE

Letters Reveal Thoughts Of Soldiers About To Die

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just 19 years ago, in the waning months of 1942, one of the bloodiest and most terrible battles in all the wars of man was being fought around and over the ruins of Stalingrad.

Early in 1943, the remnants of the Germany army were surrendered to the encircling Russians, who had cut them off two months before. At the end, the axis forces had lost some 330,000 men.

In January, the last month, the last German plane left Salingrad. From it, the Nazis seized seven bags of mail. Some of those who were about to die had put down on paper how it was — and posted their thoughts homeward to Germany.

The letters were opened, classified by content and tone, bundled neatly, and sent to the high command. They were to have formed part of a documenting of the battle by which the German supreme command hoped to exculpate itself. After looking at the language of the documents, Goebels suppressed the book.

A German Army Weatherman to His Girl

Monica, what is our life compared to the many million years of the starry sky! On this beautiful night, Andromeda and Pegasus are right above my head. I have looked at them for a long time; I shall be very close to them soon. . .

Around me everything is collapsing, a whole army is dying, day and night are on fire, and four men busy themselves with daily reports on temperature and cloud ceilings. I don't know much about war. No human being has died by my hand. . .but I know this much: The other side would never show such a lack of understanding for its men. . .

What disturbs me (is) the unspoken desire I read between your lines to have not only the husband and lover with you again but also the pianist. . .So it is well that this letter should reach you, and that you know. . .that my hands are ruined and have been since the beginning of December.

I lost the little finger on my left hand, but worse still is the loss of the three middle fingers of my right hand through frostbite. I am quite helpless. . .The thing I can still do best with my little finger is shoot. . . .

Kurt Hahnke, I think you remember him from the conservatory in '37, played the Appassionata a week ago on a grand piano in a little side street close to Red Square. Such things don't happen every day. The grand piano was standing right in the middle of the street. The house had been blown up. . .A hundred soldiers squatted around in their great-coats with blankets over their heads. Everywhere there was the sound of explosions, but no one let himself be disturbed. They were listening to Beethoven in Stalingrad. . . .

It is so easy to say: Put down your weapons. Do you think the Russians will spare us? You are an intelligent man, so why don't you also demand that your friends refuse to produce ammunition and war materiel?

It is easy to give good advice; but it just won't work the way you think it will. Liberation of nations, nonsense. Nations remain the same. Their rules change, and bystanders will keep arguing for liberating the people from their respective rulers. The time to act was in 1932; you know that very well. Also, that we let the moment go by. Ten years ago, the ballot would still have done the trick today, all it will cost you is your life.

An Officer Tells His Wife

. . .You are the wife of a German officer; so you will take what I have to tell you, upright and unflinching, as upright as you stood on the station platform the day I left for the East. . .

You know how I feel about you, Augusta. We have never talked much about our feelings. I love you very much and you love me, so you shall know the truth. It is in this letter. The truth is the knowledge that this is the grimmest of struggles in a hopeless situation. Misery, hunger, cold, renunciation, doubt, despair and horrible death. I will say no more about it. . .I cannot deny my share of personal guilt in all this. But it is in a ratio of 1 to 70 millions. . .

I tell myself that, by giving my life, I have paid my debt. . .Augusta, in the hour in which you must be strong, you will feel this also. . .I am not cowardly, only sad that I cannot give greater proof of my courage than to die for this useless, not to say criminal, cause.

An Actor. . .And a Stage Too Real

What good does a hero's death do us? I have played death on the stage dozens of times, but I was only playing, and you sat out front in plush seats, and thought my acting authentic and true. It is terrible to realize how little the acting had to do with real death.

You were supposed to die heroically, inspiringly, movingly, from inner conviction and for a great cause. But what is death in reality here? Here they croak, starve to death, freeze to death—it's nothing but a biological fact like eating and drinking.

They drop like flies; nobody cares and nobody buries them. Without arms or legs and without eyes, with bellies torn open, they lie around everywhere. One should make a movie of it; it would make the "most beautiful death in the world" impossible once and for all. It is a death fit for beasts; later they will ennoble it on granite friezes showing "dying warriors" with their heads or arms in bandages.

A Man Thinks of His Children

- In January you will be 28. That is still very young for such a good-looking woman . . . Let a few months pass, but no more. Gertrud and Claus need a father. Don't forget that you must live for the children, and don't make too much fuss about their father . . . Take a good look at the man of your choice, take note of his eyes and the pressure of his handshake . . . Raise the children to be upright human beings . . .

---

A General Hears from His Son

. . . I should have known better when I asked you to help me. You always were and you remain forever "righteous" . . . The time is coming when every German with any sense will curse the madness of this war . . .

There is no victory, Herr General; there are only flags and men that fall, and in the end there will be neither flags nor men. Stalingrad is not a military necessity but a political gamble. And your son is not participating in this experiment, Herr General! You blocked his way to life; he will choose the second way, which also leads to life, but in an opposite direction and on the other side of the front.

The Night Is for Crying

. . . On Tuesday I knocked out two T-34s with my mobile anti-tank gun. Curiosity had lured them behind our lines. It was grand and impressive. Afterwards I drove past the smoking remains. From a hatch there hung a body, head down, his feet caught, and his legs burning up to his knees.

The body was alive, the mouth moaning. He must have suffered terrible pain. And there was no possibility of freeing him. Even if there had been, he would have died after a few hours of torture. I shot him, and as I did it, the tears ran down my cheeks. Now I have been crying for three nights about a dead Russian tank driver, whose murderer I am.

The crosses of Gumrak shake me and so do many other things which my comrades close their eyes to and set their jaws against. I am afraid I'll never be able to sleep quietly, assuming that I shall ever come back to you, dear ones . . .

West Feared Soviet Attack If Berlin Wall Torn Down

By WELLINGTON LONG

BONN (UPI)—West Berliners who gather along the wall that now divides their city from East Berlin continually ask the question:

"Why were they (the Communists) allowed to build it? Where were the American tanks on the night of Aug. 13?"

Competent Western officials are convinced that if any attempt had been made to tear down the wall the act probably would have been used as an excuse for an invasion of West Berlin by Soviet and German Communist forces.

The Communist order-of-battle that night, Western officials have learned, was this:

—Three Soviet army divisions, all in a state of combat readiness, had been alerted and moved close to Berlin.

—Three East German army divisions had been moved close to Berlin or into the Soviet sector of the city.

—Seventy thousand East German police or members of other para-military formations were inside Berlin and well armed.

Against this, in West Berlin, were 11,000 American, British and French troops, and 10,000 West Berlin police.

No resistance or interference was offered when the Communists with tanks and heavily-armed police backing up the work crews, began throwing up their barbed wire and concrete wall in the pre-dawn hours of Aug. 13.

American tanks did not appear along the 25-mile wall until four days later, to challenge a Communist demand that all West Berliners should remain at least 100 yards away from it. The Allies said this demand was an inadmissible attempt to extend Communist rule into West Berlin.

On Aug. 13, the East German Army formations were held in reserve, some inside Berlin. The Soviets were kept just outside Berlin, and in fact never did enter the city.

The wall that night was flimsy—consisting of rolls of barbed wire or loosely set concrete building blocks, or both.

A simple push by the nose of a tank could have knocked it over at any given point—but it never happened.

Just what Western calculations were during the hours of that night cannot be learned. But officials now believe that had the American, British and French garrisons been ordered to destroy the wall, the East Germans and Soviets would have invaded.

The handful of Western troops, tanks and police would quickly have been swallowed up by the much larger Communist forces. With Berlin lying deep inside Communist-controlled East Germany, reinforcement of the Western forces in time would have been impossible.

Many West Berliners argue now that the mere presence of Allied tanks along the border during those early hours of Aug. 13 would have been sufficient to prevent construction of the wall. Those West Germans who did see it happen could do nothing.

A West Berlin policeman on duty that night at the Oberbaum Bridge over the Spree Barge Canal, where it forms the border in Neukoelln District, told what it was like:

"It seemed to me that the fellows who had to build the wall didn't want to do so, and would have jumped at a chance to get away.

"But across the bridge, lined up along the banks of the canal that night, were nine Communist tanks.

"On this side of the bridge was just me. I was armed with a blackjack. The guys building the wall really had no choice. And neither did I."

Police Hope Forger Uses Volume Bought

RUSTON (Special) — Ruston Police hope that a check forger who passed a worthless check at Taylor's Book Store here makes use of the volume he bought when he cashed the worthless paper.

The 27-year-old man with a crewcut bought a Bible, had a name engraved on it, and paid for it with a fake payroll check made out on Midland Construction, Inc., against First National Bank of Little Rock.

City police investigating the forgery were told by state police that the man who passed it was probably one of a quartet of brothers who apparently work in the forgery business together.

Freund Bids Low On Job

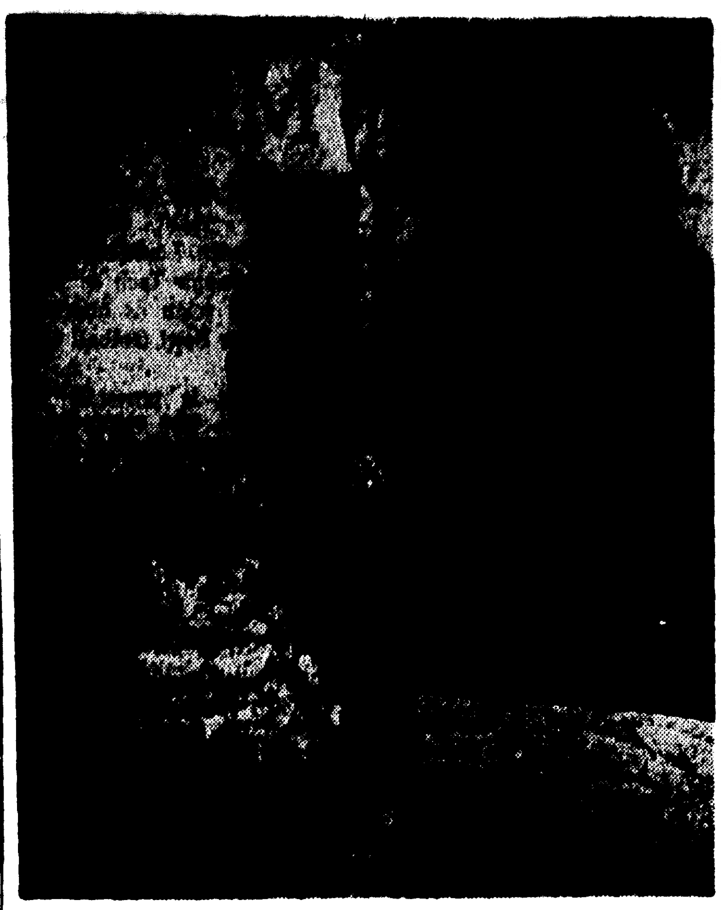
FERRIDAY (Special) — Bids opened by the Gravity Drainage District No. 2 of Tensas Parish, Newellton, for construction of drainage canals and clearing and snagging and Gravity, resulted in Joe E. Freund, Inc., contractors, of Vidalia, being low and only bidder at $93,395.

Bids were taken under advisement. The project consists of 473,150 cubic yards, channel excavation, 66.78 acres of clearing and snagging and approximately 22,700 lineal feet removal and replacement of fencing.



MR. AND MRS J. W. Frost recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house at their home in Downsville, where they have resided since their marriage 50 years ago in Ruston. The couple has nine children, 24 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren, all of whom were present for the occasion.

Sunset Strip Star Talks Of Quitting

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The words were familiar. So were the surroundings. But the fact was different.

The fact was the handsome one belonging to Efrem Zimbalist Jr. He had a sad look as he remarked: "I think I will quit the business."

Zimbalist was following a grand tradition. Actors have been rebelling at Warner Brothers since the golden days of Errol Flynn, Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, etc., etc.

These stars have been followed in latter days by such recalcitrant TV cowpokes as James Garner, Clint Walker, Wayde Preston, etc. ,etc.

Zimbalist is the first of the TV sleuths to rebel. He is Stu Bailey, leader of the "77 Sunset Strip" show that has launched a mess of other private eye programs. Now the leader wants to quit.

"But I can't go off to Bennington College," he said with a small grin. "Diane Varsi has already done that."

Actors often talk about quitting; few do. So why should we place any credence in the Zimbalist report? Because he did quit once before. That was after the death of his first wife.

"I was out of acting for five years," he said. "I did nothing for the first year and a half. Then I studied and did some teaching at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia (where his famed father has taught music). I came back to acting because I missed the companionship and sociability of the entertainment world."

His return to acting brought him what he hadn't enjoyed before: success. He has a steady job with the TV show and sometimes does movies, such as the current "Chapman Report." Most actors yearn for steady work all their lives and never find it. So why is Efrem unhappy?

"A job like this should pay off in one of two ways: Satisfaction or money," he explained. "The money is not great, and there is no satisfaction."

Zimbalist recently broke up again with his wife Stephanie—"apparently for the last time; at least it's in the hands of our lawyers." I asked him if the split had anything to do with his discontent with his lot. "Not particularly," he said.

TOWN AND COUNTRY PROGRESS depends upon total area development. The visionary and pioneer area coverage programs of Louisiana's 13 member-owned electric co-ops have made it possible to live, work, play and do business anywhere.

Louisiana lost 25,554 farms during the past 5 years, or about 100,000 producers, workers and consumers of great importance to mainstreet business. Think how staggering this really would have been if electric co-op's service hadn't enabled an influx of urban and city people and business into rural areas.

And, just try to imagine the mess the entire economy would be in today if privately-owned electric co-ops hadn't raised the rural electrification level from less than 2% in 1938 to 99% area coverage today!

Fewer farmers are going to have to produce more at lower costs, if prices are to be stabilized. This calls for more electric power, greater investments by the cooperatives if a wholesome population balance is to be maintained . . . if total economic development is to continue for the benefit of Town and Country.

If this is to be accomplished, then the visionary electric co-ops must be assured of territorial integrity and freedom from line duplications and invasions . . . BY FAIR AND JUST LEGISLATION, IF NECESSARY.

Electric Co-ops are the only way ALL rural people can have electricity at rates ALL can afford. Think what this means to the overall economy . . . to the progress of Town and Country!

Just what Western calculations were during the hours of that night cannot be learned. But officials now believe that had the American, British and French garrisons been ordered to destroy the wall, the East Germans and Soviets would have invaded.

The handful of Western troops, tanks and police would quickly have been swallowed up by the much larger Communist forces. With Berlin lying deep inside Communist-controlled East Germany, reinforcement of the Western forces in time would have been impossible.

Many West Berliners argue now that the mere presence of Allied tanks along the border during those early hours of Aug. 13 would have been sufficient to prevent construction of the wall. Those West Germans who did see it happen could do nothing.

A West Berlin policeman on duty that night at the Oberbaum Bridge over the Spree Barge Canal, where it forms the border in Neukoelln District, told what it was like:

"It seemed to me that the fellows who had to build the wall didn't want to do so, and would have jumped at a chance to get away.

"But across the bridge, lined up along the banks of the canal that night, were nine Communist tanks.

"On this side of the bridge was just me. I was armed with a blackjack. The guys building the wall really had no choice. And neither did I."

Police Hope Forger Uses Volume Bought

RUSTON (Special) — Ruston Police hope that a check forger who passed a worthless check at Taylor's Book Store here makes use of the volume he bought when he cashed the worthless paper.

The. 27-year-old man with a crewcut bought a Bible, had a name engraved on it, and paid for it with a fake payroll check made out on Midland Construction, Inc., against First National Bank of Little Rock.

City police investigating the forgery were told by state police that the man who passed it was probably one of a quartet of brothers who apparently work in the forgery business together.

Freund Bids Low On Job

Bids were taken under advisement. The project consists of 473,150 cubic yards, channel excavation, 66.78 acres of clearing and snagging and approximately 22,700 lineal feet removal and replacement of fencing.

MR. AND MRS J. W. Frost recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house at their home in Downsville, where they have resided since their marriage 50 years ago in Ruston. The couple has nine children, 24 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren, all of whom were present for the occasion.

Sunset Strip Star Talks Of Quitting

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The words were familiar. So were the surroundings. But the fact was different.

The fact was the handsome one belonging to Efrem Zimbalist Jr. He had a sad look as he remarked: "I think I will quit the business."

Zimbalist was following a grand tradition. Actors have been rebelling at Warner Brothers since the golden days of Errol Flynn, Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, etc., etc.

These stars have been followed in latter days by such recalcitrant TV cowpokes as James Garner, Clint Walker, Wayde Preston, etc. ,etc.

Zimbalist is the first of the TV sleuths to rebel. He is Stu Bailey, leader of the "77 Sunset Strip" show that has launched a mess of other private eye programs. Now the leader wants to quit.

"But I can't go off to Bennington College," he said with a small grin. "Diane Varsi has already done that."

Actors often talk about quitting; few do. So why should we place any credence in the Zimbalist report? Because he did quit once before. That was after the death of his first wife.

"I was out of acting for five years," he said. "I did nothing for the first year and a half. Then I studied and did some teaching at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia (where his famed father has taught music). I came back to acting because I missed the companionship and sociability of the entertainment world."

His return to acting brought him what he hadn't enjoyed before: success. He has a steady job with the TV show and sometimes does movies, such as the current "Chapman Report." Most actors yearn for steady work all their lives and never find it. So why is Efrem unhappy?

"A job like this should pay off in one of two ways: Satisfaction or money," he explained. "The money is not great, and there is no satisfaction."

Zimbalist recently broke up again with his wife Stephanie—"apparently for the last time; at least it's in the hands of our lawyers." I asked him if the split had anything to do with his discontent with his lot. "Not particularly," he said.

TOWN AND COUNTRY PROGRESS depends upon total area development. The visionary and pioneer area coverage programs of Louisiana's 13 member-owned electric co-ops have made it possible to live, work, play and do business anywhere.

Louisiana lost 25,554 farms during the past 5 years, or about 100,000 producers, workers and consumers of great importance to mainstreet business. Think how staggering this really would have been if electric co-op's service hadn't enabled an influx of urban and city people and business into rural areas.

And, just try to imagine the mess the entire economy would be in today if privately-owned electric co-ops hadn't raised the rural electrification level from less than 2% in 1938 to 99% area coverage today!

Fewer farmers are going to have to produce more at lower costs, if prices are to be stabilized. This calls for more electric power, greater investments by the cooperatives if a wholesome population balance is to be maintained . . . if total economic development is to continue for the benefit of Town and Country.

If this is to be accomplished, then the visionary electric co-ops must be assured of territorial integrity and freedom from line duplications and invasions . . . BY FAIR AND JUST LEGISLATION, IF NECESSARY.

Electric Co-ops are the only way ALL rural people can have electricity at rates ALL can afford. Think what this means to the overall economy . . . to the progress of Town and Country!

N.O. Integration Front Peaceful

By DAVID ZINMAN

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans ended the first month of its second year of school integration Saturday with peace reigning, a year-long boycott smashed and overall attendance rising at six desegregated schools.

Propsects are good that enrollment will continue increasing at the six schools, Supt. O. Perry Walker said. Twelve Negroes have broken century-old segregation barriers.

Crowds picketed and teen-agers rioted last year following integration here of two elementary schools — the first in Louisiana. This year calm prevailed when four more New Orleans schools were desegregated Sept. 7.

School officials saw these factors chiefly responsible for the changed atmosphere:

(1) A no-nonsense police plan in contrast to what some quarters charged were "timid and half-hearted measures" a year ago.

(2) Community realization that a fiery state legislature lacked power to preserve segregation.

(3) Examples of quiet desegregation at Atlanta and Dallas.

(4) Publicizing names of integrated schools in advance so parents could make plans to send their children to private schools if they wished.

Still, bitterness remains among hard - core segregationists here. Despite the city's outward compliance with U.S. Court ordered segregation, they feel no more disposed to accepting integration.

Total white attendance has fallen off more than one-half at the integrated schools from pre-integration enrollment.

Nevertheless, the first month of school has seen attendance climb 20 per cent.

At McDonogh No. 19—where a white boycott began after three Negroes attended Nov. 14, 1960—nine white children are now enrolled. The boycott ended when school started last month.

Most of McDonogh's 500 white children have transferred to segregated schools in adjoining St. Bernard Parish. New Orleans School Board President Louis Riecke Sr. thinks many may return if a government suit to block the exodus is successful.

This year white attendance swelled from 16 when school started to 66 at the close of the first month.

Two Frantz mothers wrote letters to other parents to persuade them to return their children. School board vice president Theodore Shepard said he expects Frantz attendance to rise to 100 this month and to 300 by the end of the year.

Two new integrated schools showed jumped in attendance the first month. In the other two newly desegregated schools, enrollment dropped slightly.

McDonogh No. 11 increased fro 175 the first day to 251 at the end of the first month. Robert Lusher from 206 to 257, while Andrew Wilson dropped from 356 to 352 and Judah Benjamin from 83 to 76.

Judges Picked For Lincoln Parish Fair

RUSTON (Special) — With the Lincoln parish fair on tap this week, Oct. 9 - 13, county agent F. O. LeVasseur has listed names of judges and given details of the Junior Livestock sale, a fair highlight.

Nolan Causey, county agent of Claiborne parish, will judge beef cattle at 1:30 p.m. Friday. W. C. Abbott, Jackson Parish county agent, will judge dairy cattle at 9 a.m. Friday.

Glenn Clark of the animal industry department of Louisiana Tech will judge swine and lambs at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Vernon Lay, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce agriculture committee, is in charge of the sales committee for the Junior Livestock Sale to be held on Thursday night in connection with the fair.

Always a highlight of fair time at Ruston, the sale gives community leaders the opportunity to show their appreciation to young people that are using their spare time to produce, said LeVasseur.

"It also gives them an opportunity to show their appreciation for the four-million dollar agriculture industry in the parish," LeVasseur continued. "Every business establishment shares in this income either directly or indirectly."

SHARON BROWN of Minden, La., the reigning Miss U.S.A., will be Queen of the 1962 Sugar Bowl football classic in New Orleans, Jan. 1, 1962, the New Orleans Mid Winter Sports Association announced. ## Wealthy Pair Merge Chains

LONDON (AP) — Two wealthy businessmen announced Saturday the merger of their many enterprises into a vast complex of luxury restaurants, dance halls and bingo parlors worth an estimated $56 million.

One Italian-born Charles Forte, parlayed a milk bar into a string of 150 restaurants during his 27-year career. He also caters to airports and a chain of tea shops.

Forte's new partner, Carl Heinmann, who came from Denmark in 1924, operates the Mecca chain of 70 restaurants and 40 ballrooms. Forte, 52, claims to have gotten his start with "a few coins" of capital while Heinmann, 64, says he arrived in England with about $2.

Teachers Face Pay Shortages In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)— State Auditor William D. Neal said Saturday that Mississippi school teachers face a shortage of Christmas money unless finances perk up.

Neal said his office was forced to cut in half the quarterly allocation for teacher salaries because the state treasury was very low.

Neal said only enough money to pay teacher salaries through Nov. 15 was advanced to the public schools.

The quarterly allocation of school funds which was scheduled to be sent out amounted to $15 million but Neal said the cash balance on hand Sept. 30 for all state spending amounted to only slightly more than $11 million.

Accident Fails To Mar Plans Of Young Girl

CHARLESTOWN, N.H. (AP)— Nothing stops a 17-year-old girl who has her heart set on going to a high school dance.

A few hours before the dance Friday night, Rebecca Olden lost control of her father's car and it plunged over a 50-foot embankment, turned over several times and landed on all four wheels.

Unscratched and undaunted, Rebecca managed to get the vehicle back on the road and drove it home.

When she arrived at the dance, Rebecca wondered what the fuss was about.

"All I did," she explained, "was try to pass another car, hit a guard post and rolled over a little old embankment. It was no problem."

The car damage was estimated at $700.

Jury Asks Okay On Bond Issue

OAK GROVE (Special) — The West Carroll police jury has passed a resolution asking approval of the state bond and tax board for a $25,000 bond issue for the purpose of remodeling and adding a wing to the present court house.

"The need for storage space for land records, court records and other legal instruments is critical," H. E. Philley, president of the police jury, ponited out.

A sketch of the proposed new wing wes presented to the jury by Beuford G. Jacka, West Monroe architect. The new wing would be 70 by 50 feet added to the east side of the present courthouse and would be two stories.

It would house a new reocrd storage room, clerk's office, sheriff's office, and one additional office, and rest rooms downstaris, while the upper floor would house offices for the judge, district attorney, petit jury, grand jury, rest rooms and one additional office.

Cost of the new wing was estimated at $190,000 to $200,000. It would be centrally air conditioned and heated.

Remodeling of the present courthouse would include sandblasting and waterproofing the exterior, refinishing the interior, remodeling of the courtroom, with installation of an acoustical ceiling. Funds for the furnishings and equipment of the new wing would be included in the bond issue. Philley said that the jury feels the bond issue could be financed either by approximately a two-mill tax for 20 to 30 years, or about three mills for either 10 or 15 years.

No date has been set by the police jury for the calling of an election. Since West Carroll has one of the lowest bonded debts of any parish in the state approval of the state bond and tax board is expected as a matter of routine.

When she arrived at the dance, Rebecca wondered what the fuss was about.

"All I did," she explained, "was try to pass another car, hit a guard post and rolled over a little old embankment. It was no problem."

The car damage was estimated at $700.

Jury Asks Okay On Bond Issue

OAK GROVE (Special) — The West Carroll police jury has passed a resolution asking approval of the state bond and tax board for a $25,000 bond issue for the purpose of remodeling and adding a wing to the present court house.

"The need for storage space for land records, court records and other legal instruments is critical," H. E. Philley, president of the police jury, ponited out.

A sketch of the proposed new wing wes presented to the jury by Beuford G. Jacka, West Monroe architect. The new wing would be 70 by 50 feet added to the east side of the present courthouse and would be two stories.

It would house a new reocrd storage room, clerk's office, sheriff's office, and one additional office, and rest rooms downstaris, while the upper floor would house offices for the judge, district attorney, petit jury, grand jury, rest rooms and one additional office.

Cost of the new wing was estimated at $190,000 to $200,000. It would be centrally air conditioned and heated.

Remodeling of the present courthouse would include sandblasting and waterproofing the exterior. refinishing the interior, remodeling of the courtroom, with installation of an acoustical ceiling. Funds for the furnishings and equipment of the new wing would be included in the bond issue. Philley said that the jury feels the bond issue could be financed either by approximately a two-mill tax for 20 to 30 years, or about three mills for either 10 or 15 years.

No date has been set by the police jury for the calling of an election. Since West Carroll has one of the lowest bonded debts of any parish in the state approval of the state bond and tax board is expected as a matter of routine.

'Neath The Oaks, Art Is Found

MOSS-DRAPED trees and artwork provide the setting here as a group views exhibits at the Caldwell Parish Library Art Festival, scheduled this year for Saturday.

COLUMBIA (Special) — Where the rolling pine hills of north Louisiana meet the flatlands of the Ouachita River Valley, a little town with a riverboat history is forging a reputation as the country art capitol of the state.

Columbia, some 30 miles south of Monroe, on the scenic Ouachita, each year puts on an art festival that draws exhibitors and visitors from throughout the state.

The sixth annual show is scheduled Saturday, Oct. 14, at the Community Center. It is recognized as the largest rural art festival in the state.

The town, which the art festival promoters call "a little city of happy homes on the Ouachita," swells to more than twice its population about this time of year as the countryfolk and cityfolk alike are drawn to the art exhibits hung from lines stretching from oak tree to oak tree.

They come by bus, boat and automobile, dressed in festive costumes of yesteryear. This year, with a Civil War Centennial theme, an Old South air will pervade the surroundings.

The festival is a brainchild of Mrs. O. N. "Jennie" Reynolds, a Caldwell Parish Library Board member who was convinced that "art is for everyone."

She said she got the idea for the country festival while visiting an art workshop in 1955 at Northwestern State College.

"I got an idea," she said, "the program should be put on in an unusual place."

So the next year, some 1,000 persons came to view 500 pieces of art in and around the community center. Since that time, the festival has grown to an extent that last year approximately 3,000 persons turned out to see not only art work, but ceramics, sculpture, pottery, needlework, poets, lecturers and noted personalities.

The attraction of the annual festival was so strong on Mrs. Katherine Arnold, of Hope, Ark., that she secured the job as librarian at the Caldwell Parish Library and is an avid backer of festival and library projects.

There is no single outstanding name on this year's agenda as there have been in the past.

"Some of the important people that we've had as guests were so surprised at the scope of the festival, they were actually taken aback, and admitted they had not done extensive preparation," Mrs. Reynolds said.

"This year we're featuring people in this and other sections of the state who are not only talented but who have come to recognize that a good showing here is important to them."

"Competition, art festival officials "point out," is not the idea of the show. It's the joy of bringing culture to people who love it, and these people in our section of the state do."

The event is strictly an informal affair, and the exhibitors and lecturers receive no pay. Ribbons are awarded, but strictly on individual work's merits, not in competition with others.

The festival has had an awakening effect on culture in the entire north section of the state, with art exhibits springing up at parish fairs and libraries.

The Ouachita, acclaimed as America's second most beautiful river, once provided transportation for back-country merchants and fur trappers. Later, steamboats, in times of high water, plowed the waters up from the Mississippi to the area.

The riverboat days are gone for Columbia. The area has been tamed, and artists paint where once hunters stalked the wild animal for food. This is the setting for the Sixth Annual Caldwell Parish Library Art Festival.

JFK Names Chairman Of Commission

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP)—President Kennedy Saturday designated Thomas E. Stakem of Arlington, Va., chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission.

Kennedy did this in giving recess appointments to Stakem and three others he had nominated to membership on the commission.

The nominations failed to get Senate approval before Congress adjourned. The recess appointments will allow the commissioners to serve and draw their pay until the Senate can act on the nominations after Congress convenes in January.

The other three commissioners are John Harlee of Washington, D. C.; John S. Patterson of Bethesda, Md., and Ashton Barrett of Biloxi, Miss.

Kennedy also gave a recess appointment to Adrian S. Fisher of Washington as deputy director of the U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

The resignation of James T. Pyle as deputy administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency was accepted effective Nov. 3. Pyle was a holdover from the Eisenhower administration.

Pyle told Kennedy it was an honor to have served in two administrations and that he found it necessary to resign for "reasons of a personal, financial nature." He said he was affiliating with a private business company, which he did not name in his letter of resignation.

In a reply, Kennedy thanked Pyle for "your fine public service."

N.O. Schools Are Accused Of 'Seceding'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A Citizens Council unit in New Orleans Friday accused the Orleans Parish School Board of seceding from the state of Louisiana and urged the state not to approve school board bond issues.

The Algiers Citizens Council sent a telegram to Gov. Jimmie Davis calling upon him and the state bond and tax board to ignore Orleans school board requests for aid.

City property owners approved a $10 million school bond issue last year, but the board is not able to sell bonds without approval from the state bond and tax board.

In its telegram the Citizens Council said "the Orleans parish school board in effect seceded from the state of Louisiana and used the federal courts to nullify all segregation laws passed by our duly elected Legislature."

The state tax board has held up approval of the city school bond issue since the city and state began feuding over the desegregation of public schools.

Representatives from neighboring Texas, Mississippi, Alabama and Arkansas are being invited, Rogers added.

Approximately 250 delegates are expected to attend.

While the committee is charged with reporting back to the legislature," Rogers said, "the seminar is one of the few educational functions we can carry on under the legislative mandate.

The seminar is sponsored by the committee with the help of limited funds. It is of paramount importance that we gain the understanding and cooperation of law enforcement officers."

Seminar speakers include Fred C. Schwarz and his topic, "The plan of the Communist Party for the conquest of the United States," and W. P. Stube Jr. who will talk on "why internal security."

Schwarz, who addressed the Louisiana Legislature last summer, is president of the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade and Strube is vice president.

Others are Alexander Sas-Jaworsky, Abbeville, talking on "techniques of Communist ideological infiltration," and Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion, speaking on "legal protection of internal security."

Talks closed to the public will be made by police Chief James C. Kelly of Monroe, Lt. W. B. Painter of the Alabama public safety department; Col. Frederick Alexander Jr., U.S. Army, scheduled to become the committee staff director; and Rogers.

Rogers said he wanted to reiterate "for public benefit that our committee is determined to follow only a constructive policy, with the strictest legal control, in carrying out our legislative mandate. This seminar is a sound step in that direction."

Soviets Report Firing Of New Type Rocket

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union Saturday launched what was described as a new type rocket into the Pacific, Moscow radio reported.

The broadcast gave no other details.

The firing, latest in a series of Soviet rocket shoots into the Pacific, follows one announced on Sept. 15. Moscow also described the rocket fired then as a new type.

The Sept. 15 rocket was reported to have traveled more than 7,40 miles from its launching site and landed within 1,000 yards of its target.

The current rocket testing program began in mid-September and is scheduled to last until Oct. 15. The Russians have not disclosed the launching sites, but they are believed located near the Caspian Sea in the south central portion of the Soviet Union.

South Locks Are Advocated

JONESVILLE (Special) — The Jonesville Junior Guild adopted a resolution urging that the location of the locks in the proposed 9-foot channel on the Ouachita-Black Rivers be constructed at Mile 25 south of Jonesville at a 34 MSL elevation.

"The location south of Jonesville at the 34 MSL elevation would provide a 26,000 acre lake free along with hundreds of miles of navigable streams," a member said. "It will also provide hundreds of miles of shoreline for campsites making for better boating skiing, fishing and other recreational activities," they said.

Accidents Kill Five Persons On Alabama Roads

By United Press International

Traffic accidents killed at least five persons in Alabama so far during the weekend, a United Press International survey showed Saturday.

The count began at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Sunday.

Robert E. Crawford, 30, of Greensboro, Ala., died in a head-on collision Saturday 4.2 miles east of Demopolis. The highway patrol said Crawford was the driver of one of the cars which collided on U. S. Highway 80 in Marengo County.

Two young Negroes were killed in Choctaw County when their speeding car ran off the road and struck a culvert. The highway patrol identified the victims as James Ridgeway, 20, and Lee Edward Yates, 15, both of Levaca. The accident occurred on county highway 32 about a half mile south of Levaca.

Thomas W. Swindle, 24-year-old University of Alabama law student, was fatally injured when his sports car failed to make a curve and overturned on a county road just outside Tuscaloosa.

Clem N. Patten, 72, of McGehee, Ark., was near Huntsville when his car collided with a truck. The patrol said Patten's car had pulled off the wrong side of the highway and the accident occurred as he pulled back onto the road. Patten's grandchildren, Diane Carter, 14, and Thomas Carter, 8, received slight injuries in the collision.

Two Persons Are Booked By Monroe Police

Two persons were booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages by Monroe police late Friday night and early Saturday.

Apprehended at Ouachita and South Second streets around 11:45 p.m. was John Arnold Clark, 24, of Ruston, who was booked with DWI, reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle without a valid state driver's license in his possession.

Police booked James F. Middleton, 38, of 711 Jackson St., for DWI and reckless driving at 4:18 a.m. He was apprehended at 3300 Jackson Street and held under a $435 bond.

Clark's bond was set at $500. Both men will be tried in municipal court.

Negro Suffers Gunshot Wound While Hunting

An 18-year-old Negro youth suffered an accidental gunshot wound in the arm yesterday, according to the Monroe police, marking the first hunting accident of the season for this area.

The youth, identified as Willie Quinn of 1514 State St., Monroe, was treated at E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital for a bullet wound in the right arm. The wound was inflicted by a .12 gauge, single barrel shotgun, according to officers.

According to reports, he was accidentally shot sometime before 3 p.m. in the Selman Field area by a 16-year-old Negro companion identified as Robert Tugler, 704 South 18th St., as they were rabbit hunting.

The incident is still under investigation by police, although the shooting has been ruled accidental.

Two Negro Infants Die In Home Fire

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — Fire destroyed a field hand's home Friday on the Wildwood plantation near Greenwood, burning two Negro infants to death.

The children, along with two other youths, were being watched by an unidentified 12-year-old Negro boy, while the parents worked in cotton fields.

The older boy managed to rescue two of the children before fire destroyed the residence, which was the home of Louis Davis.

Four Area Road Jobs Are Cited

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana Highway Director Ray W. Burgess Saturday announced that bids will be received Oct. 18 on four road projects in northeast Louisiana.

The projects are in Caldwell, East Carroll and Madison parishes.

Burgess said one East Carroll project is on a two-mile stretch of Tyroen - Wainwright highway (State Route 596), with work beginning approximately two miles south of Brunett, proceeding north to Brunett.

Construction plans call for scarifying and compacting existing subbase and bituminous surfacing 20 feet wide. Project is expected to be completed in two months.

The other East Carroll project is for two miles on the Waverly-Monticello highway (State Route 577).

The project begins at the westerly junction of State routes 877 and 577, then proceeds east and north.

Plans call for scarifying and compacting existing subbase and application of bituminous surfacing 20 feet wide. Time expected for the project is two months.

The Caldwell project, for 4.1 miles on the Olla-Sikes highway (State Route 127) begins at the end of the existing surfacing at Castor Creek, then proceeds northwest to the Winn Parish line.

Construction calls for grading, drainage structures, aggregate type or soil cement base course, bituminous surfacing 20 feet wide and two concrete slab span bridges with 24-feet clear roadway with lenghts of 60 feet and 100 feet.

Expected time of construction will be one year after the contract is awarded.

The Madison Parish project involves a 8.8 mile span on the Alligator Bayou - Tallulah highway (US 65). Thepproject begins on a new location of the highway at Alligator Bayou, then proceeds north along a new location a distance of 8.8 miles to the Illinois Central Railroad in Tallulah.

Construction plans call for grading, drainage structures, concrete pavement 24 feet wide with hot mix overlay and one 100-foot concrete slab span bridge with a 28-foot clear roadway.

Estimated time of construction is 21 months.

James Thurber Still Critical

NEW YORK (AP) — Humorist James Thurber remained in critical condition Saturday. A blood clot was removed from his brain Wednesday.

A friend noted there had been "a regression in Thurber's condition." A Doctors Hospital spokesman said Thurber spent a "fair night" but he "certainly isn't in good shape."

Handicapped Get

Training, Jobs

By RICHARD TYLER
Staff Writer

Recent figures indicate that three out of every 100 persons in the United States today suffer from some degree of mental retardation, with the totals continually mounting. In a population now approaching 180 millions, almost half a million at this moment, if tested, would be classified as of sub-normal intelligence.

And, in Ouachita Prish alone, according to MAVTEC Director Joe Sanders, there live something like 2,000 such persons. It is the business of Sanders and his staff of three at the new Monroe Area Vocational Training and Evaluation Center to find these people and, wherever possible, to help them. Neither task is always easy.

CHRONIC

Characteristically, mental retardation is a chronic condition, usually dating from birth or early childhood, showing up in impaired intellectual capacity as measured by standardized tests. Whereas the so-called normal IQ may range from around 90 upwards, anything from 0 to 89 necessarily indicates retardation. Causes for such arrested or seriously impaired development normally result from brain damage, either generically, at birth or later in life.

"The point we try to get across, however," says Sanders, "is that the retardate, generally, cannot be set aside as useless, both to himself or his society."

MAVTEC works exclusively with the "employables," or as Sanders prefers, "the slow learners."

"These people," he says, "in many cases, are virtually indistinguishable from you and me in appearance or bearing."

BRIGHTER VIEW

The mildly retarded, the employables, fortunately comprise approximately 75 per cent of the total population of the retarded in this country. They are the ones who can be taught to care for themselves, to earn their way in life, and eventually with training to settle into their niche in society. They also are the work of MAVTEC, opened April 17 by the Division of Vocational Rehabiiltation of the State Department of Education to serve a 12-parish area of the Fifth Congressional District.

"We're not fooling ourselves, nor are we trying to fool the people we work with," says Sanders. "We know as they do that the odds against their ever holding down a high-paying, heavily responsible job are very nearly insurmountable.

"Still with the proper training and the effort required to find for them the place in the community where they can really belong, they can, in most of the cases we deal with, become worthwhile citizens and real contributors."

LEGISLATIVE ACT

MAVTEC grew out of Act 561, passed by the Louisaina Legislature in June of 1960. Through it, funds were appropriated for distribution among three agencies, one of them the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, operating here through MAVTEC. Similar in nautre, two other facilities now exist, one in Alexandria (the John Eskew Training Center, opened in June, 1960), and the Caddo-Bossier Assocation for Retarded Children in Shreveport.

The development of MAVTEC was much abetted, officials of the organization report, by cooperation received here from members and officers of the Civitans Club and the Ouachita Parish Association for Retarded Children, an agency of the United Givers Fund.

After once settling with State Director of Vocational Rehabilitation S. W. Hendrix upon the need for a center at Monroe, the group went to work in securing needed facilities. A former Air Force temporary building at Selman Field, about 20 years old and except for the northeast wing not used in several years, had been obtained in advance of any commitment, through the Ouachita Prish School Board, as an inducement to bring the center here.

VOLUNTEER LABOR

Now, with their hopes realized, began a period of nearly six months work within the structure itself, using almost entirely volunteer labor from one or another of the organizations. A complete inside paint job was finished, the staff hired, equipment ordered and lesson plans developed.

As envisioned, the work of MAVTEC would coincide closely with that of 10 special education classes set up sometime earlier in the schools of Ouachita Parish to handle the "educable" retarded of school age. While by no means designed to function solely in that area, MAVTEC certainly was to become the next logical adjunct in the training of those persons, they having once attained the maximum of their potential at school.

Overall, any retarded person, male or female over 15 years of age, living within the scope of the 12 parishes served by the center are eligible to attend it. They come principally through referral by one or another of five field counselors working prescribed areas out of the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation in Monroe.

JOE SANDERS, MAVTEC director

These men and the parishes assigned them are as follows: Theron Dupree (Jackson, Caldwell and Franklin), James McDuffie (Morehouse, East Carroll and West Carroll), Tommy Wrenn (Richland, Madison and Tensas), V. B. Dunn (Ouachita Parish, east of the Ouachita River), and N .R. Golson (Union, Lincoln and Ouachita Parish, west of the Ouachita River).

REFERRALS

In cases where normal channels are impractical, referrals also may be made through the staff at the center, members of the Association for Retarded Children, or local school board members.

Once approved by the MAVTEC admissions committee, a body of community volunteers under the chairmanship of Dr. Lavelle Haynes, special assistances may be obtained in securing suitable board and lodgings for prospective students through the Selman Field office. In cases of extreme hardship, all or part of the expenses entailed in attendance may be drawn from state funds.

Decisions on admittance, however, originate solely with Dr. Haynes and committee members, Sanders, Leach, Golson and Mrs. Lurline Wade, whose responsibility it is to weigh the factors of age, employment history, if any, social and emotional considerations, physical health and general intellectual levels.

In operation, the center's administration is in the hands of an executive committee, drawn from the ranks of an earlier steering committee set up by the ARC and Civitans soon after the idea for the project was born. It was recognized that many aspects of the program could not be operated legally by the resident OVR staff (for example, since the building is neither owned nor rented by the OVR, it's maintenance cannot be an agency responsibility).

Appointed to this executive committee were Jimmy Herren as chairman; N. R. Golson, as vice chairman; Mrs. Alex Lea, secretary, and W. P. Heard, treasurer. Others on the steering committee include Ralph Morgan, Billy Babb, Dr. Haynes, Mrs. Chris Hutts, Eris Ginn, Mrs. Wade, Eugene Smith, J. J. Barnes, Mrs. Tina Clark, and Sanders.

Broadly considered, treatment at MAVTEC lays heavy emphasis in three areas — evaluation, training and social adjustment. First, since it is felt essential to the effective planning, with the trainee, for a vocation to gain an accurate appraisal of his individual strengths (abilities) and weaknesses, an eight-week period is first set aside for an evaluation of them.

TASKS SET

During this time, pre-determined tasks are set, such as ceramics, wood work and leather craft (for men), as an aid to assaying manual dexterity. The ability to follow a job sequence, to follow instructions and take supervision, and the ability to successfully grasp a new job, all are carefully studied by staff evaluator Tyrrell Leach.

As well, during the student's 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. day, such academic fundamentals as weights and measures, making change, telling time, reading, writing and basic arithmetic are stressed.

The three final weeks of evaluation are held for an examination of the individual in a job setting, one of the most critical factors in the formation of a framework for future training, if required. Work is secured through local business people.

"Here, as nowhere else," says Sanders, "the drawbacks and the capacities begin to take on sharp definition."

"But," adds the director, "we are as much interested in the man's attitude toward work as we are in his ability to perform the specific task. While he may be unable to master the job in a short time, his willingness to work, attitude toward supervision and ability to get along with others gives us a good picture of his overall abilities."

STUDY

Study and analysis of the individual's personal and social adjustment to his environment are constant throughout the program. In many cases, emotional conflicts stemming from such a handicap in a sensitive personality can be dulled if not overcome.

For evaluation, any one of three avenues present themselves. Most hopefully, the individual may be placed directly into employment. Far more likely, however, in the light of experience thus far gained at the center, he will remain for an additional 16 weeks in training at MAVTEC. The middle road, continuation in on-the-job training, also is open.

Assuming the proper course to be further training at the center, says men's instructor Bob Tucker, "Training is exactly what they get — intensified training in one or more specific job areas."

For 13 of the 16 weeks, the trainee is drilled daily in the peculiar atmosphere of the work situation in which he will eventually find himself. The surroundings of a grocery store and a service station are closely simulated on the grounds of the school, equipped with meat scales, mock-up packages and cans and a full-sized grease rack. In the female training program, particular stress is applied along the line of domestic work. Cooking, sewing, laundering, serving and setting tables, and the like are included. Tutoring, under Mrs. Charles Tillman, is carried out in a setting to stir the heart of any woman — a huge, all electric kitchen, featuring, among other things, a washer, dryer, stove, refrigerator, and dish washer.

PERSONAL GROOMING

Tips and training in personal grooming account for a large part of the time, especially among the girls and women. Discussions covering job interviews and other specialized pre-employment problems also are brought into play at this time.

During the final three weeks of training, as was the case near the end of evaluation, trial jobs again are sought and the individual is checked out on-the-job in the post for which he seems best fitted. Here the interest of the clinician is confined mostly to the training value of the job rather than to the trainee's emotional adaptation to it.

The first complete class, a group of boys, wound up work at MAVTEC, September 29, having started with the beginning of the school, April 17. They finished evaluation June 9, and entered training almost immediately, June 12. The first girls entered evaluation July 5 and had reached training stages by August 28, where they will be training until Dec. 15.

PLACEMENT

Now, at the end of the training line for the boys, a group within the MAVTEC organization, called by its director "the very heart" of it, swings into action in earnest. This is the placement committee, made up entirely of unpaid volunteers from the outside as are the other structural units, whose business it is 'to get out and beat the bushes for permanent jobs."

They have functioned earlier in the sometimes equally difficult thrashing about for trial jobs. Their work now truly becomes the proof of the pudding.

Under chairman Ralph Morgan, they so far have attained fair success in finding the needed work, but, as Morgan himself says, "We're about to run out of friends." Most of the jobs produced have been through the medium of personal acquaintances of committeemen — the usual "man who knows a man" sort of thing.

Others on the committee are Mrs. Lea, Mrs. Billie Harrell, Miss Betty Swift, Mrs. Dixie Ware, A. C. Polk, Homer Lane, Bill Heard, Ed Carter, and Golson, Leach and Sanders.

Both Morgan and director Sanders concur in that the biggest problem facing the center is the one which most precisely measures the effectiveness of its work — that is, getting the people set on the job.

While they profess more than willingness to go over halfway in working with businessmen to situate the retardate, still they add, "If they would only make themselves and their needs known to us, arrangements of mutual benefit certainly could be made more easily."

Into Space

Crystal-Balling The Race

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — To Heinz Hermann Koelle, scientist, the immediate future is yesterday and the distant future is today's assignment.

In government parlance, this native of the once Free City of Danzig, "is responsible for the analysis, planning and design of advanced space vehicles and space transportation systems."

FIGURES OUT

In plain English, that's crystal-balling the space race. His point of departure is the present. He then figures out where the United States is going, how, when and at what cost.

He believes:

1. Large manned space stations in a 300-mile-high orbit will be feasible in 1968-69.

2. A permanent manned moon station will exist in 1970, a station which can be expanded into a lunar colony by 1975.

3. Manned planetary expeditions can start in 1972-74 with a view to the arrival of a 100-man expedition on Mars in 1980.

4. Without undue strain on the budget, the United States will be able to support the equivalent of 500 man-roundtrips to the moon in 1975 in addition to 5,000 man-roundtrips in low orbit.

5. Space flight costs will be so reduced that commercial, passenger-cargo space flights will be economically feasible between 1975 and 1980.

All these developments, said Koelle "will be witnessed by the middle-aged generation of today with today's younger generation taking part."

SWIFT

So incredibly swift have been the advances in the technology of flight that the life of a man born in 1900 may well span the beginning of aviation in 1903 to the beginning of solar system exploration.

Koelle does not say all these advances will be made inevitably within the time periods he mentions, nor that the United States will be first in acheivement. He merely says they are possible, considering technological developments.

He is acutely aware that the Soviet Union has a headstart in what is generally regarded as a two-nation space race.

"We will be in two years," he said, "where the Russians were last year."

Why? Without any attempt to assess blame, Koelle simply observed in an interview that "democracy is a low-risk operation. It always takes the cautious approach and makes needed decisions when absolutely sure the plans will work."

"It will not be easy to catch up with the Russians unless we are willing to muster our resources," Koelle added.

NEBULOUS

More often than not, Koelle has to operate in a somewhat nebulous field where he has to ask whether the end result will justify the enormous expenditure in money, brains and labor.

The best any man can do is to consider all the available facts and exercise critical judgment.

Koelle expressed his rationale thus: "If you spend $100 million annually to sustain a lunar base, there are scientic reasons. If you have to spend $1 billion, I doubt if it would be worthwhile."

Most top scientists here believe the moon will have a definite military potential as a base for military satellite and antisatellite operations.

The scientists here also believe that as man explores his solar system he will make new discoveries, find new sources of energy, develop metals unknown on earth and solve some of the medical mysteries of what makes man tick.

It is unlikely that man will travel beyond this solar system to the stars for perhaps a hundred years or more—or until such time as he discovers sources of power which will enable him to approach the speed of light—186,000 miles per second. The distances to the stars are too great for man to reach in a lifetime at present top speeds.

CONCLUSIONS

In arriving at his cost-relative-to-objective conclusions, Koelle functions in a sort of mathematical horror house where variables are seemingly infinite and depend upon such things as launching rates, types of vehicles and whether they are reusable, size of pay-load, appropriations, national goals and national resources.

Another handicap is that the nation has no plan for the long-range allocation of resources and no long-range goals except to reach the moon by 1970—and even this objective was not stated firmly until May 25 by President Kennedy.

Koelle therefore has to assume that the United States will find it desirable, even necessary, to achieve certain objectives in space over the next two decades, which is about as far ahead as he is looking right now.

Koelle was asked when the United States could expect to reach certain arbitrarily selected goals, such as the moon and Mars.

"First comes the decision," he replied. "When you give us an objective and tell us the resources, then these factors will determine the target date."

Each time Koelle calculates the future, he must relate what is technically possible to the availability of resources. The less money avaliable, the longer the time required to reach an objective.

The smallest program envisioned by Koelle calls for the spending of $24 billion from 1960 through 1970. The largest program will cost $43.8 billion over the same period.

COMPROMISE

Koelle's third program is a compromise costing about $32.5 billion over the next 10 years.

As something of a political realist, Koelle keeps the taxpayer in mind.

His maximum program assumes that the United States will continue to apportion the same percentage of national income tot he space program through 1970 as it does now.

This means that as national income increases, the space budget will likewise increase, but not the relative burden on the taxpayer.

The minimum program as outlined by Koelle does not in his opinion take into account a space race against the Soviet Union. In terms of relative accomplishment, Koelle believes adoption of the minimum program would insure a perpetual Soviet lead.

The compromise program, Koelle said, will give the United States a remote chance to overtake the Russians, whereas the maximum program is designed to overtake the Soviets, within a decade.

Koelle assumes the Russians are working hard to stay ahead and that the United States is blessed with no particular scientific superiority.

"They know their technology as well as we do," he said.

Now there is no doubt that space flight activities are enormously expensive though the per pound cost of launch vehicles is being reduced steadily as manufacturing techniques improve and more experience is acquired in simplifying design.

The airframe for the Navy's 40,000-pound thrust Vanguard missile cost $27,000 per pound of dead weight, exclusive of satellite payload, back in 1957. To manufacture the huge Saturn booster today costs about $5,000 per pound —about $8 million. Saturn's thrust is 1.5 million pounds.

The oil starts flowing next year from offshore drillings shared two-thirds by the British and one-third by the French. The inland field, combining British, French and American companies, will go into production as soon as tanker berths can be built, probably in 1963.

Handicapped Get

Training, Jobs

By RICHARD TYLER
Staff Writer

Recent figures indicate that three out of every 100 persons in the United States today suffer from some degree of mental retardation, with the totals continually mounting. In a population now approaching 180 millions, almost half a million at this moment, if tested, would be classified as of sub-normal intelligence.

And, in Ouachita Prish alone, according to MAVTEC Director Joe Sanders, there live something like 2,000 such persons. It is the business of Sanders and his staff of three at the new Monroe Area Vocational Training and Evaluation Center to find these people and, wherever possible, to help them. Neither task is always easy.

CHRONIC

Characteristically, mental retardation is a chronic condition, usually dating from birth or early childhood, showing up in impaired intellectual capacity as measured by standardized tests. Whereas the so-called normal IQ may range from around 90 upwards, anything from 0 to 89 necessarily indicates retardation. Causes for such arrested or seriously impaired development normally result from brain damage, either generically, at birth or later in life.

"The point we try to get across, however," says Sanders, "is that the retardate, generally, cannot be set aside as useless, both to himself or his society."

MAVTEC works exclusively with the "employables," or as Sanders prefers, "the slow learners."

"These people," he says, "In many cases, are virtually indistinguishable from you and me in appearance or bearing."

BRIGHTER VIEW

The mildly retarded, the employables, fortunately comprise approximately 75 per cent of the total population of the retarded in this country. They are the ones who can be taught to care for themselves, to earn their way in life, and eventually with training to settle into their niche in society. They also are the work of MAVTEC, opened April 17 by the Division of Vocational Rehabiiltation of the State Department of Education to serve a 12-parish area of the Fifth Congressional District.

"We're not fooling ourselves, nor are we trying to fool the people we work with," says Sanders. "We know as they do that the odds against their ever holding down a high-paying, heavily responsible job are very nearly insurmountable.

"Still with the proper training and the effort required to find for them the place in the community where they can really belong, they can, in most of the cases we deal with, become worthwhile citizens and real contributors."

LEGISLATIVE ACT

MAVTEC grew out of Act 561, passed by the Louisaina Legislature in June of 1960. Through it, funds were appropriated for distribution among three agencies, one of them the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, operating here through MAVTEC. Similar in nautre, two other facilities now exist, one in Alexandria (the John Eskew Training Center, opened in June, 1960), and the Caddo-Bossier Assocation for Retarded Children in Shreveport.

The development of MAVTEC was much abetted, officials of the organization report, by cooperation received here from members and officers of the Civitans Club and the Ouachita Parish Association for Retarded Children, an agency of the United Givers Fund.

After once settling with State Director of Vocational Rehabilitation S. W. Hendrix upon the need for a center at Monroe, the group went to work in securing needed facilities. A former Air Force temporary building at Selman Field, about 20 years old and except for the northeast wing not used in several years, had been obtained in advance of any commitment, through the Ouachita Prish School Board, as an inducement to bring the center here.

VOLUNTEER LABOR

Now, with their hopes realized, began a period of nearly six months work within the structure itself, using almost entirely volunteer labor from one or another of the organizations. A complete inside paint job was finished, the staff hired, equipment ordered and lesson plans developed.

As envisioned, the work of MAVTEC would coincide closely with that of 10 special education classes set up sometime earlier in the schools of Ouachita Parish to handle the "educable" retarded of school age. While by no means designed to function solely in that area, MAVTEC certainly was to become the next logical adjunct in the training of those persons, they having once attained the maximum of their potential at school.

Overall, any retarded person, male or female over 15 years of age, living within the scope of the 12 parishes served by the center are eligible to attend it. They come principally through referral by one or another of five field counselors working prescribed areas out of the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation in Monroe.

JOE SANDERS, MAVTEC director

These men and the parishes assigned them are as follows: Theron Dupree (Jackson, Caldwell and Franklin), James McDuffie (Morehouse, East Carroll and West Carroll), Tommy Wrenn (Richland, Madison and Tensas), V. B. Dunn (Ouachita Parish, east of the Ouachita River), and N .R. Golson (Union, Lincoln and Ouachita Parish, west of the Ouachita River).

REFERRALS

In cases where normal channels are impractical, referrals also may be made through the staff at the center, members of the Association for Retarded Children, or local school board members.

Once approved by the MAVTEC admissions committee, a body of community volunteers under the chairmanship of Dr. Lavelle Haynes, special assistances may be obtained in securing suitable board and lodgings for prospective students through the Selman Field office. In cases of extreme hardship, all or part of the expenses entailed in attendance may be drawn from state funds.

Decisions on admittance, however, originate solely with Dr. Haynes and committee members, Sanders, Leach, Golson and Mrs. Lurline Wade, whose responsibility it is to weigh the factors of age, employment history, if any, social and emotional considerations, physical health and general intellectual levels.

In operation, the center's administration is in the hands of an executive committee, drawn from the ranks of an earlier steering committee set up by the ARC and Civitans soon after the idea for the project was born. It was recognized that many aspects of the program could not be operated legally by the resident OVR staff (for example, since the building is neither owned nor rented by the OVR, it's maintenance cannot be an agency responsibility).

Appointed to this executive committee were Jimmy Herren as chairman; N. R. Golson, as vice chairman; Mrs. Alex Lea, secretary, and W. P. Heard, treasurer. Others on the steering committee include Ralph Morgan, Billy Babb, Dr. Haynes, Mrs. Chris Hutts, Eris Ginn, Mrs. Wade, Eugene Smith, J. J. Barnes, Mrs. Tina Clark, and Sanders.

Broadly considered, treatment at MAVTEC lays heavy emphasis in three areas — evaluation, training and social adjustment. First, since it is felt essential to the effective planning, with the trainee, for a vocation to gain an accurate appraisal of his individual strengths (abilities) and weaknesses, an eight-week period is first set aside for an evaluation of them.

TASKS SET

During this time, pre-determined tasks are set, such as ceramics, wood work and leather craft (for men), as an aid to assaying manual dexterity. The ability to follow a job sequence, to follow instructions and take supervision, and the ability to successfully grasp a new job, all are carefully studied by staff evaluator Tyrrell Leach.

As well, during the student's 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. day, such academic fundamentals as weights and measures, making change, telling time, reading, writing and basic arithmetic are stressed.

The three final weeks of evaluation are held for an examination of the individual in a job setting, one of the most critical factors in the formation of a framework for future training, if required. Work is secured through local business people.

"Here, as nowhere else," says Sanders, "the drawbacks and the capacities begin to take on sharp definition."

"But," adds the director, "we are as much interested in the man's attitude toward work as we are in his ability to perform the specific task. While he may be unable to master the job in a short time, his willingness to work, attitude toward supervision and ability to get along with others gives us a good picture of his overall abilities."

STUDY

Study and analysis of the individual's personal and social adjustment to his environment are constant throughout the program. In many cases, emotional conflicts stemming from such a handicap in a sensitive personality can be dulled if not overcome.

For evaluation, any one of three avenues present themselves. Most hopefully, the individual may be placed directly into employment. Far more likely, however, in the light of experience thus far gained at the center, he will remain for an additional 16 weeks in training at MAVTEC. The middle road, continuation in on-the-job training, also is open.

Assuming the proper course to be further training at the center, says men's instructor Bob Tucker, "Training is exactly what they get — intensified training in one or more specific job areas."

For 13 of the 16 weeks, the trainee is drilled daily in the peculiar atmosphere of the work situation in which he will eventually find himself. The surroundings of a grocery store and a service station are closely simulated on the grounds of the school, equipped with meat scales, mock-up packages and cans and a full-sized grease rack. In the female training program, particular stress is applied along the line of domestic work. Cooking, sewing, laundering, serving and setting tables, and the like are included. Tutoring, under Mrs. Charles Tillman, is carried out in a setting to stir the heart of any woman — a huge, all electric kitchen, featuring, among other things, a washer, dryer, stove, refrigerator, and dish washer.

PERSONAL GROOMING

Tips and training in personal grooming account for a large part of the time, especially among the girls and women. Discussions coving job interviews and other specialized pre-employment problems also are brought into play at this time.

During the final three weeks of training, as was the case near the end of evaluation, trial jobs again are sought and the individual is checked out on-the-job in the post for which he seems best fitted. Here the interest of the clinician is confined mostly to the training value of the job rather than to the trainee's emotional adaptation to it.

The first complete class, a group of boys, wound up work at MAVTEC, September 29, having started with the beginning of the school, April 17. They finished evaluation June 9, and entered training almost immediately, June 12. The first girls entered evaluation July 5 and had reached training stages by August 28, where they will be training until Dec. 15.

PLACEMENT

Now, at the end of the training line for the boys, a group within the MAVTEC organization, called by its director "the very heart" of it, swings into action in earnest. This is the placement committee, made up entirely of unpaid volunteers from the outside as are the other structural units, whose business it is 'to get out and beat the bushes for permanent jobs."

They have functioned earlier in the sometimes equally difficult thrashing about for trial jobs. Their work now truly becomes the proof of the pudding.

Under chairman Ralph Morgan, they so far have attained fair success in finding the needed work, but, as Morgan himself says, "We're about to run out of friends." Most of the jobs produced have been through the medium of personal acquaintances of committeemen — the usual "man who knows a man" sort of thing.

Others on the committee are Mrs. Lea, Mrs. Billie Harrell, Miss Betty Swift, Mrs. Dixie Ware, A. C. Polk, Homer Lane, Bill Heard, Ed Carter, and Golson, Leach and Sanders.

Both Morgan and director Sanders concur in that the biggest problem facing the center is the one which most precisely measures the effectiveness of its work — that is, getting the people set on the job.

While they profess more than willingness to go over halfway in working with businessmen to situate the retardate, still they add, "If they would only make themselves and their needs known to us, arrangements of mutual benefit certainly could be made more easily."

Crystal-Balling The Race

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — To Heinz Hermann Koelle, scientist, the immediate future is yesterday and the distant future is today's assignment.

In government parlance, this native of the once Free City of Danzig, "is responsible for the analysis, planning and design of advanced space vehicles and space transportation systems."

FIGURES OUT

In plain English, that's crystal-balling the space race. His point of departure is the present. He then figures out where the United States is going, how, when and at what cost.

He believes:

1. Large manned space stations in a 300-mile-high orbit will be feasible in 1968-69.

3. Manned planetary expeditions can start in 1972-74 with a view to the arrival of a 100-man expedition on Mars in 1980.

4. Without undue strain on the budget, the United States will be able to support the equivalent of 500 man-roundtrips to the moon in 1975 in addition to 5,000 man-roundtrips in low orbit.

5. Space flight costs will be so reduced that commercial, passenger-cargo space flights will be economically feasible between 1975 and 1980.

All these developments, said Koelle "will be witnessed by the middle-aged generation of today with today's younger generation taking part."

SWIFT

So incredibly swift have been the advances in the technology of flight that the life of a man born in 1900 may well span the beginning of aviation in 1903 to the beginning of solar system exploration.

Koelle does not say all these advances will be made inevitably within the time periods he mentions, nor that the United States will be first in acheivement. He merely says they are possible, considering technological developments.

He is acutely aware that the Soviet Union has a headstart in what is generally regarded as a two-nation space race.

"We will be in two years," he said, "where the Russians were last year."

Why? Without any attempt to assess blame, Koelle simply observed in an interview that "democracy is a low-risk operation. It always takes the cautious approach and makes needed decisions when absolutely sure the plans will work."

"It will not be easy to catch up with the Russians unless we are willing to muster our resources," Koelle added.

NEBULOUS

More often than not, Koelle has to operate in a somewhat nebulous field where he has to ask whether the end result will justify the enormous expenditure in money, brains and labor.

The best any man can do is to consider all the available facts and exercise critical judgment.

Koelle expressed his rationale thus: "If you spend $100 million annually to sustain a lunar base, there are scientic reasons. If you have to spend $1 billion, I doubt if it would be worthwhile."

Most top scientists here believe the moon will have a definite military potential as a base for military satellite and antisatellite operations.

The scientists here also believe that as man explores his solar system he will make new discoveries, find new sources of energy, develop metals unknown on earth and solve some of the medical mysteries of what makes man tick.

It is unlikely that man will travel beyond this solar system to the stars for perhaps a hundred years or more—or until such time as he discovers sources of power which will enable him to approach the speed of light—186,000 miles per second. The distances to the stars are too great for man to reach in a lifetime at present top speeds.

CONCLUSIONS

In arriving at his cost-relative-to-objective conclusions, Koelle functions in a sort of mathematical horror house where variables are seemingly infinite and depend upon such things as launching rates, types of vehicles and whether they are reusable, size of pay-load, appropriations, national goals and national resources.

Another handicap is that the nation has no plan for the long-range allocation of resources and no long-range goals except to reach the moon by 1970—and even this objective was not stated firmly until May 25 by President Kennedy.

Koelle therefore has to assume that the United States will find it desirable, even necessary, to achieve certain objectives in space over the next two decades, which is about as far ahead as he is looking right now.

Koelle was asked when the United States could expect to reach certain arbitrarily selected goals, such as the moon and Mars.

"First comes the decision," he replied. "When you give us an objective and tell us the resources, then these factors will determine the target date."

Each time Koelle calculates the future, he must relate what is technically possible to the availability of resources. The less money avaliable, the longer the time required to reach an objective.

The smallest program envisioned by Koelle calls for the spending of $24 billion from 1960 through 1970. The largest program will cost $43.8 billion over the same period.

COMPROMISE

Koelle's third program is a compromise costing about $32.5 billion over the next 10 years.

As something of a political realist, Koelle keeps the taxpayer in mind.

His maximum program assumes that the United States will continue to apportion the same percentage of national income tot he space program through 1970 as it does now.

This means that as national income increases, the space budget will likewise increase, but not the relative burden on the taxpayer.

The minimum program as outlined by Koelle does not in his opinion take into account a space race against the Soviet Union. In terms of relative accomplishment, Koelle believes adoption of the minimum program would insure a perpetual Soviet lead.

The compromise program, Koelle said, will give the United States a remote chance to overtake the Russians, whereas the maximum program is designed to overtake the Soviets, within a decade.

Koelle assumes the Russians are working hard to stay ahead and that the United States is blessed with no particular scientific superiority.

"They know their technology as well as we do," he said.

Now there is no doubt that space flight activities are enormously expensive though the per pound cost of launch vehicles is being reduced steadily as manufacturing techniques improve and more experience is acquired in simplifying design.

The airframe for the Navy's 40,000-pound thrust Vanguard missile cost $27,000 per pound of dead weight, exclusive of satellite payload, back in 1957. To manufacture the huge Saturn booster today costs about $5,000 per pound —about $8 million. Saturn's thrust is 1.5 million pounds.

Land-Grabbing By Cities

One interesting and apparently wise law in Texas provides that the size of an incorporated village or town may be limited by the population of the area or areas involved.

This law probably was enacted because of the fact that some Texas cities, like some in other states, area not already incorporated, no appeared ready to incorporate any matter how thinly populated or how far from the incorporating city it might be. For instance some of the bigger towns were incorporating areas right on the borders of other cities, thus effectively blocking the other cities from any further growth in those areas.

Nothing like that has been attempted in Ouachita Parish but in some places the situation was similar to what it would be if Monroe were to incorporate the whole parish with the exception of the cities already incorporated. The Texas law seems to be a wise one. There is no sense in allowing one city to incorporate areas lying on the borders of other cities and which logically would eventually be incorporated into those cities.

Because of the law allowing the number of persons per square mile to serve as a limit on how much territory can be incorporated and because of a precedent-breaking ruling by the Texas supreme court, a strange situation has arisen concerning a little Texas town on Caddo Lake called Uncertain.

Eventually most states probably will have to follow the example of Texas in enacting laws prohibiting cities from annexing thinly-populated areas or areas which more logically belong to other cities. Without such a law, or some other effective law, there is danger that the big cities or the county (parish) seats would eventually swallow up all the areas not already incorporated.

This would effectively prevent incorporation of any new towns and villages, where the people undoubtedly would prefer to have their own towns, and would stop the growth of all towns and villages except those which grabbed [illegible]

An experimental drug tested in [illegible] County, Tenn., and throughout the nation has been found 80 per cent effective in preventing tuberculosis contagion.

The drug, isoniazed, was tested for its effectiveness in preventing tuberculosis among persons who have been in contact with new t.b. cases at a time when the risk of infection is highest. About 1,300 persons were studied in Memphis and Shelby County for two years, with excellent results.

Already tuberculosis has been reduced so greatly in the United States that some t.b. hospitals have been abandoned or diverted to other uses. Ths includes the sanatorium formerly operated in Ouachita parish. Much of this reduction has been effected by the use of medicines which arrest the disease.

Now that a successful way of preventing infection has been developed, tuberculosis is expected within a short time to join such diseases as pellagra, typhoid fever, yellow fever and scarlet fever in being virtually wiped out.

To the Editor

I am a youth of America, and I am proud of it! I am proud of the fact that I can eat hot dogs, go to football games, and hear music of any kind at any time I so desire. But what is more important, I am proud that I can choose a way of my own to worship God; that I can have a broad and extensive education, and that I have a flag to which I can turn, with my hand over my heart, and say, "one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

But now my pride has been mingled with fear — could we, the youth of America, grow to a world void of these things in which I now place pride? With this realization of fear comes a question — WHAT CAN I DO? What can I, who is considered too young and too inexperienced to know, and yet, who holds the key to the future in my hands and in my heart, do? I am anxiously willing to stand up with determination for those things of America which I feel are good and necessary if we are to have a democratic way of life — but where do I have the opportunity? Who wants to take time out to seriously consider this course? I am ready to join with those who feel strongly about Americanism and strongly against Communism —but how will I know who and where they are if they do not come forth and in some way make themselves known? Where are the true Americans of the world? Where are those who plan to make the backbone of this country strong, and who are willing to face with America the plights of the future?

We, as Americans, are now in desperate need of a rude reawakening to life as a realistic existence rather than life as an American where we use our country as a shield that nothing and no one could break through! I am proud of the American way of life and I do not want it shattered or merely rearranged in anyway. Take America and the American standards of living seriously — let us, the youth and the keys to the future, help our country; America is in need!

To the Editor:

Webster defines communism as any system of social organization in which goods are held in common. You may take that to mean whatever you produce by the sweat of the brow, or otherwise, will be pooled and given to others in supposedly deserved shares.

Our constitution, in which we show so much pride of possession, was amended in the days of the ugly reconstruction. An amendment, Article XVI states: "The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment, among several States, and without regard to any census enumeration."

Right there you have the key to communism or socialism, call it what you may. The income tax money is "held in common," which is no authority to anyone entering the United States treasury and picking up his pro rata share. That is a privilege enjoyed by those appointed by the congrees. The one-worlders, like weevils in grain, got in the treasury and are scattering the money all over the world. We in the United States have improved on the Russian method inasmuch as Russia keeps that which is Russia's while we bestow that which is ours on every country between 90 degrees North and 90 degrees South.

It is doubtful if there is a single person of sound mind who has the shadow of a thought that the largess we have handed out with a lavish hand will prove to be bread cast on the waters. It has no more chance of returning to us than has the cast on local waters in the form of social security.

There is no cure for the ailment short of killing the patient. The cure will prove to be worse than the disease. The recipients of our generosity can and will vote against any one who proposes to correct the fault.

Since it was engendered in the mind of the Republican Reconstructionists in 1865, it does not take a great amount of thought to place the reason for the action. Now that the Democrats are outdoing the "give away" instituted by the Republicans, they, the Republicans, find they had created a Frankenstein monster that is devouring our country.

We could survive under the "home give - away" but there is a limit to what we can give to aliens and still operate at the old stand. Our Representative in Congress, Otto Passman, tried to dam the stream of money flowing to other countries but all the thanks he had was a scurvy attack by a one-worlder who entertains an idea that he is some divinity.

U. S. Senator From Arizona

In late August this column commented on a remark made by Mr. Sterling M. McMurrin, United States Commissioner of Education. I took issue with Mr. McMurrin for suggesting that educational goals conceived only in terms of the individual welfare are no longer sufficient to insure the preservation of democracy in an age when continuing social and political crises place the nation in deadly peril.

On September 11 I received notice from my syndicate that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare had entered a strenuous protest to the statement made in my column, claiming the remark I attributed to Mr. McMurrin was "pure fabrication." The Department of HEW asked for a retraction in the form of an equal distribution of a statement from Commissioner McMurrin.

I was not present at Harvard University on July 20 when Mr. McMurrin delivered the address in question, nor was I present afterward when he continued his discussion.

Carole Bowie, a staff reporter on the Washington Post, writing for that newspaper on July 20, 1961, provided me with the information on which I based the column. In this newspaper account the reporter attribued o Commissioner McMurrin the exact phrase I employed.

If I have misquoted Commissioner McMurrin, I am genuinely sorry. If the reporter for the Washington Post made an error in reporting the Commissioner's remarks, the error is regretable.

I have read the released text of Mr. McMurrin's statement and his people are correct when they say the exact language I used is not contained in the speech as released.

Mr. McMurrin appeared at Harvard to pump for federal aid to education; as a servant of the New Frontiersmen, the position he takes is entirely in character. And whether or not he said the exact words attributed to him by the Washington Post reporter, I find in his speech, in a number of areas, arguments suggesting that we must resort to some sort of regimentation or federal control if we are to keep pace with a world which treatens us. At the same time Mr. McMurrin insists that federal aid to education will not produce any regimentation, will not lessen local control, and does not in any way threaten to alter our traditional understanding of public education responding to individual needs.

There is an old American colloquialism which goes: "You can't have your cake and eat it too."

How do you stand, sir?

GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Gift Of Prophecy

Newspapers' Failure To Decipher Handwiting On Wall Hit

Charles Collingwood who discusses the short-comings of the press for CBS-TV finds that newspapers are weak in the realm of prophecy. He says:

"One of the chronic failures of the press is its inability to decipher the handwriting on the wall. The result is that events, clearly foreshadowed, come as a stunning surprise. Footnote: see Cuba, Laos, the Congo, Angola, Berlin, et cetera, et cetera."

The great TV networks maintain news staffs throughout the world and therefore should be, at least, as prophetic as any other reporters. Never have I seen the radio or TV do a better or as good a reporting job as the newspapers or news services. Collingwood is himself a newsman and although his work is interesting and even charming, the gift of foresight and prophecy is no more his than it is most reporters or, for that matter, evaluators of the State Department or the CIA. Karl von Wiegand of the Hearst Newspapers was very much a prophet and got into trouble because he was so much ahead of his time, that no one believed him.

Collingwood pays me something of a compliment which does not puff me up too much. Not only is the prophet not believed but when he speaks out, men seek a motive. Referring to the Guiana situation, Collingwood said:

"George Sokolsky sounded an alarm on April 4, but thereafter, the press maintained almost total silence except for occasional remarks by professional anti-Communists like Fulton Lewis Jr. and reports in the conservative papers of speeches by Connecticut's Senator Thomas Dodd, and so forth. And perhaps that is part of the reason the press neglected the Guiana story so long. The anti-Communist specialists had made the story their province, and they have cried 'wolf' so often that most newspapermen back away from their special causes . . ."

Of course, the anti-Communist specialists would naturally know what the Communists are up to, just as a top-notch baseball reporter has some idea about what is happening in the baseball business.

The reason that newspapers buy what we write and continue to print it year by year is that we provide what others do not have. It is as simple as that. Like every other kind of specialist, an anti-Communist specialist must do an enormous amount of work in his field. Eugene Lyons, for instance, who is such a specialist for the Reader's Digest, labors as diligently in this field as any science reporter does in his. Of course, Lyons is believed no more than I am, not because he cries: "Wolf! Wolf!" too often, but because the subject is very complex, requires intensive knowledge and just judgment and sounds quite screwy to those who regard themselves as anti-Communists but do not know what communism is and those who believe that all human beings are much like themselves, fairly good-natured, practically honest, who know movements by names but little of the substance thereof.

It did not, however, require the gift of prophecy to know the Guiana story. It was clear for all to see for several years. All that was required was diligent reading of the material at hand. As a matter of fact, this was also true of the Cuba story about which there were many correct evaluations while there were also many incorrect evaluations. The anti-Communist specialists were naturally correct for two reasons: first, they know the names of important Communists and therefore knew the names of Che Guevara and Raul Castro which gave them a clue to what was going on; secondly, by diligent labor, they became accustomed to patterns and grasp rapidly the nature of a movement by the pattern that asserts itself.

Not to show off but to show what it takes to be a specialist, I began to study the Communist movement at Columbia University in 1915 or 1916 under Professor Vladimir Simkhovitch, a keen authority. This was before Lenin seized power in Russia. I went to Russia in 1917 and lived through the first year of the Communist Revolution, observing it daily as a reporter. I then was expelled from Russia and landed in China where for more than 13 years I had an opportunity to study this movement closely. Since 1931, I have been watching this movement in the United States. Since about 1913, I have read the literature of Marxism and its various manifestations.

It is not surprising that I guessed right about Guiana. It would have been astonishing if I did not know what Dr. Cheddi Jagan was up to.

Saving On Taxes

Odds 99 In 100 You Can Do It By Taking Action At Once

The odds are 99 out of 100 you can cut the taxes you'll owe on this year's income if you take intelligent steps before the end of 1961.

You have less than 85 days in which to move. While next spring —by informed reporting on your income tax return—you can make sure you don't pay a penny more in taxes than you owe, the deadline for reducing what you owe is to a minimum is midnight, Dec. 31, 1961.

Thus, in this series of six columns on "Save On Taxes NOW," I'll submit vital information on how you can arrange income, expenses, deductions, contributions, for your maximum tax benefit.

First, your medical expenses—because MILLIONS of taxpayers waste the tax-saving value of their medical expenses every year.

The law says that if you're under 65, you can deduct medical expenses above 3 per cent of your total adjusted gross income up to a maximum of $10,000. You can include in your expenses the cost of drugs and medicines above 1 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

This means that when your medical expenses in any single year do not top the 3 per cent requirement, you've completely wasted the tax-saving advantage of the expenses.

This clearly says to you that you should see now how you can accelerate or defer medical expenses to boost them above 3 per cent in at least one of the two tax years of 1961 and 1962.

As an illustration, let's say your adjusted gross income is around $8,000 a year and your medical expenses run around $240 a year. You're on the 3 per cent borderline, unable to take a medical deduction this year and probably unable to take one next year either.

What should you do? You should consider how you can bunch into these next several weeks expenses you know will be coming up in the months ahead so you can raise your expenses above the 3 per cent level, let the government share in paying your 1961 medical bills. What about completing a costly medical treatment or dental work and paying the bills before Dec. 31? What about paying premiums due on your health or hospitalization insurance? Borrow the money to pay if you haven't the cash on hand, for this is good tax common sense. You'll assure your medical deduction and get a deduction for interest on your loan as well.

As another illustration, let's say your medical expenses this year are way below the 3 per cent limit—an unusual, lucky situation which you don't expect to continue in 1962.

What should you do? You should do the opposite of the above. Instead of bunching payments into 1961, you should consider how you can postpone them until after Dec. 31. Put off as many payments as you can until 1962 so that the probability is your expenses in 1962 will be high enough to give you a medical deduction next year.

As a third illustration, let's say your medical expenses have been high, well above the 3 per cent requirement, and you can reasonably expect next year's bill will be way below it.

What should you do? Speed up payment of as many medical bills as you can into 1961. This will give you the maximum tax benefit in this tough year when you need it most.

As a fourth illustration, let's say that your medical bills this year have been catastrophic and you're running above the ceilings on deductions—which for the under-65 filing a separate return are $2,500 or $5,000, and for those filing a joint return are $5,000, $7,500 or $10,000. The ceilings depend on the number of your exemptions.

What should you do? Do your utmost to postpone payment of your excess expenses until 1962 so you won't waste a penny in deductions.

The thing to do is to check your medical bills NOW, figure how they compare with your adjusted gross income in 1961, then ARRANGE the expenses in these weeks for your maximum tax benefit.

Land-Grabbing By Cities

One interesting and apparently wise law in Texas provides that the size of an incorporated village or town may be limited by the population of the area or areas involved.

This law probably was enacted because of the fact that some Texas cities, like some in other states, area not already incorporated, no appeared ready to incorporate any matter how thinly populated or how far from the incorporating city it might be. For instance some of the bigger towns were incorporating areas right on the borders of other cities, thus effectively blocking the other cities from any further growth in those areas.

Nothing like that has been attempted in Ouachita Parish but in some places the situation was similar to what it would be if Monroe were to incorporate the whole parish with the exeception of the cities already incorporated. This, of course, would put a stranglehold on any further expansion of West Monroe or any other city in the parish which might be incorporated or wish to be incorporated separately.

In a sort of dual operation, Baton Rouge incorporated all of East Baton Rouge parish. It still has what it calls city limits actually encompassing the city itself but for census purposes and for some other purposes it has annexed all of the parish. This was one way in which it attempted to surpass Shreveport in official government census population but, even so, it was never quite able to do that.

The Texas law seems to be a wise one. There is no sense in allowing one city to incorporate areas lying on the borders of other cities and which logically would eventually be incorporated into those cities.

Because of the law allowing the number of persons per square mile to serve as a limit on how much territory can be incorporated and because of a precedent-breaking ruling by the Texas supreme court, a strange situation has arisen concerning a little Texas town on Caddo Lake called Uncertain.

Eventually most states probably will have to follow the example of Texas in enacting laws prohibiting cities from annexing thinly-populated areas or areas which more logically belong to other cities. Without such a law, or some other protective law, there is danger that the big cities or the county (parish) seats would eventually swallow up all the areas not already incorporated.

This would effectively prevent incorporation of any new towns and villages, where the people undoubtedly would prefer to have their own towns, and would stop the growth of all towns and villages except those which grabbed first.

Russia Shifts Blame

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia has come out with a ridiculous article claiming the British and Belgian secret services were "interested" in the death of the late United Nations secretary general, Dag Hammarskjold, and that these forces as well as the "French ultras" would benefit from the death.

Nothing could be more obvious than that this is a clumsy effort to divert suspicion from Russia itself. Beyond Russia's mere assertion, there seems to be no reason whatever to believe that either Britain or Belgium had any desire to see Hammarskjold removed from the scene.

Carrying on the foolish and useless argument, the article distributed by the Soviet news agency Novosti, said:

"In case there is a lack of direct evidence, juridical practice is to search for those who are guilty by asking the question: Who benefits from it?

"If one would follow the rule in this case, we would discover a whole conglomeration of forces, each of which was interested in the fatal end of the Hammarskjold mission—the French ultras, the British secret services, the (Rhodesian) government of Sir Roy Welensky.

"Actually, all those forces would benefit from Hammarskjold's death."

If we are to accept the Russian theory of finding out who benefits from it, the Soviet statement deeply implicates the Soviet Union.

At the time of Hammarskjold's death, one widely read news commentator stated that Russia wanted the removal of Dag even more than it wanted to take control of Berlin. Nothing could emphasize more clearly how badly Russia wanted Hammarskjold out of his post of secretary-general of the United Nations. Dag had long been a deep thorn in the side of the Russians, effectively blocking many of their efforts to boss the United Nations.

No other nation had one-fourth as much interest in the removal of Hammarskjold from the scene as did Russia. On its own summation of juridical practice, Russia is the prime, if not the only, suspect in the case.

I took issue with Mr. McMurrin for suggesting that educational goals conceived only in terms of the individual welfare are no longer sufficient to insure the preservation of democracy in an age when continuing social and political crises place the nation in deadly peril.

On September 11 I received notice from my syndicate that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare had entered a strenuous protest to the statement made in my column, claiming the remark I attributed to Mr. McMurrin was "pure fabrication." The Department of HEW asked for a retraction in the form of an equal distribution of a statement from Commissioner McMurrin.

I was not present at Harvard University on July 20 when Mr. McMurrin delivered the address in question, nor was I present afterward when he continued his discussion.

Carole Bowle, a staff reporter on the Washington Post, writing for that newspaper on July 20, 1961, provided me with the information on which I based the column. In this newspaper account the reporter attribued o Commissioner McMurrin the exact phrase I employed.

If I have misquoted Commissioner McMurrin, I am genuinely sorry. If the reporter for the Washington Post made an error in reporting the Commissioner's remarks, the error is regretable.

I have read the released text of Mr. McMurrin's statement and his people are correct when they say the exact language I used is not contained in the speech as released.

Mr. McMurrin appeared at Harvard to pump for federal aid to education; as a servant of the New Frontiersmen, the position he takes is entirely in character. And whether or not he said the exact words attributed to him by the Washington Post reporter, I find in his speech, in a number of areas, arguments suggesting that we must resort to some sort of regimentation or federal control if we are to keep pace with a world which treatens us. At the same time Mr. McMurrin insists that federal aid to education will not produce any regimentation, will not lessen local control, and does not in any way threaten to alter our traditional understanding of public education responding to individual needs.

There is an old American colloquialism which goes: "You can't have your cake and eat it too."

How do you stand, sir?

Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, Oct. 8, the 281st day of the year with 84 to follow in 1961.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning star is Venus.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1871, the great fire of Chicago broke out after, according to legend, a cow kicked over a lantern in a barn owned by a Mrs. O'Leary at 137 De Koven Street.

In 1890, Edward Rickenbacker, aviator and World War I hero, was born.

In 1918, in the heart of the Argonne Forest in France, during World War I, Sgt. Alvin York of the U.S. Army, separated from his patrol, captured a hill, killing 20 enemy soldiers and capturing 132 others.

A thought for today: British writer Laurence Housman said: "Minority is no disproof: Wisdom is not so strong and fleet-as never to have known defeat."

GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Gift Of Prophecy

Newspapers' Failure To Decipher Handwiting On Wall Hit

Charles Collingwood who discusses the short-comings of the press for CBS-TV finds that newspapers are weak in the realm of prophecy. He says:

"One of the chronic failures of the press is its inability to decipher the handwriting on the wall. The result is that events, clearly foreshadowed, come as a stunning surprise. Footnote: see Cuba, Laos, the Congo, Angola, Berlin, et cetera, et cetera."

The great TV networks maintain news staffs throughout the world and therefore should be, at least, as prophetic as any other reporters. Never have I seen the radio or TV do a better or as good a reporting job as the newspapers or news services. Collingwood is himself a newsman and although his work is interesting and even charming, the gift of foresight and prophecy is no more his than it is most reporters or, for that matter, evaluators of the State Department or the CIA. Karl von Wiegand of the Hearst Newspapers was very much a prophet and got into trouble because he was so much ahead of his time, that no one believed him.

Collingwood pays me something of a compliment which does not puff me up too much. Not only is the prophet not believed but when he speaks out, men seek a motive. Referring to the Guiana situation, Collingwood said:

"George Sokolsky sounded an alarm on April 4, but thereafter, the press maintained almost total silence except for occasional remarks by professional anti-Communists like Fulton Lewis Jr. and reports in the conservative papers of speeches by Connecticut's Senator Thomas Dodd, and so forth. And perhaps that is part of the reason the press neglected the Guiana story so long. The anti-Communist specialists had made the story their province, and they have cried 'wolf' so often that most newspapermen back away from their special causes . . ."

Of course, the anti-Communist specialists would naturally know what the Communists are up to, just as a top-notch baseball reporter has some idea about what is happening in the baseball business.

The reason that newspapers buy what we write and continue to print it year by year is that we provide what others do not have. It is as simple as that. Like every other kind of specialist, an anti-Communist specialist must do an enormous amount of work in his field. Eugene Lyons, for instance, who is such a specialist for the Reader's Digest, labors as diligently in this field as any science reporter does in his. Of course, Lyons is believed no more than I am, not because he cries: "Wolf! Wolf!" too often but because the subject is very complex, requires intensive knowledge and just judgment and sounds quite screwy to those who regard themselves as anti-Communists but do not know what communism is and those who believe that all human beings are much like themselves, fairly good-natured, practically honest, who know movements by names but little of the substance thereof.

It did not, however, require the gift of prophecy to know the Guiana story. It was clear for all to see for several years. All that was required was diligent reading of the material at hand. As a matter of fact, this was also true of the Cuba story about which there were many correct evaluations while there were also many incorrect evaluations. The anti-Communist specialists were naturally correct for two reasons: first, they know the names of important Communists and therefore knew the names of Che Guevara and Raul Castro which gave them a clue to what was going on; secondly, by diligent labor, they became accustomed to patterns and grasp rapidly the nature of a movement by the pattern that asserts itself.

Not to show off but to show what it takes to be a specialist, I began to study the Communist movement at Columbia University in 1915 or 1916 under Professor Vladimir Simkhovitch, a keen authority. This was before Lenin seized power in Russia. I went to Russia in 1917 and lived through the first year of the Communist Revolution, observing it daily as a reporter. I then was expelled from Russia and landed in China where for more than 13 years I had an opportunity to study this movement closely. Since 1931, I have been watching this movement in the United States. Since about 1913, I have read the literature of Marxism and its various manifestations.

It is not surprising that I guessed right about Guiana. It would have been astonishing if I did not know what Dr. Cheddi Jagan was up to.

Saving On Taxes

Odds 99 In 100 You Can Do It By Taking Action At Once

The odds are 99 out of 100 you can cut the taxes you'll owe on this year's income if you take intelligent steps before the end of 1961.

You have less than 85 days in which to move. While next spring —by informed reporting on your income tax return—you can make sure you don't pay a penny more in taxes than you owe, the deadline for reducing what you owe is to a minimum is midnight, Dec. 31, 1961.

Thus, in this series of six columns on "Save On Taxes NOW," I'll submit vital information on how you can arrange income, expenses, deductions, contributions, for your maximum tax benefit.

First, your medical expenses—because MILLIONS of taxpayers waste the tax-saving value of their medical expenses every year.

The law says that if you're under 65, you can deduct medical expenses above 3 per cent of your total adjusted gross income up to a maximum of $10,000. You can include in your expenses the cost of drugs and medicines above 1 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

This means that when your medical expenses in any single year do not top the 3 per cent requirement, you've completely wasted the tax-saving advantage of the expenses.

This clearly says to you that you should see now how you can accelerate or defer medical expenses to boost them above 3 per cent in at least one of the two tax years of 1961 and 1962.

As an illustration, let's say your adjusted gross income is around $8,000 a year and your medical expenses run around $240 a year. You're on the 3 per cent borderline, unable to take a medical deduction this year and probably unable to take one next year either.

What should you do? You should consider how you can bunch into these next several weeks expenses you know will be coming up in the months ahead so you can raise your expenses above the 3 per cent level, let the government share in paying your 1961 medical bills. What about completing a costly medical treatment or dental work and paying the bills before Dec. 31? What about paying premiums due on your health or hospitalization insurance? Borrow the money to pay if you haven't the cash on hand, for this is good tax common sense. You'll assure your medical deduction and get a deduction for interest on your loan as well.

As another illustration, let's say your medical expenses this year are way below the 3 per cent limit—an unusual, lucky situation which you don't expect to continue in 1962.

What should you do? You should do the opposite of the above. Instead of bunching payments into 1961, you should consider how you can postpone them until after Dec. 31. Put off as many payments as you can until 1962 so that the probability is your expenses in 1962 will be high enough to give you a medical deduction next year.

As a third illustration, let's say your medical expenses have been high, well above the 3 per cent requirement, and you can reasonably expect next year's bill will be way below it.

What should you do? Speed up payment of as many medical bills as you can into 1961. This will give you the maximum tax benefit in this tough year when you need it most.

As a fourth illustration, let's say that your medical bills this year have been catastrophic and you're running above the ceilings on deductions—which for the under-65 filing a separate return are $2,500 or $5,000, and for those filing a joint return are $5,000, $7,500 or $10,000. The ceilings depend on the number of your exemptions.

What should you do? Do your utmost to postpone payment of your excess expenses until 1962 so you won't waste a penny in deductions.

The thing to do is to check your medical bills NOW, figure how they compare with your adjusted gross income in 1961, then ARRANGE the expenses in these weeks for your maximum tax benefit.

Bible Thought

....."I said, Lord, be merciful unto me; heal my soul; for I have sinned against thee." Psalms 41:4

Every man's soul very often stands in need of spiritual repair. The great physician, Christ Jesus, stands ready to do the job. He has never lost a patient.

GREAT AWAKENING

U.S. Considers Nuclear Survival

EDITOR'S NOTE—Ominous events in a few short weeks spectacularly accomplished what civil defense officials failed to do in years: Suddenly Americans began thinking seriously about survival in a nuclear war. Based on a survey conducted by Associated Press bureaus across the country, here's a report on the great awakening.

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer

Mayor Roy Amick of Glendo, Wyo., announced three weeks ago the Town Council had bought an old potato cellar which would be equipped as a nuclear fallout shelter adequate for the protection of the town's entire population of 294 men, women and children.

Mayor Amick had been trying the past two years to interest his constituents in the plan but Glendo citizens, hardly regarding their remote town in danger of nuclear attack, were adamantly opposed. Not any more.

A ground swell of interest in civil defense—or, more specifically, in "what should I do if The Bomb falls—is evident throughout the land; a by-product of the Berlin crisis, resumption of nuclear testing and, most important, the stepped-up federal shelter program and President Kennedy's simultaneous appeal for each family to see to its own survival.

NATION OVER

Suddenly persons the nation over are stocking up on canned goods, digging up their lawns, talking knowledgeably of roentgens, dosimeters and strontium 90 and discussing the moral principles involved in slamming the shelter door before the neighbors can get in.

An Associated Press survey indicates the upsurge of interest in Glendo, Wyo., reflects the attitudes in many other communities throughout the United States.

Indeed, Director Frank B. Ellis of the office of Civil and Defense Mobilization describes the newfound fervor as a nationwide "revival for survival."

In Indianapolis, for example, 18,000 persons took home survival pamphlets from the civil defense booth at the Indiana State Fair; and Louisville fairgoers trooped through a model fallout shelter at the rate of 600 an hour. Residents of Livermore, Calif., have formed a non-profit organization called Survival Associates, Inc., and plan to break ground Tuesday on a shelter building program covering six acres. Terrace Park, Ohio, voters will decide next month whether to float a $250,000 bond issue to build a shelter for all 2,000 citizens; and Miami residents have heard a proposal to build a community shelter under the Orange Bowl.

EVERY STATE

Civil defense officials in virtually every state report the new siege of requests for survival information, lectures, first aid demonstrations and the like has been so overwhelming they haven't been able to meet the demand.

Phil Kidd Jr., CD director in Norman, Okla., resigned last month "because there has been so much interest I just couldn't handle the job properly." The eight-member CD Advisory Council in Norfolk, Va., resigned the same week because the city wouldn't accept its recommendations. And in Grants, N.M., Fire Chief Clarence Worthen also resigned—to go into the fallout shelter business.

So urgent are some persons for accurate survival information, and so confused by the plethora of facts, opinions and rumors swirling about them, they go direct to OCDM headquarters in Washington for answers.

"I've got claustrophobia," telephoned a Florida man. "What can I do about shelter?" Requests from private citizens totaled about 11,000 in the first six months of this year and, according to an OCDM spokesman, have averaged about 50,000 a month since.

There are in addition to a similar bombardment by local CD officials begging for more pamphlets and other material to replenish their vanishing supplies. Greatest demand is for a 32-page booklet, "The Family Fallout Shelter," which contains do-it-yourself blueprints.

"We printed 20 million of those booklets in 1959," said OCDM Information Officer Joseph Quinn, "and for two years they gathered dust in local CD offices. In July we had to print three million more just to take care of the known demand."

A Pennsylvania paper manufacturer has printed two million restaurant place mats outlining "facts you should know in the event of an atomic attack." Surviv-All, Inc., probably the largest of a number of brand new firms producing (for $8.98) a food survival kit to sustain one person 14 days, languished from February to June with only 600 sales; now is struggling to fill 11,000 back orders. A California phonograph record company has a long-playing record on supermarket racks titled (in three-inch red letters) "If the Bomb Falls;" a somber recitation of instructions taken from free CD pamphlets, including one enclosed in the record jacket. Bendix Corp., maker of a OCDM-approved radiation detection kit ($34.95 retail), is nearing the one million mark in sales and barely meeting the demand. Inevitably, Hallmark has come out with a greeting card giving "emergency procedures in the event of nuclear attack." The instruction on the inside fold: "Hide."

The most significant commercial development probably is the boom in the shelter construction business.

OCDM's list of approved national distributors has grown from 51 to more than 120 since June and this doesn't include the hundreds of small builders who obtain official approval at local CD offices.

Latest and largest to enter the arena is U.S. Steel with an $1,800 prefab kit for a six-person shelter. Armco Steel Corp. has geared up to mass produce prefab designs at more than 40 plants. Its simplest type is a 9 by 10 foot job for about $400 which comes with step-by-step assembly instructions. Seaglass Survival Shelters of Dallas is turning out 40 a day and plans to open another plant; and Anderson Tank & Manufacturing Co. of Flint, Mich., plans to expand shelter production to 200 a day by the end of this month.

Basic material for the do-it-yourself ($400 to $700) shelters for which OCDM supplies the simple plans is solid concrete blocks. Plasticrete Corp., a leading maker of the blocks, has stepped up production. In Utica, N.Y., a building supply dealer reported delivering concrete blocks for shelters to 100 homes during two weeks in August.

The new interest also has spawned scads of fly-by-night operators, and worse. Helena, Mont., CD officials reported salesmen peddling (for as much as $650) a feeble "shelter" made of plywood; and authorities have cautioned Salt Lake City residents against a salesman who claims to have a friend in the Pentagon who assured him war would start in a week.

Despite popular gossip of persons buying guns galore to guard their shelters, arms and ammunition makers report no noticeable sales increase. A common practice, however, is for homeowners to keep their shelter projects secret.

A Milwaukee shelter firm advertises "We use unmarked trucks," and a survival equipment dealer in the same city has instructed his employes to pose as appliance repairmen. A San Diego contractor hires only non-English speaking workers. (One skeptical customer wasn't satisfied until he dangled a $5 bill in front of the crew and asked, "which of you dropped this?").

For this reason it is impossible to estimate accurately how many home shelters have been built across the country. Some random local guesses include: Minnesota 12,000; California 4,000; North Carolina 5,000. Last January CD authorities estimated there were only 1,500 in the entire nation.

A CHECK

Ironically, a check in mid-September showed not a single one of President Kennedy's Cabinet or National Security Council members had a private home shelter, and only 7 of 22 state CD directors polled owns them.

Typical of many Americans' problem is that of the OCDM head himself. Director Ellis doesn't have a shelter because he doesn't own his home—though he says he's scouting around for a portable type.

Some states are encouraging shelter building by granting tax relief. One of the most liberal is Alabama, which allows a property tax exemption of $200 for each member of a family with a shelter, plus a $1,000 state income tax deduction.

The federal government, for its part, has broadened its FHA insured loan program for shelter builders so 20-year loans of up to $10,000 now are available.

Many banks are offering shelter construction loans. One bank employe in Virginia said several customers had commented on the bank's advertising approach of stressing the urgency of building a shelter—and then granting a five-year loan.

The federal government's $303 million public shelter program—aimed at equipping every federal building in the land with a shelter, plus revamping existing World War II shelters—is calculated to save the lives of at least half the 80 million Americans living in prime target areas.

For the most part, however, the initiative has been that of private individuals. Some of the projects are noteworthy.

Dr. Willard F. Libby, UCLA scientist and former atomic energy commissioner, has built a family shelter for $30 using railroad ties and sandbags. Dr. Herman R. Muller, Nobel prizewinning geneticist at Indiana University, said he can, within the 15-minute warning time, cover the floor above his basement with 16 inches of books. Indianapolis CD Director Robert S. Bates, who raises horses, said he plans to line his basement with baled hay.

West Germany Fights Threat

By JOHN O. KEOHLER

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany is fighting off the most massive Communist esiponage attack ever launched against a single country.

Interior Minister Gerhard Schroeder said recently that an estimtaed 16,000 agents work for East bloc intelligence services in West Germany.

Despite many obstacles, Bonn government agents manage to unciver about 200 agents a month. Still, for every lost spy the Communists seem to have another ready to take his place.

High-ranking officials of Red intelligence services, who defected to the West, have reported that about 18,500 persons are full-time employes of Soviet, East German, Polish, Czechoslovakian, Hungarian and Bulgarian spy organizatiins in East Germany, mostly stationed in or around East Berlin.

The East German Communists alone spend $125 million a year on espionage and subversive operations against West Germany, Schroeder said.

To combat this operation, the Bonn government employs just over 3,000 counterintelligence agents and iffice personnel. They operate on an annual budget of $17.5 million.

Officials are reluctant to release precise annual statistics, but in the last eight years courts convicted more than 2,000 persons on espionage charges and more than 19,000 admitted receiving assignments which were not carried out.

This is a staggering figure compared to the 17 spy convictions in the United States during the last 11 years. But at least four of the Americans—the Rosenberg couple, Harry Gold and David Greenglass—may have been more dangerius than all of the Red agents in Germany put together. They betrayed atom bomb secrets.

West Germany does not have American nuclear secrets, but there have been a few agents who have done considerable damage.

According to security officials the most dangerous was Alfred Frenzel, 61, Socialist member of the Defense Committee of the Bundestag (Parliament) from 1953 until his arrest last fall.

Frenzel, sentenced to 15 years at hard labor earlier this year, supplied the Czechoslovakian intelligence service with West Germany's defense plans for 1961 and betrayed the outlines on the Atlantic Alliance's defense requirements until 1963. The latter information included projected troop strength, equipment, ammunition and fuel requirements for the 15 North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

Another dangerous traitor—and most embarrassing to the government — was Otto John, head of the government's counterintelligence service.

After four years as top counterspy ,during which he once dined cozily with Director Allen Dulles of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, John defected to East Germany in 1954. He gave the Communists important West German and Allied counterintelligence secrets, including names o agents operating behind the Iron Curtain.

John remained in East Germany for 17 months and then redefected to the West. After a long trial, during which he claimed he was drugged, kidnapped and held against his will in East Germany, John was sentenced to four years at hard labor. He served barely half if his sentence.

There were perhaps another half dozen serious cases but the overwhelming majority of agents are "little operators."

Red spy recruiters have a relatively easy job finding prospects in this divided nation. One-fifth of West Germany's population are expellees and refugees from German-speaking areas now dominated by communsim. Perhaps every third West German has relatives in Communist East Germany.

The German agent spying on his own country needs no elaborate disguise and before the Communists closed the border around Berlin a great many agents slipped in with the refugee stream.

Western security chiefs say about 80 per cent of the 16,000 agents operating in West Germany are working for the East German Ministry for State Security (MFS) and the East German army's military intelligence branch. The other 20 per cent work directly for the Soviet Union and the other Red countries.

Directing and supervising the East German apparatus are two Soviet agencies—the Committee for State Security (KGB, formerly MVD) and the Defense Ministry's military intelligence branch (GRU).

The KGB in East Germany, with headquarters in a former hospital at the maximum security compound in the East Berlin suburb of Karishorst, has a staff of about 900.

The GRU headquarters is located at the German headquarters of the Soviet army in Wuensdorf near Berlin. About 150 GRU officiers reportedly are attached to the KGB headquarters as liaison personnel.

The East German ministry for State Security is headed by Lt. Gen. Erich Mielke, and old-time German Communist for whom West Berlin police still have an arrest warrant for murder dating back to 1931. Mielke himself has repeatedly boasted of killing two Berlin policemen at that time.

Security officials assert that only 1 out of 1,000 agents is spying for the Communist for idealistic reasons. The greatest number are in the business for material gain or adventure.

But only a few agents make more than $100 a month.

Blackmail is an effective and widely used recruiting method. Officials cite the case of the pretty wife of a Bonn Defense Ministry official who was visiting her mother in East Germany. During a family celebration, attended by several officers from the East German Security Ministry, the woman drank a bit too much and was photographed in an "embarrassing situation" with one of the Red agents.

A few days later, an MFS officer told the woman she would have to spy for the Reds or the photographs would be sent to her husband. Even worse, the woman found out that the "family celebration" was arranged with the cooperation of her family to coerce her into becoming a spy. This experience was so nerve-shattering the woman attempted suicide three times after she returned to the West.

The task of tracking down spies falls on two separate agencies of the Bonn government—the Bundesverfassungsschutz or BFV for short (Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution) and the Sicherungsgruppe or SG (Security Group) of the Federal Criminal Police Agency. Both are branches of the Federal Interior Ministry.

In the basement rooms of the Security Group headquarters in Bad Godesberg near Bonn is a fascinating collection of Communist espionage equipment.

One large shelf is packed with radio and coding equipment, the center of attraction being a small, almost new American-made radio set used in West Germany by a Soviet agent.

"The United States sent about 10,000 of these sets to Russia during World War II for use by the guerrillas," an official explained. "Only the guerrillas never used them and now they are turning up over here."

The most complicated spy tools shown were photographic gadgets, including the so-called microdot process.

To use this process, the agent must make his own special film and "camera" which actually is only a wooden board with a light bulb, a magnifying glass and a tiny special lens. With this equipment the agent can reduce a large piece of paper filled with information to a tiny dot which is then glued beneath the flap of an envelope or other hiding place.

Counterintelligence officials said their biggest obstacle is the courts, which they believe tend to be too lenient with spies.

This Book Treats Eye And The Mind

THE HORIZON BOOK OF THE RENAISSANCE. American Heritage (Trade distribution by Doubleday). $17.50. Deluxe edition $19.95.

In any game of word associations, "Italian Renaissance" will produce the immediate response "art." After that, such terms as "city states," "humanism" or the names of many great figures.

This is the first book to come from the editors of the magazine "Horizon," and rightfully enough the sumptuous illustrations, 160 of them in color, are drawn from the magnificent paintings and sculptures of the period.

But this is far more than an "art book." The main narrative is by historian J. H. Plumb of Cambridge University, and there are nine biographical essays by specialists in this field.

The procedure is to give a cluster of subsidiary treatments with each topic. For example, the historical chapter on Lorenzo de Medici and pictorial layouts on "Florence of the Medici," "The Medici as Patrons of the Arts," the baptistry doors by Ghiberti, "The City of Pageantry," "The Humanists," "The Battle of the Books" and Savonarola.

For the eye alone this large book is a treat. But it should be the sort of book that one reads slowly and carefully, to absorb the flavor of the period and to catch the feel of a great time of intellectual, as well as artistic, growth.

Here is the fruit of scholarship expressed in terms that will inflame the eye and the mind.

Opera's Decline Noted By Singer

By JOHN CALE

Somebody finally asked a question to a girl who wasn't afraid to give a truthful answer. The question — this time — was why opera was on the decline in the United States. The girl, Vivienne Della Chiesa—who used to sing opera and concerts—said in effect that people just didn't like it.

The question, and the frank but honest answer came during an interview in Hollywood. But that same line of thinking is blanketing the entire country as the 1961-62 concert season gets underway. And along with opera, we might include other forms of serious music as well, such as concerts by symphony orchestras and recitals by top soloists and ensembles.

According to the soprano, who switched from classical recitals to supper club engagements in 1959, the recent intervention by Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg to "save the Metropolitan Opera" was only postponing the inevitable.

"Opera doesn't appeal to the masses, I don't care what anybody says. I love it, but you have to face facts. Ever since I've been in show business I've been told that the public is becoming more interested in opera. But the companies are always in the red."

Then Miss Chiesa came forward with another observation which others have noted. "in Europe," she said, "opera is part of the people's life. But here, it isn't."

NEW VISTAS

This is one of those things which troubles Americans who would like to see better music receive a wider distribution. At first, we though education could open up new vistas. The courses in "music appreciation" would, we thought, expose more people to the really fine tunes among operatic overtures and arias. The familiarity was supposed to create a liking.

Perhaps, many who took courses in music appreciation liked the more serious music at the time. But audiences at serious concerts have not grown even though music appreciation courses have been listed in college catalogues for at least 25 years.

One difficulty is the current concept of entertainment and art which often grows into an argument of entertainment versus art. Right now, as Vivienne Della Chiesa pointed out, people in these United States want entertainment and they draw the line far towards that side of opera.

Along with this thinking, the Northeast Concerts Series is leading its list of attractions for the current season with the musical comedy, "The Music Man."

Also, for the first time in many years, there will be no symphony orchestra on the Louisiana Tech series. Cultural sights are still set high, however, with such attractions as Schiller's "Mary Stuart," with Faye Emerson and Eva Le Galliene; the Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra with a performance of Bach's "Passion According to St. John," and the National Ballet of Canada.

Both organizations are holding membership drives at the present time and offer a season hard to beat in variety and quality for those who want to take advantage of two series.

ART FESTIVAL

Saturday, northeast Louisiana art lovers, students, enthusiasts and many others who want a slice of homemade pie and coffee in pleasant surroundings will head for the Caldwell Parish Art Festival at the Columbia Community Center.

Theme of the event this year is the Civil War and Allen Jones of Monroe is scheduled to review some of the highlights of that conflict during the morning lecture period. "Yours Truly" and Mrs. Cale are also slated to appear on the program as a team of cultural detectives seeking out "What Happened to Louisiana Music and Art after Reconstruction?"

This is the sixth anniversary of the festival which has attracted over a thousand visitors to Columbia each year.

Roman Finds Faith, Love In 'Exile'

GOD WAS BORN IN EXILE. By Vintila Horia. St. Martin's. $4.95.

Ovid had written "Metamorphoses" to show the Roman gods did not exist. He also had written "The Art of Love," and the Emperor Augustus, assuming this had something to do with the corrupt morals of Rome, had exiled him in the year 9 A.D. to Tomi, at the mouth of the Danube, in a land inhabited by the barbaric Getae, now known as Rumania.

The author is a Rumanian who fled when the Communists took over his country. He too has become an exile, and the book was written in Paris.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Publib Library this week offer material of interest to almost every type of reader. For those who want a book of fiction, there are several interesting books. "The Heart of London" is the title of the new book by Monica Dickens. The author writes well and this is an interesting story with a present day background. "Stranger in a Strange Land" is a book of science fiction by Robert Heinlien. It will interest many readers. "The Gold-Hatted Lover" by Edmund Keeley is another interesting book of present day life. "Gettysburg" by Stephen Longstreet is an account of the battle which sealed the fate of the Confederacy. It is written in the form of fiction and deals with certain individuals who took part in the battle, rather than the military effect. "The Moviegoer" by Percy Walker is a new story by a Louisiana writer and is a story of a man who had a compulsive desire to go to the movies. The author tries to show why he does this and what lack in his life he is attempting to remedy. There are two new murder mysteries. One is called "Three Cases For Mr. Campion" and was written by Margery Allingham and the other is "Shock Treatment" by Winifred Van Atta. For western writers there is a new Double D Western, "The Honyocker" by Giles A. Lutz.

Books about Louisiana are always in demand and this is especially true now that college has opened and many students are taking a course in Louisiana History. This week there are five new additions to the Louisiana Collection. "Creoles and Cajuns" is a collection of short stories about Louisiana, which have long magazines.

"Prehistoric Man of the Great Plains" is the title of a very fine been out of print. "Chief in the Land of the Chetimaches" by Sidney A. Marchand is a collection of articles which have appeared in the Donaldsonville Chief, a newspaper published in Donaldsonville. They were selected because of their relation to the history of the area. Jospeh LeSage Tisch is the author of "French in Louisiana" which is an account of the French language as it is spoken in our state and not an account of the French people. It will be valuable to students of the French language. Edward F. Kerr is the author of a pictorial account of "Louisiana Tigers" which is an account of the two Louisiana Brigades of the army of Northern Virginia, 1861-65. This is a very timely volume since we are celebrating the Civil War Centennial.

The field of non - fiction offers great variety and interest. "Dr. Spock Talks with Mothers" is an interesting book of child psychology written by Dr. Benjamin Spock. "The Fur Trade" by Pail Chrisler Phillips is a very scholarly volume dealing with the fur trade of the west that had so much to do with the settling of this region. "Seasonal Feasts and Fesitvals" is the title of a book by Edwin Oliver James, which contains a great deal of information about these events. A perfectly beautiful new book is "The Sea" published by Life and Time new book in the field of American anthropology, written by Waldo R. Wedel. Much has been learned in recent years about the earliest inhabitants of America. If you have not read a book on this subject recently, I can heartily recommend this one. A book for which we have had many requests is "Ring of Bright Water" by Gavin Maxwell. This is a beautiful book of natural history with the setting in Scotland. It is an interesting account of country life and of otters and their habits. Two cook books arrived this week. One is "The Old Original Bookbinder's Cookbook" by Charlotte Adams. All who ever ate a meal at this famous restaurant, will want to read this book. The other is called "The Gourmet in the Low-Calorie Kitchen" and should appeal to those who want to eat well and also reduce.

A perfectly beautiful new book which will appeal to travellers, archtiects and church people is "French Cathedrals" by Jean Bony. It is a large beautiful book with photographs in color by Martin Hurlimann. An interesting book for those who are planning parties and entertainment is "The Good Housekeeping Book of Home Entertainment." Books of humor are always popular and there are several new ones of this type. "The Rising Gorge" is the title of the newest volume by Sidney J. Perelman. "Over the Fence is Out" is the title of another humorous book of boyhood recollections written by Jonathan Rhoades. A delightful new play by Noel Coward is "Waiting in the Wings."

Many people from our parish travel abroad and many go there to live for varying periods of time. The staff of Pan American Airlines has written a very fine new book called "New Horizons for Living Abroad" which should be most valuable for anyone planning this step. Another lovely book of foreign places is "Florence" by Martin Hurlimann. It is a beautiful book of pictures and text.

Books about the Civil War come from the presses in a steady stream and are always well-received. The newest one is "Morgan's Raid" written by Allen Keller. This is an exciting account of one event in this struggle of brother against brother. For many years Will Durant has been writing his story of Civilization. The latest volume in the series has just arrived it is called "The Age of Reason Begins" and is par VII in his monumental work. The little country of Laos has been much in the news in recent months and new material about this turbulent part of the world is always welcome. "Storm Over Laos" is the title of a book by Sisouk na Champassak, which clarifies many of the issues.

"Senator For the South" by John E. Huss is the title of a new biography dealing with the life of Olin D. Johnston. "I Should Have Kissed Her More" is the title of Alexander King's new book, which is a continuation of his earlier books of reminiscences. Whether the demand has worn out remains to be seen.

Three very fine books of reference were added to the library this week. One is "American Men of Medicine" and is a biographical account of many of the leading physicians of our country. It was given in memory of the late Dr. Walsworth and is a fitting memorial. The Mississippi Genealogical Society is doing a fine piece of work in compiling the Cemetery records of Mississippi. Volume 8 is the last volume of this work and the library is happy to add it to the collection. Another book which was given to the library is a fine book of family history called "Brooks and Kindred Families" by Ida Brooks Kellam. It was added to the genealogy collection.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Grace Rothstein is an unusual housewife. She runs a professional portrait studio while managing a household with four action-packed children ranging from 5 to 12 years of age. In her spare time she also attends to sizable flower and vegetable gardens and participates in community civic affairs.

These activities were in evidence when we visited her home in New Rochelle, N.Y., to discuss her photo career. While personally getting dinner ready — for six in her family plus three guests —she took time out to run down to her basement darkroom. There she removed a batch of prints from the hypoo for washing in the water tray. she had enlarged and processed the portraits before we arrived.

Later, showing us the gardens, she picked some of her tomatoes and cucumbers to add to the menu and selected some flowers for the table. A little further on, we came to her studio.

It is a separate, two - room attachment to the garage which Grace painted, renovated and decorated herself. The combination waiting - dressing room has samples of her portraiture displayed on the walls and in albums. The studio room is large, light and cheerful although it looks very business like.

A roll of seamless paper, half a dozen light stands and a view camera on a tripod were in position ready for the next sitting.

For children and outdoor portraits, though Grace has a 2¼x 2¼ twin - lens reflex camera which she prefers. She often uses a sheltered garden nook as an outdoor studio. She finds the late afternoon sun makes a fine natural backlight or sidelight and is easy on her subjects' eyes.

It also was easy to see how Grace had taken to photography. Her husband is Arthur Rothstein, technical director of photography at a magazine and author of a book on photojournalism, whose pictures are in the permanent collection of many museums.

"I was a lawyer when I met Arthur," Grace recalled, "but marriage and the arrival of our children changed my interests completely. I began to share Arthur's enthusiasm and started to take pictures of my own and then the neighborhood children. From a hobby it grew until it became a paying sideline.

"I started a home decorating fad in our city housing development. By running parallel strips of metal picture moulding along a wall, we could slide 11 x 14 inch photographs into display positions. They were easily changed as new pictures were made. These home exhibitions caused widespread comment and brought new clients."

The growing family and business proved too much for their city apartment. When they moved into their New Rochelle home four years ago, Grace also graduated from baby pictures to portraits of teens and adults.

GREAT AWAKENING

U.S. Considers Nuclear Survival

EDITOR'S NOTE—Ominous events in a few short weeks spectacularly accomplished what civil defense officials failed to do in years: Suddenly Americans began thinking seriously about survival in a nuclear war. Based on a survey conducted by Associated Press bureaus across the country, here's a report on the great awakening.

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer

Mayor Roy Amick of Glendo, Wyo., announced three weeks ago the Town Council had bought an old potato cellar which would be equipped as a nuclear fallout shelter adequate for the protection of the town's entire population of 294 men, women and children.

Mayor Amick had been trying the past two years to interest his constituents in the plan but Glendo citizens, hardly regarding their remote town in danger of nuclear attack, were adamantly opposed. Not any more.

A ground swell of interest in civil defense—or, more specifically, in "what should I do if The Bomb falls—is evident throughout the land; a by-product of the Berlin crisis, resumption of nuclear testing and, most important, the stepped-up federal shelter program and President Kennedy's simultaneous appeal for each family to see to its own survival.

NATION OVER

Suddenly persons the nation over are stocking up on canned goods, digging up their lawns, talking knowledgeably of roentgens, dosimeters and strontium 90 and discussing the moral principles involved in slamming the shelter door before the neighbors can get in.

An Associated Press survey indicates the upsurge of interest in Glendo, Wyo., reflects the attitudes in many other communities throughout the United States.

Indeed, Director Frank B. Ellis of the office of Civil and Defense Mobilization describes the newfound fervor as a nationwide "revival for survival."

In Indianapolis, for example, 18,000 persons took home survival pamphlets from the civil defense booth at the Indiana State Fair; and Louisville fairgoers trooped through a model fallout shelter at the rate of 600 an hour. Residents of Livermore, Calif., have formed a non-profit organization called Survival Associates, Inc., and plan to break ground Tuesday on a shelter building program covering six acres. Terrace Park, Ohio, voters will decide next month whether to float a $250,000 bond issue to build a shelter for all 2,000 citizens; and Miami residents have heard a proposal to build a community shelter under the Orange Bowl.

EVERY STATE

Civil defense officials in virtually every state report the new siege of requests for survival information, lectures, first aid demonstrations and the like has been so overwhelming they haven't been able to meet the demand.

Phil Kidd Jr., CD director in Norman, Okla., resigned last month "because there has been so much interest I just couldn't handle the job properly." The eight-member CD Advisory Council in Norfolk, Va., resigned the same week because the city wouldn't accept its recommendations. And in Grants, N.M., Fire Chief Clarence Worthen also resigned—to go into the fallout shelter business.

So urgent are some persons for accurate survival information, and so confused by the plethora of facts, opinions and rumors swirling about them, they go direct to OCDM headquarters in Washington for answers.

"I've got claustrophobia," telephoned a Florida man. "What can I do about shelter?" Requests from private citizens totaled about 11,000 in the first six months of this year and, according to an OCDM spokesman, have averaged about 50,000 a month since.

There are in addition to a similar bombardment by local CD officials begging for more pamphlets and other material to replenish their vanishing supplies. Greatest demand is for a 32-page booklet, "The Family Fallout Shelter," which contains do-it-yourself blueprints.

"We printed 20 million of those booklets in 1959," said OCDM Information Officer Joseph Quinn, "and for two years they gathered dust in local CD offices. In July we had to print three million more just to take care of the known demand."

A Pennsylvania paper manufacturer has printed two million restaurant place mats outlining "facts you should know in the event of an atomic attack." Surviv-All, Inc., probably the largest of a number of brand new firms producing (for $8.98) a food survival kit to sustain one person 14 days, languished from February to June with only 600 sales; now is struggling to fill 11,000 back orders. A California phonograph record company has a long-playing record on supermarket racks titled (in three-inch red letters) "If the Bomb Falls;" a somber recitation of instructions taken from free CD pamphlets, including one enclosed in the record jacket. Bendix Corp., maker of a OCDM-approved radiation detection kit ($24.95 retail), is nearing the one million mark in sales and barely meeting the demand. Inevitably, Hallmark has come out with a greeting card giving "emergency procedures in the event of nuclear attack." The instruction on the inside fold: "Hide."

The most significant commercial development probably is the boom in the shelter construction business.

OCDM's list of approved national distributors has grown from 51 to more than 120 since June and this doesn't include the hundreds of small builders who obtain official approval at local CD offices.

Latest and largest to enter the arena is U.S. Steel with an $1,800 prefab kit for a six-person shelter. Armco Steel Corp. has geared up to mass produce prefab designs at more than 40 plants. Its simplest type is a 9 by 10 foot job for about $400 which comes with step-by-step assembly instructions. Seaglass Survival Shelters of Dallas is turning out 49 a day and plans to open another plant; and Anderson Tank & Manufacturing Co. of Flint, Mich., plans to expand shelter production to 200 a day by the end of this month.

Basic material for the do-it-yourself ($400 to $700) shelters for which OCDM supplies the simple plans is solid concrete blocks. Plasticrete Corp., a leading maker of the blocks, has stepped up production. In Utica, N.Y., a building supply dealer reported delivering concrete blocks for shelters to 100 homes during two weeks in August.

The new interest also has spawned scads of fly-by-night operators, and worse. Helena, Mont., CD officials reported salesmen peddling (for as much as $650) a feeble "shelter" made of plywood; and authorities have cautioned Salt Lake City residents against a salesman who claims to have a friend in the Pentagon who assured him war would start in a week.

Despite popular gossip of persons buying guns galore to guard their shelters, arms and ammunition makers report no noticeable sales increase. A common practice, however, is for homeowners to keep their shelter projects secret.

A Milwaukee shelter firm advertises "We use unmarked trucks," and a survival equipment dealer in the same city has instructed his employes to pose as appliance repairmen. A San Diego contractor hires only non-English speaking workers. (One skeptical customer wasn't satisfied until he dangled a $5 bill in front of the crew and asked, "which of you dropped this?").

For this reason it is impossible to estimate accurately how many home shelters have been built across the country. Some random local guesses include: Minnesota 12,000; California 4,000; North Carolina 5,000. Last January CD authorities estimated there were only 1,500 in the entire nation.

A CHECK

Ironically, a check in mid-September showed not a single one of President Kennedy's Cabinet or National Security Council members had a private home shelter, and only 7 of 22 state CD directors polled owns them.

Typical of many Americans' problem is that of the OCDM head himself. Director Ellis doesn't have a shelter because he doesn't own his home—though he says he's scouting around for a portable type.

Some states are encouraging shelter building by granting tax relief. One of the most liberal is Alabama, which allows a property tax exemption of $200 for each member of a family with a shelter, plus a $1,000 state income tax deduction.

The federal government, for its part, has broadened its FHA insured loan program for shelter builders so 20-year loans of up to $10,000 now are available.

Many banks are offering shelter construction loans. One bank employe in Virginia said several customers had commented on the bank's advertising approach of stressing the urgency of building a shelter—and then granting a five-year loan.

The federal government's $303 million public shelter program—aimed at equipping every federal building in the land with a shelter, plus revamping existing World War II shelters—is calculated to save the lives of at least half the 80 million Americans living in prime target areas.

For the most part, however, the initiative has been that of private individuals. Some of the projects are noteworthy.

Dr. Willard F. Libby, UCLA scientist and former atomic energy commissioner, has built a family shelter for $30 using railroad ties and sandbags. Dr. Herman R. Muller, Nobel prizewinning geneticist at Indiana University, said he can, within the 15-minute warning time, cover the floor above his basement with 16 inches of books. Indianapolis CD Director Robert S. Bates, who raises horses, said he plans to line his basement with baled hay.

West Germany Fights Threat

By JOHN O. KEOHLER

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany is fighting off the most massive Communist esiponage attack ever launched against a single country.

Interior Minister Gerhard Schroeder said recently that an estimtaed 16,000 agents work for East bloc intelligence services in West Germany.

Despite many obstacles, Bonn government agents manage to unciver about 200 agents a month. Still, for every lost spy the Communists seem to have another ready to take his place.

High-ranking officials of Red intelligence services, who defected to the West, have reported that about 18,500 persons are full-time employes of Soviet, East German, Polish, Czechoslovakian, Hungarian and Bulgarian spy organizatiins in East Germany, mostly stationed in or around East Berlin.

The East German Communists alone spend $125 million a year on espionage and subversive operations against West Germany, Schroeder said.

To combat this operation, the Bonn government employs just over 3,000 counterintelligence agents and iffice personnel. They operate on an annual budget of $17.5 million.

Officials are reluctant to release precise annual statistics, but in the last eight years courts convicted more than 2,000 persons on espionage charges and more than 19,000 admitted receiving assignments which were not carried out.

This is a staggering figure compared to the 17 spy convictions in the United States during the last 11 years. But at least four of the Americans—the Rosenberg couple, Harry Gold and David Greenglass—may have been more dangerius than all of the Red agents in Germany put together. They betrayed atom bomb secrets.

West Germany does not have American nuclear secrets, but there have been a few agents who have done considerable damage.

According to security officials the most dangerous was Alfred Frenzel, 61, Socialist member of the Defense Committee of the Bundestag (Parliament) from 1953 until his arrest last fall.

Frenzel, sentenced to 15 years at hard labor earlier this year, supplied the Czechoslovakian intelligence service with West Germany's defense plans for 1961 and betrayed the outlines on the Atlantic Alliance's defense requirements until 1963. The latter information included projected troop strength, equipment, ammunition and fuel requirements for the 15 North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

Another dangerous traitor—and most embarrassing to the government — was Otto John, head of the government's counterintelligence service.

After four years as top counterspy ,during which he once dined cozily with Director Allen Dulles of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, John defected to East Germany in 1954. He gave the Communists important West German and Allied counterintelligence secrets, including names o agents operating behind the Iron Curtain.

John remained in East Germany for 17 months and then redefected to the West. After a long trial, during which he claimed he was drugged, kidnapped and held against his will in East Germany, John was sentenced to four years at hard labor. He served barely half if his sentence.

There were perhaps another half dozen serious cases but the overwhelming majority of agents are "little operators."

Red spy recruiters have a relatively easy job finding prospects in this divided nation. One-fifth of West Germany's population are expellees and refugees from German-speaking areas now dominated by communsim. Perhaps every third West German has relatives in Communist East Germany.

The German agent spying on his own country needs no elaborate disguise and before the Communists closed the border around Berlin a great many agents slipped in with the refugee stream.

Western security chiefs say about 80 per cent of the 16,000 agents operating in West Germany are working for the East German Ministry for State Security (MFS) and the East German army's military intelligence branch. The other 20 per cent work directly for the Soviet Union and the other Red countries.

Directing and supervising the East German apparatus are two Soviet agencies—the Committee for State Security (KGB, formerly MVD) and the Defense Ministry's military intelligence branch (GRU).

The KGB in East Germany, with headquarters in a former hospital at the maximum security compound in the East Berlin suburb of Karlshorst, has a staff of about 900.

The GRU headquarters is located at the German headquarters of the Soviet army in Wuensdorf near Berlin. About 150 GRU officiers reportedly are attached to the KGB headquarters as liaison personnel.

The East German ministry for State Security is headed by Lt. Gen. Erich Mielke, and old-time German Communist for whom West Berlin police still have an arrest warrant for murder dating back to 1931. Mielke himself has repeatedly boasted of killing two Berlin policemen at that time.

Security officials assert that only 1 out of 1,000 agents is spying for the Communist for idealistic reasons. The greatest number are in the business for material gain or adventure.

But only a few agents make more than $100 a month.

Blackmail is an effective and widely used recruiting method. Officials cite the case of the pretty wife of a Bonn Defense Ministry official who was visiting her mother in East Germany. During a family celebration, attended by several officers from the East German Security Ministry, the woman drank a bit too much and was photographed in an "embarrassing situation" with one of the Red agents.

A few days later, an MFS officer told the woman she would have to spy for the Reds or the photographs would be sent to her husband. Even worse, the woman found out that the "family celebration" was arranged with the cooperation of her family to coerce her into becoming a spy. This experience was so nerve-shattering the woman attempted suicide three times after she returned to the West.

The task of tracking down spies falls on two separate agencies of the Bonn government—the Bundesverfassungsschutz or BFV for short (Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution) and the Sicherungsgruppe or SG (Security Group) of the Federal Criminal Police Agency. Both are branches of the Federal Interior Ministry.

In the basement rooms of the Security Group headquarters in Bad Godesberg near Bonn is a fascinating collection of Communist espionage equipment.

One large shelf is packed with radio and coding equipment, the center of attraction being a small, almost new American-made radio set used in West Germany by a Soviet agent.

"The United States sent about 10,000 of these sets to Russia during World War II for use by the guerrillas," an official explained. "Only the guerrillas never used them and now they are turning up over here."

The most complicated spy tools shown were photographic gadgets, including the so-called microdot process.

To use this process, the agent must make his own special film and "camera" which actually is only a wooden board with a light bulb, a magnifying glass and a tiny special lens. With this equipment the agent can reduce a large piece of paper filled with information to a tiny dot which is then glued beneath the flap of an envelope or other hiding place.

Counterintelligence officials said their biggest obstacle is the courts, which they believe tend to be too lenient with spies.

This Book Treats Eye And The Mind

THE HORIZON BOOK OF THE RENAISSANCE. American Heritage (Trade distribution by Doubleday). $17.50. Deluxe edition $19.95.

In any game of word associations, "Italian Renaissance" will produce the immediate response "art." After that, such terms as "city states," "humanism" or the names of many great figures.

This is the first book to come from the editors of the magazine "Horizon," and rightfully enough the sumptuous illustrations, 160 of them in color, are drawn from the magnificent paintings and sculptures of the period.

But this is far more than an "art book." The main narrative is by historian J. H. Plumb of Cambridge University, and there are nine biographical essays by specialists in this field.

The procedure is to give a cluster of subsidiary treatments with each topic. For example, the historical chapter on Lorenzo de Medici and pictorial layouts on "Florence of the Medici," "The Medici as Patrons of the Arts," the baptistry doors by Ghiberti, "The City of Pageantry," "The Humanists," "The Battle of the Books" and Savonarola.

For the eye alone this large book is a treat. But it should be the sort of book that one reads slowly and carefully, to absorb the flavor of the period and to catch the feel of a great time of intellectual, as well as artistic, growth.

Here is the fruit of scholarship expressed in terms that will inflame the eye and the mind.

Opera's Decline Noted By Singer

By JOHN CALE

Somebody finally asked a question to a girl who wasn't afraid to give a truthful answer. The question — this time — was why opera was on the decline in the United States. The girl, Vivienne Della Chiesa—who used to sing opera and concerts—said in effect that people just didn't like it.

The question, and the frank but honest answer came during an interview in Hollywood. But that same line of thinking is blanketing the entire country as the 1961-62 concert season gets underway. And along with opera, we might include other forms of serious music as well, such as concerts by symphony orchestras and recitals by top soloists and ensembles.

According to the soprano, who switched from classical recitals to supper club engagements in 1959, the recent intervention by Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg to "save the Metropolitan Opera" was only postponing the inevitable.

"Opera doesn't appeal to the masses, I don't care what anybody says. I love it, but you have to face facts. Ever since I've been in show business I've been told that the public is becoming more interested in opera. But the companies are always in the red."

Then Miss Chiesa came forward with another observation which others have noted. "in Europe," she said, "opera is part of the people's life. But here, it isn't."

NEW VISTAS

This is one of those things which troubles Americans who would like to see better music receive a wider distribution. At first, we though education could open up new vistas. The courses in "music appreciation" would, we thought, expose more people to the really fine tunes among operatic overtures and arias. The familiarity was supposed to create a liking.

Perhaps, many who took courses in music appreciation liked the more serious music at the time. But audiences at serious concerts have not grown even though music appreciation courses have been listed in college catalogues for at least 25 years.

One difficulty is the current concept of entertainment and art which often grows into an argument of entertainment versus art. Right now, as Vivienne Della Chiesa pointed out, people in these United States want entertainment and they draw the line far towards that side of opera.

Along with this thinking, the Northeast Concerts Series is leading its list of attractions for the current season with the musical comedy, "The Music Man."

Also, for the first time in many years, there will be no symphony orchestra on the Louisiana Tech series. Cultural sights are still set high, however, with such attractions as Schiller's "Mary Stuart," with Faye Emerson and Eva Le Galliene; the Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra with a performance of Bach's "Passion According to St. John," and the National Ballet of Canada.

Both organizations are holding membership drives at the present time and offer a season hard to beat in variety and quality for those who want to take advantage of two series.

ART FESTIVAL

Saturday, northeast Louisiana art lovers, students, enthusiasts and many others who want a slice of homemade pie and coffee in pleasant surroundings will head for the Caldwell Parish Art Festival at the Columbia Community Center.

Theme of the event this year is the Civil War and Allen Jones of Monroe is scheduled to review some of the highlights of that conflict during the morning lecture period. "Yours Truly" and Mrs. Cale are also slated to appear on the program as a team of cultural detectives seeking out "What Happened to Louisiana Music and Art after Reconstruction?"

This is the sixth anniversary of the festival which has attracted over a thousand visitors to Columbia each year.

Roman Finds Faith, Love In 'Exile'

GOD WAS BORN IN EXILE. By Vintila Horia. St. Martin's. $4.95.

Ovid had written "Metamorphoses" to show the Roman gods did not exist. He also had written "The Art of Love," and the Emperor Augustus, assuming this had something to do with the corrupt morals of Rome, had exiled him in the year 9 A.D. to Tomi, at the mouth of the Danube, in a land inhabited by the barbaric Getac, now known as Rumania.

The author is a Rumanian who fled when the Communists took over his country. He too has become an exile, and the book was written in Paris.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Publib Library this week offer material of interest to almost every type of reader. For those who want a book of fiction, there are several interesting books. "The Heart of London" is the title of the new book by Monica Dickens. The author writes well and this is an interesting story with a present day background. "Stranger in a Strange Land" is a book of science fiction by Robert Heinlien. It will interest many readers. "The Gold-Hatted Lover" by Edmund Keeley is another interesting book of present day life. "Gettysburg" by Stephen Longstreet is an account of the battle which sealed the fate of the Confederacy. It is written in the form of fiction and deals with certain individuals who took part in the battle, rather than the military effect. "The Moviegoer" by Percy Walker is a new story by a Louisiana writer and is a story of a man who had a compulsive desire to go to the movies. The author tries to show why he does this and what lack in his life he is attempting to remedy. There are two new murder mysteries. One is called "Three Cases For Mr. Campion" and was written by Margery Allingham and the other is "Shock Treatment" by Winifred Van Atta. For western writers there is a new Double D Western, "The Honyocker" by Giles A. Lutz.

Books about Louisiana are always in demand and this is especially true now that college has opened and many students are taking a course in Louisiana History. This week there are five new additions to the Louisiana Collection. "Creoles and Cajuns" is a collection of short stories about Louisiana, which have long magazines.

"Prehistoric Man of the Great Plains" is the title of a very fine been out of print. "Chief in the Land of the Chetimaches" by Sidney A. Marchand is a collection of articles which have appeared in the Donaldsonville Chief, a newspaper published in Donaldsonville. They were selected because of their relation to the history of the area. Jospeh LeSage Tisch is the author of "French in Louisiana" which is an account of the French language as it is spoken in our state and not an account of the French people. It will be valuable to students of the French language. Edward F. Kerr is the author of a pictorial account of "Louisiana Tigers" which is an account of the two Louisiana Brigades of the army of Northern Virginia, 1861-65. This is a very timely volume since we are celebrating the Civil War Centennial.

The field of non - fiction offers great variety and interest. "Dr. Spock Talks with Mothers" is an interesting book of child psychology written by Dr. Benjamin Spock. "The Fur Trade" by Pail Chrisler Phillips is a very scholarly volume dealing with the fur trade of the west that had so much to do with the settling of this region. "Seasonal Feasts and Fesitvals" is the title of a book by Edwin Oliver James, which contains a great deal of information about these events. A perfectly beautiful new book is "The Sea" published by Life and Time new book in the field of American anthropology, written by Waldo R. Wedel. Much has been learned in recent years about the earliest inhabitants of America. If you have not read a book on this subject recently, I can heartily recommend this one. A book for which we have had many requests is "Ring of Bright Water" by Gavin Maxwell. This is a beautiful book of natural history with the setting in Scotland. It is an interesting account of country life and of otters and their habits. Two cook books arrived this week. One is "The Old Original Bookbinder's Cookbook" by Charlotte Adams. All who ever ate a meal at this famous restaurant, will want to read this book. The other is called "The Gourmet in the Low-Calorie Kitchen" and should appeal to those who want to eat well and also reduce.

A perfectly beautiful new book which will appeal to travellers, archtiects and church people is "French Cathedrals" by Jean Bony. It is a large beautiful book with photographs in color by Martin Hurlimann. An interesting book for those who are planning parties and entertainment is "The Good Housekeeping Book of Home Entertainment." Books of humor are always popular and there are several new ones of this type. "The Rising Gorge" is the title of the newest volume by Sidney J. Perelman. "Over the Fence is Out" is the title of another humorous book of boyhood recollections written by Jonathan Rhoades. A delightful new play by Noel Coward is "Waiting in the Wings."

Many people from our parish travel abroad and many go there to live for varying periods of time. The staff of Pan American Airlines has written a very fine new book called "New Horizons for Living Abroad" which should be most valuable for anyone planning this step. Another lovely book of foreign places is "Florence" by Martin Hurlimann. It is a beautiful book of pictures and text.

Books about the Civil War come from the presses in a steady stream and are always well-received. The newest one is "Morgan's Raid" written by Allen Keller. This is an exciting account of one event in this struggle of brother against brother. For many years Will Durant has been writing his story of Civilization. The latest volume in the series has just arrived it is called "The Age of Reason Begins" and is par VII in his monumental work. The little country of Laos has been much in the news in recent months and new material about this turbulent part of the world is always welcome. "Storm Over Laos" is the title of a book by Sisouk na Champassak, which clarifies many of the issues.

"Senator For the South" by John E. Huss is the title of a new biography dealing with the life of Olin D. Johnston. "I Should Have Kissed Her More" is the title of Alexander King's new book, which is a continuation of his earlier books of reminiscences. Whether the demand has worn out remains to be seen.

Three very fine books of reference were added to the library this week. One is "American Men of Medicine" and is a biographical account of many of the leading physicians of our country. It was given in memory of the late Dr. Walsworth and is a fitting memorial. The Mississippi Genealogical Society is doing a fine piece of work in compiling the Cemetery records of Mississippi. Volume 8 is the last volume of this work and the library is happy to add it to the collection. Another book which was given to the library is a fine book of family history called "Brooks and Kindred Families" by Ida Brooks Kellam. It was added to the genealogy collection.

ROTHSTEIN
AP

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Grace Rothstein is an unusual housewife. She runs a professional portrait studio while managing a household with four action-packed children ranging from 5 to 12 years of age. In her spare time she also attends to sizable flower and vegetable gardens and participates in community civic affairs.

These activities were in evidence when we visited her home in New Rochelle, N.Y., to discuss her photo career. While personally getting dinner ready — for six in her family plus three guests —she took time out to run down to her basement darkroom. There she removed a batch of prints from the hypoo for washing in the water tray. she had enlarged and processed the portraits before we arrived.

Later, showing us the gardens, she picked some of her tomatoes and cucumbers to add to the menu and selected some flowers for the table. A little further on, we came to her studio.

It is a separate, two - room attachment to the garage which Grace painted, renovated and decorated herself. The combination waiting - dressing room has samples of her portraiture displayed on the walls and in albums. The studio room is large, light and cheerful although it looks very business like.

A roll of seamless paper, half a dozen light stands and a view camera on a tripod were in position ready for the next sitting.

For children and outdoor portraits, though Grace has a 2¼x 2¼ twin - lens reflex camera which she prefers. She often uses a sheltered garden nook as an outdoor studio. She finds the late afternoon sun makes a fine natural backlight or sidelight and is easy on her subjects' eyes.

It also was easy to see how Grace had taken to photography. Her husband is Arthur Rothstein, technical director of photography at a magazine and author of a book on photojournalism, whose pictures are in the permanent collection of many museums.

"I was a lawyer when I met Arthur," Grace recalled, "but marriage and the arrival of our children changed my interests completely. I began to share Arthur's enthusiasm and started to take pictures of my own and then the neighborhood children. From a hobby it grew until it became a paying sideline.

"I started a home decorating fad in our city housing development. By running parallel strips of metal picture moulding along a wall, we could slide 11 x 14 inch photographs into display positions. They were easily changed as new pictures were made. These home exhibitions caused widespread comment and brought new clients."

The growing family and business proved too much for their city apartment. When they moved into their New Rochelle home four years ago, Grace also graduated from baby pictures to portraits of teens and adults.

Oil Drilling Is Staging A Comeback

By MAX B. SKELTON

Most early October forecasts indicate domestic operators will drill about 48,000 wells this year. Some industry sources have hopes for 49,000 to 50,000.

The industry drilled only 46,751 wells last year, the lowest total since 1952.

The current optimism is pegged on the number of rotary drilling rigs in the field. The number of rotaries making holes broke the 1,800 mark in July and has remained there.

A 13-year low was recorded in February when only 1,519 rotary rigs were operating.

The average advanced to 1,598 in March, 1,622 in April, 1,700 in May, 1,794 in June, and jumped to 1,834 in July. The July average was the highest since December, 1959, when 2,095 rotaries were in the field.

The improvement continued into August and September. The weekly average for August ranged from a low of 1,838 to a high of 1,870. The September range was 1,828 to 1,862.

Warren L. Baker, executive vice president of the American Association of oilwell drilling contractors, says only part of the spring-summer improvement for 1961 can be attributed to normal season gains.

The increase of 315 rotary rigs between February and July, he said, compares with an increase of only 42 rigs the same period in 1960.

Baker believes the record so far and the current higher rig activity puts a possible 49,000-well completions within reach for 1961.

"If rig activity stays above 1,800 in October, then experiences a normal year-end pick-up in November and December, it is even possible completions might reach 50,000 wells," he said.

The 1960 drilling year ended with an upward swing the final quarter. The October rotary average of 1,733 rigs was increased to 1,807 in November and 1,826 in December. Then came the slump to 1,569 last January and the 1,519 average for February.

The industry moved into the final 1961 quarter with wildcat operations continuing to lag.

Wheat Decline Drops Market In Other Grains

CHICAGO (AP)—Liquidation of wheat by discouraged longs and persistent hedge-selling of soybeans depressed futures prices on the Board of Trade last week.

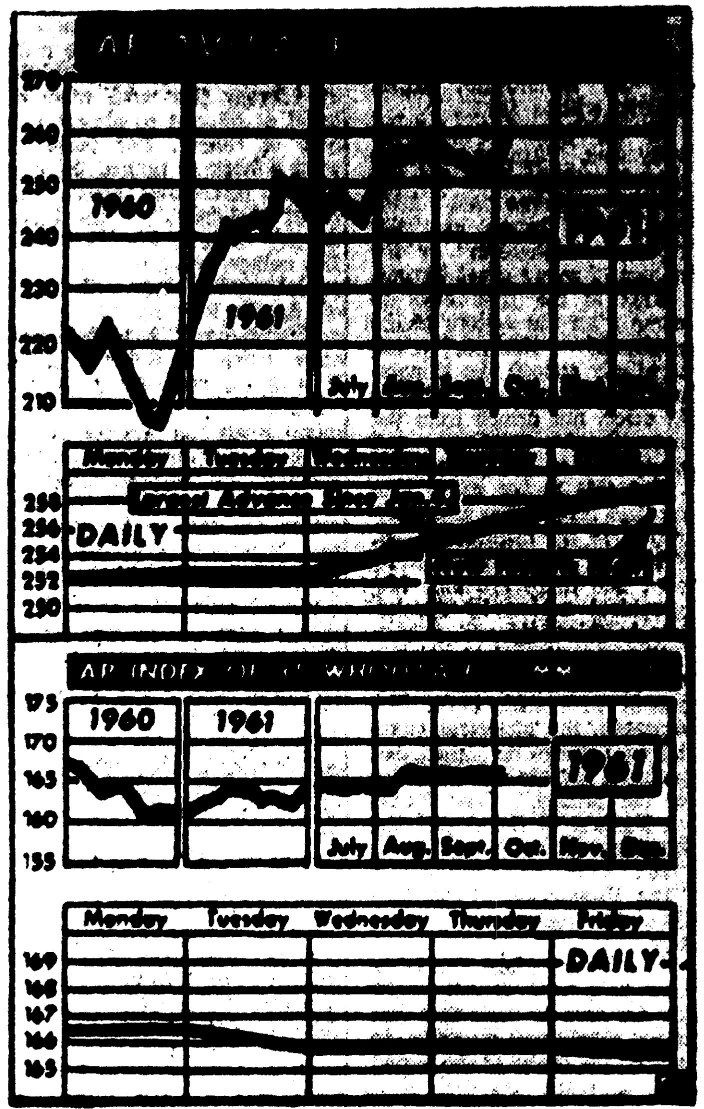
The decline spread to other grains as well. Corn and oats contracts made new season lows repeatedly, commencing with the opening bell on Monday and continuing through Friday. The entire market appeared suffering for lack of constructive influences.

A rally that developed late Tuesday lifted all grains and soybeans to net gains for the day but thereafter the markets declined through Thursday. A second rally late Driday recovered part of losses in wheat, corn and rye.

Losses in wheat attimesranged up to three cents a bushel from the week's low point as liquidation reached its peak and support dwindled. Some buying of futures against export sales was noted but the volume was not impressive.

At the close of the markets Friday wheat was 1⅛ to 2 cents a bushel lower compared with Friday a week ago. Corn was ⅞ to 1½ lower, oats 1⅜ to 2⅝ lower, rye was down ⅛ to 1 cent and soybeans were down ⅜ to ⅝.

For the first time in history, more than 75 per cent of the nation's families now own at least one automobile, with 13.4 per cent owning two or more. Car manufacturers, in an effort to acquaint prospects with the latest developments in their products, spent nearly $114 million nationally in newspaper advertising last year—an 18.1 per cent increase over 1959.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks reached a new historic high when it closed this week at 258.6 from 252.4 a week ago. Led by livestock, the Commodity index declined for the second straight week to 165.6 from 166.4 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Drilling Continues In Potential Pool

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Cities Service Oil Co. has drilled below 13,900 feet in a potential pool opener in Smith County.

The wildcat, the Hough No. 1, sec. 6-10-n-16w, has logged oil sand at 13,773-93 feet and tested commercial gas production from a 27-foot sand logged at 13,098 feet in the Rhodessa formation.

The well is scheduled to be drilled to 14,650 feet and was reported to be lower on structure than wells in the nearby Magee field.

In Hinds County, Olin Oil and Gas Corp. prepared to complete a wildcat, the Wolfe No. 1, sec. 26-3n-2w. Operators estimated the well will flow 130 barrels per day from perforations at 13,008-42 feet.

Reports indicate operators plan to install pumping equipment for official completion. It was drilled to 14,548 feet.

Pan American Petroleum Corp. neared completion of a Covington County discovery, the Windham No. 1, sec. 25-8n-15w, as a dual producer in the Rodessa and Mooringsport formations.

The well tested 648 barrels of oil daily from the Rodessa formation at 13,725-31 feet and the Mooringsport zone flowed 210 barrels at 13,126-31 feet.

Also in Covington County, Pan American neared contract depth in a second wildcat, the Davis No. 1, sec. 4-7n-17w. Contract depth is 13,500 feet, with drilling depth below 13,480.

Victor Smith was below 10,580 feet in a Madison County wildcat, the Parkinson No. 1, sec. 23-9n-1w, with the well scheduled to 11,000 feet.

Three wildcat operations were under way in Amite County.

Trans-State Oil Co. was below 7,500 feet in the Kenna Heirs No. 1, sec. 25-4n-5e, and Serio-Punches Oil Co was at 8,600 feet in the Carruth No. 1, sec. 24-4n-6e. D. A. Biglane and Pan American were below 6,000 feet in the Young No. 1, sec. 8-4n-6e.

All three wells were scheduled to 11,000 feet.

Field drilling the past week brought two new oilers.

In the McElveen field of Amite County, Cecil Heidelberg Jr. completed the Carruth No. 1, sec. 23-3n-6e, which flowed 222 barrels per day from a sand at 11,097-12,007 feet.

At Merit in Simpson County, Justiss-Mears Oil Co. completed the Allison-Sykes No. 1, sec. 17-1n-re, which flowed 288 barrels per day from a sand at 11,918-30 feet.

Auto Industry Seems Unsure Of Demands

DETROIT, (AP) — If you cut through all the bally-hoo which has accompanied the introduction of 1962 model cars you may decide the auto industry isn't at all sure what type of car you want.

For years the Detroit manufacturers have been accused by some critics of forcing their taste upon the public. The switch to foreign cars, which reached its peak in 1959, was viewed by these critics as a rebellion against the domestic makers, rather than a sudden love affair with everything foreign.

Today's car buyer still may suffer from a plethora of "Detroit modern". But no longer can he reigster a valid complaint of lack of choice.

Obviously shaken by changes in buying habits and the sudden serge of imports a few years back, the American manufacturers renounced their long-standing policy of gambling on a single car and began hedging their bets with a multitude of sizes and price classes.

Ford Motor Co. is a prime example. Henry Ford built Ford cars. His Model T was a Model T year after year. Much the same was true with the Model A.

For 1962 Ford is making more than 70 models, half of them labeled Ford, and more will be coming before the model year is over.

Chevrolet has four distinct car lines, all sold as Chevrolets. These are the so-called standard car, the Corvair, the new Chevy II and the Corvette sports car.

But diversification is not limited. Every manufacturer from Studebaker-Packard up has two or more wheelbase sizes. Except for Chrysler, each of the traditional low price and medium price names has a car line selling in some other category, specifically what have been called compacts.

Old categories of price, size and horsepower have dissolved. A survey by Ward's Automotive Reports showed horsepower choices in domestic cars in the 1961 model year ranged from 80 to 401. But 28 per cent of the compacts came equipped with engines with equal or higher horsepower than the average standard size car.

Big cars have gotten smaller—noticeably the Lincoln Continental—and small cars have gotten bigger—the Studebaker Lark grew 9 to 13 inces for 1962.

More than 400 individual models are being marketed by the five American passenger car builders in 1962, a jump of more than 10 per cent in a single year.

Even a conservative purchaser will add $100 or more in optional equipment to any car he buys and his choice of options is limitless compared with 10 years ago. A man could spend hours just deciding what rear axle ratio to match with whichever of three or four transmissions he wanted.

With such variety the year ahead will be tricky for the companies. Profits depend on volume and volume in any one particular model or series is difficult to achieve when the customer has a wide choice.

American Motors was the only company to buck the variety trend for 1962. George Romney cut his model offerings by 30 per cent and dropped from three sizes of cars to two.

Appliances, Autos Show Bright Notes

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The consumer is opening up his wallet and doing more buying.

That became evident during the week in the appliance, furniture an dautomobile industries.

Another bright note was an improvement in the unemployment situation.

But the second big strike within a month in the automobile industry was a dampening factor. On the heels of settlement of a walkout against General Motors Corp., the United Automobile Workers Union called out 120,000 Ford Motor Co. workers and shut down that company's production.

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges reported retail sales are "beginning to perk up." He predicted a rather substantial improvement in the next few months.

An indication of increased buying was the fact that consumers increased their installment debt by $26 million in August after a $74 reduction in July.

The appliance industry, which has been hard-pressed lately, reported a sharp increase in sales in September. Borg - Warner's Norge division factory sales were 59 per cent above September 1960. General Electric's Hotpoint division said its late September sales were the highest in three years. A September sales gain of 20 per cent over a year ago was reported by American Motors' Kelvinator division.

A pickup in buying was noted by the furniture industry. Sales for many dealers have moved ahead of the 1960 level for the first time this year. Some major producers have increased prices two to five per cent and most retailers are passing the hikes along to customers.

Automakers found a lively demand as they introduced their 1962 models. For example, there were these results: Studebaker-Packard reported dealers sold 3,562 Larks in the final 10 days of September, its highest 10-day figure since June 1960. General Motors, said its dealers sold 20,000 Pontiacs and Tempests in the most successful 10-day introductory period in Pontiac's history, and that Cadillac's 5,811 sales represented its second highest sales for any 10 days.

Ford and the UAW agreed on national economic terms — pretty much the same as in the new General Motors contract—but failure to resolve all issues brought a strike at the company's 85 plants on Tuesday.

Union and management representatives worked doggedly to settle national noneconomic issues and local grievances in an effort to keep the strike from stringing out for two weeks as did the General Motors work stoppage.

The Ford strike gouged into production, cutting output during the week to an estimated 106,000 passenger cars from 122,593 last week and 140,984 a year ago.

The industry built its 500,000th car of the 1962 model run but was far behind schedule. The GM strike slashed an estimated 160,000 cars from September output.

The auto industry's labor troubles have resulted in failure of the carmakers to increase their steel orders for October and November. Nevertheless, steel production is holding up well. Estimated output during the week was 2,131,000 tons, the highest for any week this year.

With business maintaining a high level, unemployment declined by 457,000 in September to 4,085,000. The Labor Depamrettn 4,085,000. The Labor Department predicted that the total would go under four million this month for the first time in a year.

Secretary of Commerce Hodges forecast a gross national product—total value of all goods and services—of a record $530 billion this year, $575 billion in 1962, and $650 billion in 1963.

Briefly around the business scene: R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. opened a $32-million cigarette manufacturing plant—the world's biggest—in Winston-Salem, N. C. . . . U. S. savings bond redemptions in August exceeded sales by $22 million . . . Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. plans to build a $49-million pipeline to increase natural gas deliveries to the New York-Philadelphia-New Jersey metropolitan areas . . . The Federal Home Loan Board reported a 50 per cent increase over last year in foreclosures on city dwellings and other nonfarm real estate.

Stocks Score Best Advance In 2 Months

Economy Report Given Boost By Market Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week shrugged off the nationwide strike against Ford Motor Co. and scored its best advance in two months.

The much-maligned rail stocks spearheaded the rally as they responded both to technical trading indications and to news that estimated net income of Class I railroads in Augut au $60 million compared with $30 million in August 1960.

Tmi)bore solid testimony to the u0sweep in the economy, despite the interruption of strikes in the automobile industry. It was underline by the news that rail freight shipments in the latest week were the largest in about a year.

There were some other encouraging reports about the economy. These, added to the fact that the stock market had been declining more than advancing in the previos four weeks, laid the basis for a rally which was partly technical and partly based on news.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week rose 4.20 to an historic high of 258.60. It was the biggest gain in this average since the week ended Aug. 5, when it rose 5.20.

Volume was a routine 16,240,792 shares compared with 16,556,424 the previous week. Traders were distracted to some extent, but not as much as in some previous years, by the start of World Series baseball.

The week began on an uncertain note. Wall Street was dampened by uncertainity as to whether Ford would be struck. At the same time, the price of copper scrap was reduced and copper shares gave ground. When the strike against Ford actually went into effect Tuesday, the market's reaction was one of caution and inaction rather than fear. The list was off irregularly as volume dwindled.

The signal for the rally was given by rails early on Wednesday, when they topped the August rally peak in the Dow Jones rail average, an event hoped for by those bullishly inclided. As the session continued they also bettered the May high in the Dow average.

Buying spread throughout the list, giving the market its best daily advance in nine months, based on the AP average. The rise in the AP rail average was the best in nearly four years.

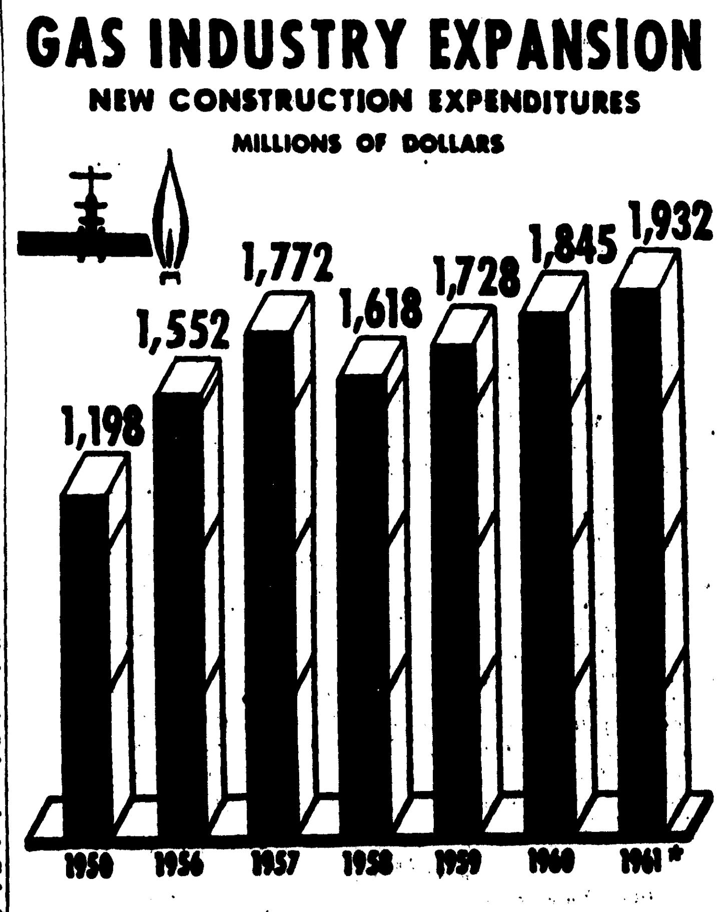
On the bond market, corporates marched to higher ground, extendi.; a trend of several weeks.

With U.S. governments, the trend was less clearcut as an advance that began in mid-September and continued after a brief pause during the week bega. to run out of steam.



THE GAS UTILITY industry, including natural gas pipelines will spend a record $1.9 billion for expansion of transmission, distribution and storage facilities in 1961. Record outlays of $1.8 billion in 1960 were 50 percent higher than construction expenditures in 1950.

Three New Rigs Highlight Week In Oil District

Headlining last week's activity in the Monroe Oil & Gas District were completions on three new oil rigs—two of them in LaSalle Parish, the third in Concordia. There were, however, no reports of completions or new locations staked in Ouachita Parish, though one well was abandoned.

Concordia continued to lead the field in new activity throughout the 14-parish district, according to releases from Manager Duncan S. Cook. A total of three new locations were staked during the week, in addition to the well placed into production.

Overall, Cook's report showed staking of 18 new locations, bringing the district total up to 64. Twenty-six were active, of which six were testing. There were two re-completions.

Frozen Foods Industry Slated For Anniversary

NEW YORK UPI) —Sometime this autumn, a marketing idea which has become almost as familiar a fixture in the food store as the cash register will celebrate its 30th birthday.

It was in the fall of 1931, advertising sources here show, that the processed frozen vegetable first appeared in the refrigerators and freesers of a small series of stores in the New England states. The choice of that area apparently was prophetic; in recent years, the frozen food has gained rapidly in popularity in old England, too.

It was after the late Clarence Bob Birdseye got into the frozen food field and later worked with a group of researchers at Seabrook Farms in Southern New Jersey that the frozen food concept picked up the impetus that led it to its present place in the American scene.

A popular story in the industry is that Birdseye got the idea for quick - freezing meat because he left a freshly-caught fish overnight in a pail of water in subzero temperatures. Later he defrosted it and found that when cooked it was the same in taste and quality as it would have been at the time he caught it.

At any rate, development of the food freezing process early showed that vegetables were a greater problem than meats; plain "quick-freezing" was not enough.

Researchers on the Seabrook Farms took up the problem. They found that blanching and then quick freezing prevented the effects which freezing alone produced.

The frozen vegetables eventually found their way into the stores, where, industry sources say, frozen foods now make up 4½ per cent of all food purchases.

Refinements of the original idea now have broadened the choice and variety of frozen foods. Many are now pre-cooked; perhaps 30 per cent of the frozen food volume. The farm operation at Seabook has expanded into the largest of the farming-freezing operations in the country and branched into plants and cold storages in California, Idaho and Georgia.

Major companies in the business keep working at new ways to offer frozen foods.

In the very near future, they say, the frozen food section in a supermarket will look like any shelf for dry groceries; an airwall will keep the contents at subsero temperatures.

New hot food vending machines will keep meals deep frozen until the proper coins are deposited: then within seconds or minutes the food will be delivered piping hot.

2 Aerial Basket Trucks Delivered For LP&L Use

Two new aerial basket trucks have been delivered to Louisiana Power and Light Company for use in the Company's Northern Division.

J. W. Gaines, manager of the division, said one of the units will be assigned to a line construction crew headed by Sam Allen, and the other to a transformer maintenance crew whose foreman is Henry Young. Both crews work throughout the division, Gaines said.

Gaines said the new trucks are designed to lift a serviceman or lineman 43 feet into the air—and, in most cases, they eliminate the need for climbing poles.

"This is another step by our company to make good service even better—and to do it in a way which is safer for Company employees and, at the same time, make daily operations more efficient," Gaines said.

Flavor Booster Is Patented By Solvents

Commercial Solvents Corporation has announced that it has the exclusive rights to a patented new microbiological process for making monosodium glutamate, the flavor booster which makes food taste better.

Maynard C. Wheeler, Commercial Solvents president, said that two major units of the company's biological production facilities at Terre Haute, Indiana, are being converted and expanded to make monosodium glutamate in commercial quantities. By June, 1962, Commercial Solvents will be a major U.S. producer of monosodium glutamate.

This move, Wheeler stated, continues the growth of Commerical Solvents' fermentation chemistry operations which include the production of antibiotics and vitamins, as well as nutrtion products for the feed industry. The company has been producing monosodium glutamate in semi-commercial volume.

The new process, which harnesses a bacterial organism recently discovered in Jana, was developed by Commercial Solvents' research organization. The process produces snow-white, free flowing monosodium glutamate crystals of high purity. The Company has also obtained exclusive rights to the new organism.

Oil Drilling Is Staging A Comeback

By MAX B. SKELTON

Most early October forecasts indicate domestic operators will drill about 48,000 wells this year. Some industry sources have hopes for 49,000 to 50,000.

The industry drilled only 46,751 wells last year, the lowest total since 1952.

The current optimism is pegged on the number of rotary drilling rigs in the field. The number of rotaries making holes broke the 1,800 mark in July and has remained there.

A 13-year low was recorded in February when only 1,519 rotary rigs were operating.

The average advanced to 1,598 in March, 1,622 in April, 1,700 in May, 1,794 in June, and jumped to 1,834 in July. The July average was the highest since December, 1959, when 2,095 rotaries were in the field.

The improvement continued into August and September. The weekly average for August ranged from a low of 1,838 to a high of 1,870. The September range was 1,828 to 1,862.

Warren L. Baker, executive vice president of the American Association of oilwell drilling contractors, says only part of the spring-summer improvement for 1961 can be attributed to normal season gains.

The increase of 315 rotary rigs between February and July, he said, compares with an increase of only 42 rigs the same period in 1960.

Baker believes the record so far and the current higher rig activity puts a possible 49,000-well completions within reach for 1961.

"If rig activity stays above 1,800 in October, then experiences a normal year-end pick-up in November and December, it is even possible completions might reach 50,000 wells," he said.

The 1960 drilling year ended with an upward swing the final quarter. The October rotary average of 1,733 rigs was increased to 1,807 in November and 1,826 in December. Then came the slump to 1,569 last January and the 1,519 average for February.

The industry moved into the final 1961 quarter with wildcat operations continuing to lag.

Wheat Decline Drops Market In Other Grains

CHICAGO (AP)—Liquidation of wheat by discouraged longs and persistent hedge-selling of soybeans depressed futures prices on the Board of Trade last week.

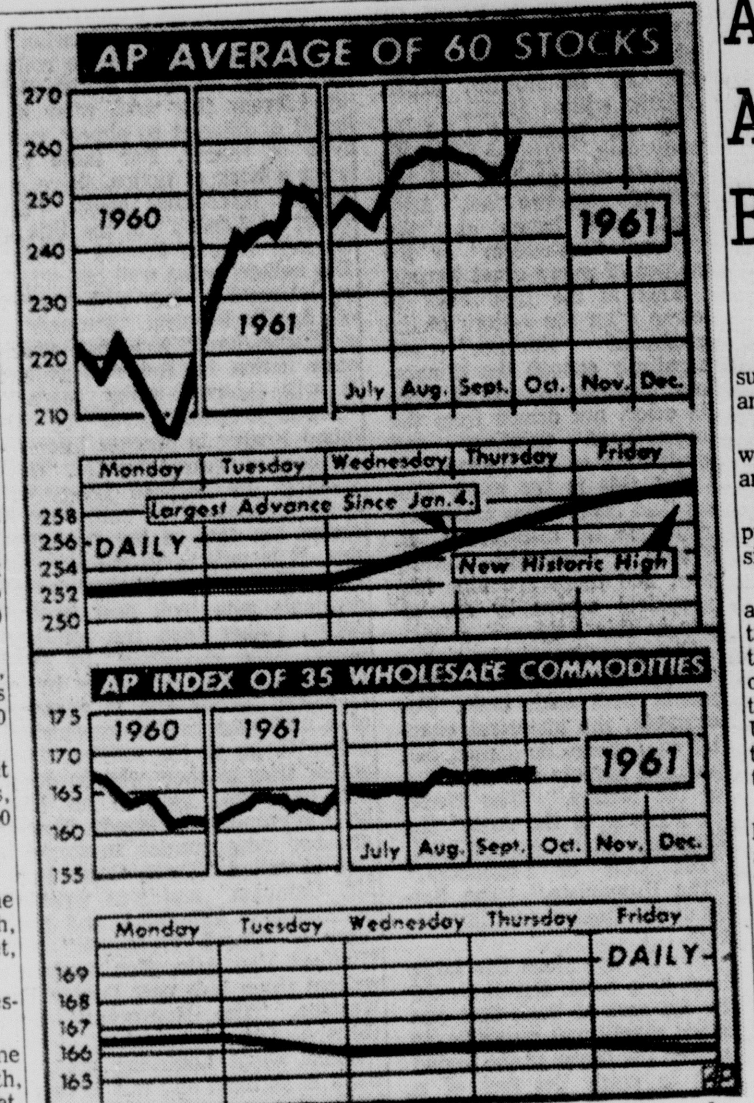
The decline spread to other grains as well. Corn and oats contracts made new season lows repeatedly, commencing with the opening bell on Monday and continuing through Friday. The entire market appeared suffering for lack of constructive influences.

A rally that developed late Tuesday lifted all grains and soybeans to net gains for the day but thereafter the markets declined through Thursday. A second rally late Driday recovered part of losses in wheat, corn and rye.

Losses in wheat attimesranged up to three cents a bushel from the week's low point as liquidation reached its peak and support dwindled. Some buying of futures against export sales was noted but the volume was not impressive.

At the close of the markets Friday wheat was 1⅛ to 2 cents a bushel lower compared with Friday a week ago. Corn was ⅞ to 1½ lower, oats 1⅜ to 2⅝ lower, rye was down ⅛ to 1 cent and soybeans were down ⅜ to ⅝.

For the first time in history, more than 75 per cent of the nation's families now own at least one automobile, with 13.4 per cent owning two or more. Car manufacturers, in an effort to acquaint prospects with the latest developments in their products, spent nearly $114 million nationally in newspaper advertising last year—an 18.1 per cent increase over 1959.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks reached a new historic high when it closed this week at 258.6 from 252.4 a week ago. Led by livestock, the Commodity index declined for the second straight week to 165.6 from 166.4 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Drilling Continues In Potential Pool

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Cities Service Oil Co. has drilled below 13,900 feet in a potential pool opener in Smith County.

The wildcat, the Hough No. 1, sec. 6-10-n-16w, has logged oil sand at 13,773-93 feet and tested commercial gas production from a 27-foot sand logged at 13,098 feet in the Rhodessa formation.

The well is scheduled to be drilled to 14,650 feet and was reported to be lower on structure than wells in the nearby Magee field.

In Hinds County, Olin Oil and Gas Corp. prepared to complete a wildcat, the Wolfe No. 1, sec. 26-3n-2w. Operators estimated the well will flow 130 barrels per day from perforations at 13,008-42 feet.

Reports indicate operators plan to install pumping equipment for official completion. It was drilled to 14,548 feet.

Pan American Petroleum Corp. neared completion of a Covington County discovery, the Windham No. 1, sec. 25-8n-15w, as a dual producer in the Rodessa and Mooringsport formations.

The well tested 648 barrels of oil daily from the Rodessa formation at 13,725-31 feet and the Mooringsport zone flowed 210 barrels at 13,126-31 feet.

Also in Covington County, Pan American neared contract depth in a second wildcat, the Davis No. 1, sec. 4-7n-17w. Contract depth is 13,500 feet, with drilling depth below 13,480.

Victor Smith was below 10,580 feet in a Madison County wildcat, the Parkinson No. 1, sec. 23-9n-1w, with the well scheduled to 11,000 feet.

Three wildcat operations were under way in Amite County.

Trans-State Oil Co. was below 7,500 feet in the Kenna Heirs No. 1, sec. 25-4n-5e, and Serio-Punches Oil Co was at 8,600 feet in the Carruth No. 1, sec. 24-4n-6e. D. A. Biglane and Pan American were below 6,000 feet in the Young No. 1, sec. 8-4n-6e.

All three wells were scheduled to 11,000 feet.

Field drilling the past week brought two new oilers.

In the McElveen field of Amite County, Cecil Heidelberg Jr. completed the Carruth No. 1, sec. 23-3n-6e, which flowed 222 barrels per day from a sand at 11,097-12,007 feet.

At Merit in Simpson County, Justiss-Mears Oil Co. completed the Allison-Sykes No. 1, sec. 17-1n-re, which flowed 288 barrels per day from a sand at 11,918-30 feet.

Auto Industry Seems Unsure Of Demands

DETROIT, (AP) — If you cut through all the bally-hoo which has accompanied the introduction of 1962 model cars you may decide the auto industry isn't at all sure what type of car you want.

For years the Detroit manufacturers have been accused by some critics of forcing their taste upon the public. The switch to foreign cars, which reached its peak in 1959, was viewed by these critics as a rebellion against the domestic makers, rather than a sudden love affair with everything foreign.

Today's car buyer still may suffer from a plethora of "Detroit modern". But no longer can he reigster a valid complaint of lack of choice.

Obviously shaken by changes in buying habits and the sudden serge of imports a few years back, the American manufacturers renounced their long-standing policy of gambling on a single car and began hedging their bets with a multitude of sizes and price classes.

Ford Motor Co. is a prime example. Henry Ford built Ford cars. His Model T was a Model T year after year. Much the same was true with the Model A.

For 1962 Ford is making more than 70 models, half of them labeled Ford, and more will be coming before the model year is over.

Chevrolet has four distinct car lines, all sold as Chevrolets. These are the so-called standard car, the Corvair, the new Chevy II and the Corvette sports car.

But diversification is not limited. Every manufacturer from Studebaker-Packard up has two or more wheelbase sizes. Except for Chrysler, each of the traditional low price and medium price names has a car line selling in some other category, specifically what have been called compacts.

Old categories of price, size and horsepower have dissolved. A survey by Ward's Automotive Reports showed horsepower choices in domestic cars in the 1961 model year ranged from 80 to 401. But 28 per cent of the compacts came equipped with engines with equal or higher horsepower than the average standard size car.

Big cars have gotten smaller—noticeably the Lincoln Continental—and small cars have gotten bigger—the Studebaker Lark grew 9 to 13 inces for 1962.

More than 400 individual models are being marketed by the five American passenger car builders in 1962, a jump of more than 10 per cent in a single year.

Even a conservative purchaser will add $100 or more in optional equipment to any car he buys and his choice of options is limitless compared with 10 years ago. A man could spend hours just deciding what rear axle ratio to match with whichever of three or four transmissions he wanted.

With such variety the year ahead will be tricky for the companies. Profits depend on volume and volume in any one particular model or series is difficult to achieve when the customer has a wide choice.

American Motors was the only company to buck the variety trend for 1962. George Romney cut his model offerings by 30 per cent and dropped from three sizes of cars to two.

Appliances, Autos Show Bright Notes

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The consumer is opening up his wallet and doing more buying.

That became evident during the week in the appliance, furniture an dautomobile industries.

Another bright note was an improvement in the unemployment situation.

But the second big strike within a month in the automobile industry was a dampening factor. On the heels of settlement of a walkout against General Motors Corp., the United Automobile Workers Union called out 120,000 Ford Motor Co. workers and shut down that company's production.

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges reported retail sales are "beginning to perk up." He predicted a rather substantial improvement in the next few months.

An indication of increased buying was the fact that consumers increased their installment debt by $26 million in August after a $74 reduction in July.

The appliance industry, which has been hard-pressed lately, reported a sharp increase in sales in September. Borg - Warner's Norge division factory sales were 59 per cent above September 1960. General Electric's Hotpoint division said its late September sales were the highest in three years. A September sales gain of 20 per cent over a year ago was reported by American Motors' Kelvinator division.

A pickup in buying was noted by the furniture industry. Sales for many dealers have moved ahead of the 1960 level for the first time this year. Some major producers have increased prices two to five per cent and most retailers are passing the hikes along to customers.

Automakers found a lively demand as they introduced their 1962 models. For example, there were these results: Studebaker-Packard reported dealers sold 3,562 Larks in the final 10 days of September, its highest 10-day figure since June 1960. General Motors, said its dealers sold 20,000 Pontiacs and Tempests in the most successful 10-day introductory period in Pontiac's history, and that Cadillac's 5,811 sales represented its second highest sales for any 10 days.

Ford and the UAW agreed on national economic terms — pretty much the same as in the new General Motors contract—but failure to resolve all issues brought a strike at the company's 85 plants on Tuesday.

Union and management representatives worked doggedly to settle national noneconomic issues and local grievances in an effort to keep the strike from stringing out for two weeks as did the General Motors work stoppage.

The Ford strike gouged into production, cutting output during the week to an estimated 106,000 passenger cars from 122,593 last week and 140,984 a year ago.

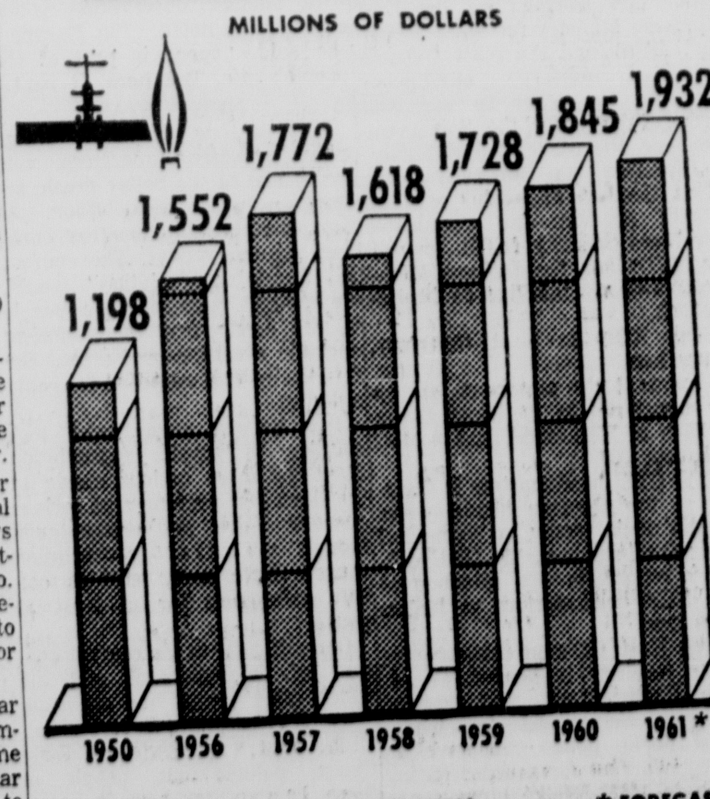
The industry built its 500,000th car of the 1962 model run but was far behind schedule. The GM strike slashed an estimated 160,000 cars from September output.

The auto industry's labor troubles have resulted in failure of the carmakers to increase their steel orders for October and November. Nevertheless, steel production is holding up well. Estimated output during the week was 2,131,000 tons, the highest for any week this year.

With business maintaining a high level, unemployment declined by 457,000 in September to 4,085,000. The Labor Depamretin 4,085,000. The Labor Department predicted that the total would go under four million this month for the first time in a year.

Secretary of Commerce Hodges forecast a gross national product—total value of all goods and services—of a record $530 billion this year, $575 billion in 1962, and $650 billion in 1963.

Briefly around the business scene: R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. opened a $32-million cigarette manufacturing plant—the world's biggest—in Winston-Salem, N. C. . . . U. S. savings bond redemptions in August exceeded sales by $22 million . . . Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. plans to build a $49-million pipeline to increase natural gas deliveries to the New York-Philadelphia-New Jersey metropolitan areas . . . The Federal Home Loan Board reported a 50 per cent increase over last year in foreclosures on city dwellings and other nonfarm real estate.



THE GAS UTILITY industry, including natural gas pipelines will spend a record $1.9 billion for expansion of transmission, distribution and storage facilities in 1961. Record outlays of $1.8 billion in 1960 were 50 percent higher than construction expenditures in 1950.

Stocks Score Best Advance In 2 Months

Economy Report Given Boost By Market Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week shrugged off the nationwide strike against Ford Motor Co. and scored its best advance in two months.

The much-maligned rail stocks spearheaded the rally as they responded both to technical trading indications and to news that estimated net income of Class I railroads in Augut au $60 million compared with $30 million in August 1960.

Tmi)bore solid testimony to the u0sweep in the economy, despite the interruption of strikes in the automobile industry. It was underline by the news that rail freight shipments in the latest week were the largest in about a year.

There were some other encouraging reports about the economy. These, added to the fact that the stock market had been declining more than advancing in the previos four weeks, laid the basis for a rally which was partly technical and partly based on news.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week rose 4.20 to an historic high of 258.60. It was the biggest gain in this average since the week ended Aug. 5, when it rose 5.20.

Volume was a routine 16,240,792 shares compared with 16,556,424 the previous week. Traders were distracted to some extent, but not as much as in some previous years, by the start of World Series baseball.

The week began on an uncertain note. Wall Street was dampened by uncertainity as to whether Ford would be struck. At the same time, the price of copper scrap was reduced and copper shares gave ground. When the strike against Ford actually went into effect Tuesday, the market's reaction was one of caution and inaction rather than fear. The list was off irregularly as volume dwindled.

The signal for the rally was given by rails early on Wednesday, when they topped the August rally peak in the Dow Jones rail average, an event hoped for by those bullishly inclided. As the session continued they also bettered the May high in the Dow average.

Buying spread throughout the list, giving the market its best daily advance in nine months, based on the AP average. The rise in the AP rail average was the best in nearly four years.

On the bond market, corporates marched to higher ground, extendi.; a trend of several weeks.

With U.S. governments, the trend was less clearcut as an advance that began in mid-September and continued after a brief pause during the week bega. to run out of steam.

Three New Rigs Highlight Week In Oil District

Headlining last week's activity in the Monroe Oil & Gas District were completions on three new oil rigs—two of them in LaSalle Parish, the third in Concordia. There were, however, no reports of completions or new locations staked in Ouachita Parish, though one well was abandoned.

Concordia continued to lead the field in new activity throughout the 14-parish district, according to releases from Manager Duncan S. Cook. A total of three new locations were staked during the week, in addition to the well placed into production.

Overall, Cook's report showed staking of 18 new locations, bringing the district total up to 64. Twenty-six were active, of which six were testing. There were two re-completions.

Frozen Foods Industry Slated For Anniversary

NEW YORK UPI) —Sometime this autumn, a marketing idea which has become almost as familiar a fixture in the food store as the cash register will celebrate its 30th birthday.

It was in the fall of 1931, advertising sources here show, that the processed frozen vegetable first appeared in the refrigerators and freezers of a small series of stores in the New England states The choice of that area apparently was prophetic; in recent years, the frozen food has gained rapidly in popularity in old England, too.

It was after the late Clarence Bob Birdseye got into the frozen food field and later worked with a group of researchers at Seabrook Farms in Southern New Jersey that the frozen food concept picked up the impetus that led it to its present place in the American scene.

A popular story in the industry is that Birdseye got the idea for quick - freezing meat because he left a freshly-caught fish overnight in a pail of water in subzero temperatures. Later he defrosted it and found that when cooked it was the same in taste and quality as it would have been at the time he caught it.

At any rate, development of the food freezing process early showed that vegetables were a greater problem than meats; plain "quick-freezing" was not enough.

Researchers on the Seabrook Farms took up the problem. They found that blanching and then quick freezing prevented the effects which freezing alone produced.

The frozen vegetables eventually found their way into the stores, where, industry sources say, frozen foods now make up 4½ per cent of all food purchases.

Refinements of the original idea now have broadened the choice and variety of frozen foods. Many are now pre-cooked; perhaps 30 per cent of the frozen food volume. The farm operation at Seabook has expanded into the largest of the farming-freezing operations in the country and branched into plants and cold storages in California, Idaho and Georgia.

Major companies in the business keep working at new ways to offer frozen foods.

In the very near future, they say, the frozen food section in a supermarket will look like any shelf for dry groceries; an airwall will keep the contents at subzero temperatures.

New hot food vending machines will keep meals deep frozen until the proper coins are deposited: then within seconds or minutes the food will be delivered piping hot.

2 Aerial Basket Trucks Delivered For LP&L Use

Two new aerial basket trucks have been delivered to Lonisiana Power and Light Company for use in the Company's Northern Division.

J. W. Gaines, manager of the division, said one of the units will be assigned to a line construction crew headed by Sam Allen, and the other to a transformer maintenance crew whose foreman is Henry Young. Both crews work throughout the division, Gaines said.

Gaines said the new trucks are designed to lift a serviceman or lineman 42 feet into the air—and, in most cases, they eliminate the need for climbing poles.

"This is another step by our company to make good service even better—and to do it in a way which is safer for Company employees and, at the same time make daily operations more efficient," Gaines said.

Flavor Booster Is Patented By Solvents

Commercial Solvents Corporation has announced that it has the exclusive rights to a patented new microbiological process for making monosodium glutamate, the flavor booster which makes food taste better.

Maynard C. Wheeler, Commercial Solvents president, said that two major units of the company's biological production facilities at Terre Haute, Indiana, are being converted and expanded to make monosodium glutamate in commercial quantities. By June, 1962, Commercial Solvents will be a major U.S. producer of monosodium glutamate.

This move, Wheeler stated, continues the growth of Commerical Solvents' fermentation chemistry operations which include the production of antibiotics and vitamins, as well as nutrtion products for the feed industry. The company has been producing monosodium glutamate in semi-commercial volume.

The new process, which harnesses a bacterial organism recently discovered in Jana, was developed by Commercial Solvents' research organization. The process produces snow-white, free flowing monosodium glutamate crystals of high purity. The Company has also obtained exclusive rights to the new organism.

No Money Tree

THE AREA (Special) — State Treasurer A. P. (Pat) Tugwell again has hit a touchy issue in the State Administration. Tugwell this week pointed out that he is having trouble getting money to school boards around the state.

The basic problem is this — Tugwell contends that the state is in a financial bind. Other administration officials contend they are doing fine.

In mid-September, Commissioner of Administration James S. Riley sounded an optimistic note on the matter of finances for the state, pointing out that the recession was over and that a general pickup in resources was indicated.

But, also in mid-September, Tugwell noted that he was $26-million behind in payments to school boards. He says he's twelve million behind now, but indicated more troubles are ahead.

Some school boards are running three months behind in payments from the state, and Tugwell says he's just helping the ones who need it most.

"We'll be in better shape by May or April," he said, but in the meantime the teachers have to be paid.

The problem, which Tugwell had last year, is caused by the gradual elimination of the various state surpluses over the past few years. The state treasurer could borrow from these when tax receipts were low.

Tugwell said the school problem "has been getting worse the last two years."

Morelle Emmons, superintendent of Lincoln Parish Schools, sounded a note of caution back in August when he said that some 24 school boards in the state had to ask for special assistance to make it through last year. He said then that new inroads would probably be made into Lincoln Parish School Board's reserve by the time the year was over.

Surely something will be done so that the state can operate its schools without having to scarpe around for the money to do it with. We hope.

Holding Back

In the meantime, northeast Louisiana towns will feel the effect of a five per cent holdback on the part of the state on Louisiana tobacco tax collections. About $85,000 is being held back, according to Tugwell.

The funds are being held back until state officials determine whether revenues match budget estimates for the fiscal year. So you can see they're not TOO optimistic. Could be that the various municipal officials around the state feel like Monroe Mayor Jack Howard, who, when he commented on it some time ago, said simply, "I'm against it."

British Hope For Common Market Role

But since becoming No. 2 minister at the Foreign Office last year, Heath has devoted himself to a hectic courtship in the hope of uniting Britain with Europe's Common Market.

He meets all six member-nations of the continental family Tuesday for a preliminary hearing of Britain's terms.

Just like any suitor out to impress somewhat suspicious in-laws-to-be, the 45-year-old Heath will avow Britain's undying devotion and loyalty to the concept of European unity.

The Common Market family—who are they and what are they like?

They are the sum total of the genius and weakness of 167 million Frenchmen, West Germans, Italians, Dutchmen, Belgians and Luxembourgers.

They are ambitious—out to build up a giant, free-trading, united super state in Europe shorn of internal customs and other trading barriers.

They are prosperous—throbbing industries, combined skills, rising wealth, fading national rivalries might in time enable them to compete with the American and Soviet colossi.

They are jealous of their own success—unsure whether Britain contemplates a marriage of convenience or eternal union, worried by Britain's other, older loyalties to the Commonwealth.

But with music in his heart and politics in his blood, Heath feels the serenade he has to play will move at least some of his listeners.

He knows countries like Italy, Belgium and Holland recognize the difficulty that lay behind this island kingdom's decision to shed her centuries-old aloofness from the continent.

He knows West Germany grows cold at the idea in French President Charles de Gaulle's minde of a Europe playing a middle, balancing role between Washington and Moscow.

And he knows that France cannot indefinitely continue her lone wolf role within the economic alliance by blocking Britain's entry if all the others favor it.

Nevertheless nobody is rushing to send out invitations for what would be the wedding of the century.

MEDICAL CHARLATANS

Stiffer Penalties Urged For Quacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stiffer penalties for phony medical men, a broad program of public education, and stepped-up government activity were urged Saturday as part of a crusade against quacks.

C. Joseph Stetler of the American Medical Association told newsmen at the close of a two-day conference of the National Congress on Medical Quackery that he hopes the national meeting will lead to a series of state and local conferences to spread the word that quacks are running a $1 billion-a-year business.

Stetler said the campaign against medical charlatans also should include closer cooperation between health organizations and the Food and Drug Administration, Federal Trade Commission and Post Office Department.

The AMA an dthe Food and Drug Administration, which co-sponsored the congress, are at odds over one proposal.

FDA Commissioner George P. Larrick said his agency should have authority to determine the efficacy of new drugs, and is seeking legislation granting the power. It now determines only whether a new preparation is safe.

Stetler said the AMA is opposed to the FDA proposal. He said the job should be that of the medical profession.

Dr. Morris Fishbein of Chicago said efficacy tests by the government could lead to long delays while bureaucrats made up their minds. The delay could cost lives in the case of a valuable new drug, he said.

Larrick said most state laws on quackery provide inadequate penalties. And a California health official, Milton P. Duffy, told the congress "there is nothing so educational as a stretch in jail . . . or a stiff fine which takes the profit out of profiteers" to combat medical quacks.

Duffy, chief of the California Bureau of Food and Drug Inspections, said medical fakers find their easiest prey among elderly persons, and subject them to "enormous financial strain."

Dr. Harold E. Jervey Jr., former president of the Federation of State Medical Boards, said "it is ironical and incomprehensible that in a society where billions are spent to maintain health, and the death penalty is inflicted for murder, that a quack can undermine health and possibly cause many deaths with no greater penalty than the payment of $50."

Dr. Frederick J. Stare of Boston said nutritional quacks make $500 million a year in "one of the smoothest and best organized rackets in the country."

He said about 60 radio stations carry programs of "nutritional nonsense." Stare said the Federal Communications Commission should "take a long, hard look" at license renewal applications from stations which broadcast programs by nutritional quacks.

Garden Club Meet Slated

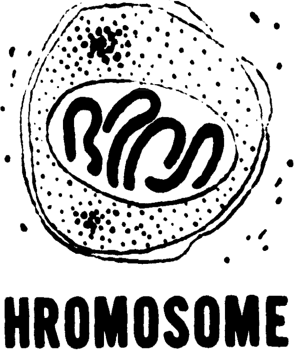
FERRIDAY (Special) — The Ferriday Garden Club will meet Thursday at the REA building.

Guest speakers will be Mrs. Rupert Scott, State Cleanest City chairman, and Mrs. Asa Kiper, State Litter Prevention chairman both of Wisner.



What is a
CHROMOSOME?

The study of genes and chromosomes may someday lead to tha doubling or tripling of our life's span. It is important that we develop scientists to pursue the study of heredity and the other natural sciences.

Unfortunately many potential scientists may never go on to higher learning because there may not be room for them in college. Already many colleges are overcrowded and in 10 years applications will double. We will need more and better college laboratories and thousands more of the highest quality professors.

AIR FORCE'S SALESMEN

Thunderbirds' Business Dangerous, Spectacular

By JOHN L. FLYNN

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Four faster - than - sound jets scream through the sky, so close together their wings overlap.

They climb, they dive, they roll.

On the ground, spectators heads whip back and fourth, up and down, like the gallery at a tennis match.

But what they are watching is anything but sport. It's business. Dangerous and spectacular, but business.

The white-overalled men guiding the 15-ton fire-belching sky monsters are more than pilots. They are salesmen—at work.

Their job is selling the Air Force and—when overseas—the United States. They are the Air Force's official aerial demonstration team.

They are the Thunderbirds.

The people who crane their necks and squint into the sun want to meet the four fellows who ease their planes into a diamond and do rolls with wing tips overlapping.

They want the autograph of the solo, pilot who fills pauses in the show by flipping his F100C onto its back and letting it scream the length of the field. More than 31 million have watched them.

They shake more hands than politicians. They pose for pictures with civic leaders. They answer questions from youngsters. They get more than 200 fan letters a month.

Getting to be a Thunderbird isn't easy.

About 50 volunteers are interviewed for each pilot vacancy. Applicants must have five years flying experience. Tours last two years.

The active pilots vote the field down to five. The leader takes these up for some light aerobatics. Two finalists accompany the team for a month to see whether they fit in.

"After all," said one member, "the only time we don't see each other on the road is when we're asleep, and you have one next to you then."

Wives too must be consulted because of their husbands' long stretches away from home.

Requirements for support crews are nearly as tough.

Pilots consider their North American Super Sabers the best maintained craft in the Air Force. Five of the original six planes assigned to the team in 1956 still are used by the Thunderbirds.

One has 2,000 hours flying time, easily high for the Air Force which figures average life at 1,000 hours.

Pilots rely heavily on crew chief critiques of their flying. Rank holds no weight.

Cass began worrying. Then one day the airman eased into a sour grin and advised his boss:

"Well, after 33 missions you finally got it."

If getting into the Thunderbirds is tough, getting them to perform is even worse.

They have more than 1,000 requests for shows in the United States each year, fill about 90.

Biggest customers are congressmen wanting shows in their districts. They account for 50 to 60 per cent of the appearances.

"If one outranks the other," said a grinning Thunderbird, "that's where we go. Our schedule changes daily."

The precision loops, rolls and turns of the Thunderbirds are the result of hard practice.

On no-show days they try to get in two sessions. A man on the ground watches each show, lists errors individually in a loose leaf folder.

"We learn to think as one," said Capt. Cass, a native of Colorado Springs, Colo. "The commander is our artificial horizon even when we're upside down. We have to accept this, achieving a tight oneness."

Pulling against 5 Gs, says Capt. Cass, is "like digging a ditch siting down. Until your arm is in shape, you can't fly the entire show."

Thunderbirds joke and horseplay among themselves on the ground but they're all business in the air.

The only concession to the familiarity they naturally feel after some time together is the use of nicknames.

The taciturn Texan from Houston, an Annapolis graduate who chose the Air Force and narrowly missed being one of America's seven astronauts, flies immediately behind and slightly below the leader.

He sees little more than airplanes crowding around him like a school of sharks.

"It gets a little crowded once in a while," he admitted.

The tail of his plane is blackened by Major Gibson's exhaust. The heat is so intense that the stabilizer is made of special honeycombe steel.

No Money Tree

THE AREA (Special) — State Treasurer A. P. (Pat) Tugwell again has hit a touchy issue in the State Administration. Tugwell this week pointed out that he is having trouble getting money to school boards around the state.

The basic problem is this — Tugwell contends that the state is in a financial bind. Other administration officials contend they are doing fine.

In mid-September, Commissioner of Administration James S. Riley sounded an optimistic note on the matter of finances for the state, pointing out that the recession was over and that a general pickup in resources was indicated.

But, also in mid-September, Tugwell noted that he was $26-million behind in payments to school boards. He says he's twelve million behind now, but indicated more troubles are ahead.

Some school boards are running three months behind in payments from the state, and Tugwell says he's just helping the ones who need it most.

"We'll be in better shape by May or April," he said, but in the meantime the teachers have to be paid.

The problem, which Tugwell had last year, is caused by the gradual elimination of the various state surpluses over the past few years. The state treasurer could borrow from these when tax receipts were low.

Tugwell said the school problem "has been getting worse the last two years."

Morelle Emmons, superintendent of Lincoln Parish Schools, sounded a note of caution back in August when he said that some 24 school boards in the state had to ask for special assistance to make it through last year. He said then that new inroads would probably be made into Lincoln Parish School Board's reserve by the time the year was over.

Surely something will be done so that the state can operate its schools without having to scarpe around for the money to do it with. We hope.

Holding Back

In the meantime, northeast Louisiana towns will feel the effect of a five per cent holdback on the part of the state on Louisiana tobacco tax collections. About $85,000 is being held back, according to Tugwell.

The funds are being held back until state officials determine whether revenues match budget estimates for the fiscal year. So you can see they're not TOO optimistic. Could be that the various municipal officials around the state feel like Monroe Mayor Jack Howard, who, when he commented on it some time ago, said simply, "I'm against it."

Week's Quote

We select this, from Lt. Gov. C. C. (Taddy) Aycock, as the quote of the week:

"It has been truly said that the whole world watches America, and that America is watching television."

British Hope For Common Market Role

But since becoming No. 2 minister at the Foreign Office last year, Heath has devoted himself to a hectic courtship in the hope of uniting Britain with Europe's Common Market.

He meets all six member-nations of the continental family Tuesday for a preliminary hearing of Britain's terms.

Just like any suitor out to impress somewhat suspicious in-laws-to-be, the 45-year-old Heath will avow Britain's undying devotion and loyalty to the concept of European unity.

The Common Market family—who are they and what are they like?

They are the sum total of the genius and weakness of 167 million Frenchmen, West Germans, Italians, Dutchmen, Belgians and Luxembourgers.

They are ambitious—out to build up a giant, free-trading, united super state in Europe shorn of internal customs and other trading barriers.

They are prosperous—throbbing industries, combined skills, rising wealth, fading national rivalries might in time enable them to compete with the American and Soviet colossi.

They are jealous of their own success—unsure whether Britain contemplates a marriage of convenience or eternal union, worried by Britain's other, older loyalties to the Commonwealth.

But with music in his heart and politics in his blood, Heath feels the serenade he has to play will move at least some of his listeners.

He knows countries like Italy, Belgium and Holland recognize the difficulty that lay behind this island kingdom's decision to shed her centuries-old aloofness from the continent.

He knows West Germany grows cold at the idea in French President Charles de Gaulle's minde of a Europe playing a middle, balancing role between Washington and Moscow.

And he knows that France cannot indefinitely continue her lone wolf role within the economic alliance by blocking Britain's entry if all the others favor it.

Nevertheless nobody is rushing to send out invitations for what would be the wedding of the century.

MEDICAL CHARLATANS

Stiffer Penalties Urged For Quacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stiffer penalties for phony medical men, a broad program of public education, and stepped-up government activity were urged Saturday as part of a crusade against quacks.

C. Joseph Stetler of the American Medical Association told newsmen at the close of a two-day conference of the National Congress on Medical Quackery that he hopes the national meeting will lead to a series of state and local conferences to spread the word that quacks are running a $1 billion-a-year business.

Stetler said the campaign against medical charlatans also should include closer cooperation between health organizations and the Food and Drug Administration, Federal Trade Commission and Post Office Department.

The AMA an dthe Food and Drug Administration, which co-sponsored the congress, are at odds over one proposal.

FDA Commissioner George P. Larrick said his agency should have authority to determine the efficacy of new drugs, and is seeking legislation granting the power. It now determines only whether a new preparation is safe.

Stetler said the AMA is opposed to the FDA proposal. He said the job should be that of the medical profession.

Dr. Morris Fishbein of Chicago said efficacy tests by the government could lead to long delays while bureaucrats made up their minds. The delay could cost lives in the case of a valuable new drug, he said.

Larrick said most state laws on quackery provide inadequate penalties. And a California health official, Milton P. Duffy, told the congress "there is nothing so educational as a stretch in jail . . . or a stiff fine which takes the profit out of profiteers" to combat medical quacks.

Duffy, chief of the California Bureau of Food and Drug Inspections, said medical fakers find their easiest prey among elderly persons, and subject them to "enormous financial strain."

Dr. Harold E. Jervey Jr., former president of the Federation of State Medical Boards, said "it is ironical and incomprehensible that in a society where billions are spent to maintain health, and the death penalty is inflicted for murder, that a quack can undermine health and possibly cause many deaths with no greater penalty than the payment of $50."

Dr. Frederick J. Stare of Boston said nutritional quacks make $500 million a year in "one of the smoothest and best organized rackets in the country."

He said about 60 radio stations carry programs of "nutritional nonsense." Stare said the Federal Communications Commission should "take a long, hard look" at license renewal applications from stations which broadcast programs by nutritional quacks.

What is a

CHROMOSOME?

The study of genes and chromosomes may someday lead to the doubling or tripling of our life's span. It is important that we develop scientists to pursue the study of heredity and the other natural sciences.

Unfortunately many potential scientists may never go on to higher learning because there may not be room for them in college. Already many colleges are overcrowded and in 10 years applications will double. We will need more and better college laboratories and thousands more of the highest quality professors.

AIR FORCE'S SALESMEN

Thunderbirds' Business Dangerous, Spectacular

By JOHN L. FLYNN

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Four faster - than - sound jets scream through the sky, so close together their wings overlap.

They climb, they dive, they roll.

On the ground, spectators heads whip back and fourth, up and down, like the gallery at a tennis match.

But what they are watching is anything but sport. It's business. Dangerous and spectacular, but business.

The white-overalled men guiding the 15-ton fire-belching sky monsters are more than pilots. They are salesmen—at work.

Their job is selling the Air Force and—when overseas—the United States. They are the Air Force's official aerial demonstration team.

They are the Thunderbirds.

The people who crane their necks and squint into the sun want to meet the four fellows who ease their planes into a diamond and do rolls with wing tips overlapping.

They want the autograph of the solo, pilot who fills pauses in the show by flipping his F100C onto its back and letting it scream the length of the field. More than 31 million have watched them.

They shake more hands than politicians. They pose for pictures with civic leaders. They answer questions from youngsters. They get more than 200 fan letters a month.

Getting to be a Thunderbird isn't easy.

About 50 volunteers are interviewed for each pilot vacancy. Applicants must have five years flying experience. Tours last two years.

The active pilots vote the field down to five. The leader takes these up for some light aerobatics. Two finalists accompany the team for a month to see whether they fit in.

"After all," said one member, "the only time we don't see each other on the road is when we're asleep, and you have one next to you then."

Wives too must be consulted because of their husbands' long stretches away from home.

Requirements for support crews are nearly as tough.

Pilots consider their North American Super Sabers the best maintained craft in the Air Force. Five of the original six planes assigned to the team in 1956 still are used by the Thunderbirds.

One has 2,000 hours flying time, easily high for the Air Force which figures average life at 1,000 hours.

Pilots rely heavily on crew chief critiques of their flying. Rank holds no weight.

Capt. Robert L. Cass, who flies right wing in the diamond, tells about his chief who remained silent after each flight during Cass' first month or so with the team.

Cass began worrying. Then one day the airman eased into a sour grin and advised his boss:

"Well, after 33 missions you finally got it."

If getting into the Thunderbirds is tough, getting them to perform is even worse.

They have more than 1,000 requests for shows in the United States each year, fill about 90.

Biggest customers are congressmen wanting shows in their districts. They account for 50 to 60 per cent of the appearances.

"If one outranks the other," said a grinning Thunderbird, "that's where we go. Our schedule changes daily."

The precision loops, rolls and turns of the Thunderbirds are the result of hard practice.

On no-show days they try to get in two sessions. A man on the ground watches each show, lists errors individually in a loose leaf folder.

"We learn to think as one," said Capt. Cass, a native of Colorado Springs, Colo. "The commander is our artificial horizon even when we're upside down. We have to accept this, achieving a tight oneness."

Pulling against 5 Gs, says Capt. Cass, is "like digging a ditch siting down. Until your arm is in shape, you can't fly the entire show."

Thunderbirds joke and horseplay among themselves on the ground but they're all business in the air.

The only concession to the familiarity they naturally feel after some time together is the use of nicknames.

The taciturn Texan from Houston, an Annapolis graduate who chose the Air Force and narrowly missed being one of America's seven astronauts, flies immediately behind and slightly below the leader.

He sees little more than airplanes crowding around him like a school of sharks.

"It gets a little crowded once in a while," he admitted.

The tail of his plane is blackened by Major Gibson's exhaust. The heat is so intense that the stabilizer is made of special honeycombe steel.

TRAMMELL LEADS WAY

Alabama Pounds Vanderbilt, 35-6

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alabama quarterback Pat Trammell opened the flood gates on out-classed Vanderbilt Saturday night and his mates helped roll to a 35-6 Southeastern Conference football victory.

He sent fullback Mike Fracchia into the line on the fourth play of game game and the Memphis junior shook off half a dozen tacklers to thread his way 66 yards for the opening touchdown for the fourth-ranked Crimson Tide.

Trammell, the other half of the Pat and Mike combination, scored the next two, one on an 8-yard run late in the first period and the other on a 16-yard sprint in the second quarter. The scores climaxed drives of 80 and 50 yards respectively.

The Commodores, previously, undefeated, braced temporarily to register their only touchdown late in the second period. Quarterback Hank Lesesne hit Jeff Starling for the 13-yard scoring play. Two 15-yard penalties against the hard charging Tidemen helped set up the touchdown.

Reserve fullback Larry Wall matched that tally, however, before the period was over when he plunged over the Valderbilt one to climax a 71-yard surge in six plays.

Trammell scored the fifth marker near the end of the period from the 3-yard line.

It was Alabama's third conference victory without a loss.

Razorbacks Crush TCU In 28-3 Win

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas Razorbacks smothered the Texas Christian Horned Frogs Saturday night 28-3 in a Southwest Conference game with four long touchdown drives, one in each quarter.

Texas Christian went ahead on a 35-yard field goal by Jerry Spearman in the first two minutes. From there on it was Arkansas, which recovered three Texas Christian fumbles to start as many long touchdown marches.

Quarterback George McKinney scored the first two Arkansas touchdowns, the first on a two-yard sneak after a 65 yard drive, and the second on a one-yard sneak to climax a 52-yard push.

End Jimmy Collier recovered a Texas Christian fumble in the third quarter to start the Razorbacks on a 61-yard drive which ended with Billy Moore scoring from one yard out. Again in the fourth, a Texas fumble was recovered by Darrell Williams. Paul Dudley climaxed a 77-yard advance with a two-yard off-tackle touchdown run.

Late Rallies Get Colorado Exciting Win

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Quarterback Gale Weidner fired three touchdown passes in 10 minutes of the final period Saturday to erase a 19-point Kansas lead and give Colorado a thrilling 20-19 victory in their Big Eight football clash.

The crowd of 42,700 was on its feet through most of the heart-stopping closing minutes as the 6-1, 190-pound Colorado quarterback rose to his greatest performance. Weidner threw touchdown passes of 57 and 47 yards to end Ken Blair, then wrapped it up with a 17-yard scoring strike to end Jerry Hillebrand with less than three minutes to go.

Hillebrand had booted the extra points following Colorado's first two touchdowns, so the conversion failure after the final touchdown was insignificant.

A shirt-sleeved crowd of 26,000 saw the Clemson Tigers score twice in the first half with their passing forays then turn the game into a near rout in the final period.

Demons Jolt Tribe With 6 Interceptions

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Northwestern grounded Northeast State's high flying offense with six pass interceptions and swept to a 28-7 Gulf States Conference victory to remain unbeaten after four games.

Rocked back by a Northeast touchdown early in the initial period, Northwestern rallied for two TD's in the first half and two more in the third period to revenge a 7-6 defeat suffered at the hands on Northeast in 1960.

Al Ott bulled on yard for the Northeast touchdown, set up when Demon punter Jackie Smith got a bad pass from center and was downed on the Northwestern five. Willie Ragan kicked the extra point, giving him 13 successful kicks in 14 tries for the season.

Speedy Kenny Thompson evened matters shortly after the Indian's touchdown with a 53 yard scoring scamper. He later took an eight yard pass from Herbie Smith for the second Demon touchdown. J. M. Maricelli ran four yards for the third TD, and Vick Stelly tossed an 18-yard pass to Steve Murphy for the fourth. Nick Norcia converted after two Demon touchdowns and Stelly passed to Troy Burch for a two pointer after the fourth.

Thompson's two touchdowns gave him a total of 36 points for the season, tops in the GSC. He had gone into the tame tied with Northeast's Ronnie Myrick at 24 points each.

Northeast will try to rebound next week in Monroe against another GSC opponent, McNeese, while Northwestern host Corpus Christi.

End Wendel Drost and guard Terry Burnet sparkled defensively for the losers, while Jerry Fowler, Gerald Yarbrough, Larry Crow and Dickie Rogers were defensive stars for the winning team. Crow and Rogers intercepted two passes each.

Thompson was the games top rushers with 97 yards in seven carries, while Maricelli got 46 yards in as many trips.

Top gainer overland for the Indians was Don Blackwelder who picked 45 yards in five carries. Ronnie Myrick got 35 yards in eight carries, and Ragen got 17 yards on four runs.

Northeast tried 10 passes and completed two for a net of eight yards. The Demons connected on 5 of ten for 65 yards.

Northwestern had 15 first-downs to nine for the Indians, and had 254 yards in total offense to 148 for Northeast.

Northeast opened the game strongly, taking the kickoff and reeling off three quick first downs to move to the Demon 22. But Crow stole his first pass at the seven and ran it back to the 18.

Myrick jitter - bugged around end to the one and then Ott blasted over. Ragan kicked the extra point to give Northeast a 7-0 lead after six minutes of action.

The Demons struck back quickly. They moved from their 20 to their 47 in five plays from where Thompson darted off tackle and raced 53 yards for the TD. Norcia kicked the PAT to tie it up with 6:10 left in the period.

Northeast took the kick off and moved as far as the Demon 37. But a mix-up in the backfield resulted in a fumble, and left Demon Charles Ragus falling on the ball on the 39. The teams then swapped fumbles with Gordon Salsman grabbing a Northwestern fumble, and Roger Williams picking up one for the Demons on their 48.

Northwestern then moved for its second score. Thompson and Maricelli helped move the ball to the eight, from where Smith tossed to Thompson in the end zone. Norcia's kick was wide.

Northwestern wrapped up the game early in the third with a 75-yard scoring march after the kickoff. A Smith to Johnny Norman pass for 21 yards was the big gainer in the drive climaxed when Maricelli rammed over for the score.

Williams partially blocked a Salsman punt late in the third to set up the final TD. Salsman's kick went for only nine yards, and Northwestern had a first and ten on the Tribe 38. Seven plays later, with fourth and six on the 18 Stelly hit Murphy with a TD pass. Norcia faked a kick and Stelly tossed to Burch for a two pointer to make the final score 28-7.

Northeast made a last bid for a touchdown in the fourth. Starting on their 44, the Indians moved to the Demons 17, helped by a 15-yard penalty when an ineligible Demon re-entered the game. An 11-yard pass from Myrick to end Gene Harbert was the top play of the drive, which ended when Rogers intercepted a Myrick pass on the one.

THIRD STRAIGHT WIN

La. Tech Grinds Out 12-0 Win Over Stubborn USL

By WAYNE KING
World Sports Writer

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs scored in every possible way here last night to defeat the University of Southwestern 12-0 for their second straight Gulf States conference win.

But it wes a hard fought game with the winless, but improving, Bulldogs from Lafayette giving but doing so grudgingly.

Southwestern held Tech to a very slim 3-0 halftime advantage that came on a Bud Alexander field goal from 10-yards away with only 3:08 left in the second quarter.

A 53-yard drive in the third period netted Tech the only touchdown of the night, with halfback Bob Ashley getting the pointage from six yards out. This put the Ruston school ahead 10-0 with 4:56 to go in the third quarter.

On the next play USL quarterback Dave Adkins was smothered in his end zone by the entire middle of the Bulldog line.

Tech's defense played a good game throughout, allowing only two real Southwestern drives and stopping both of these short of their mark.

On offense Tech's passing game was practically as good as it's been almost every game for the last two years.

Superlative Mickey Slaughter compelted nine of 12 throws for 89 yards, hitting end Jerry Griffin for three and 38 yards.

On the ground the Canines were sporadic. Their blocking was sharp at times. Of the 225 yards total offense garnered by Tech only 155 yards came on the ground. This was just slightly better than the 145 USL picked up running.

Halfbacks Jack Lestage and Paul Labenne were the top ground gainers for the Bulldogs, Lestage getting 35 yards in 12 attempts and Labenne 30 in seven.

Jim McNutt was the best runner fro Southwestern. He gained 49 yards in nine carries and was followed by Vernon Lott with 36 in 11.

It was the third straight win for Tech. They rolled over Arkansas State 47-8 in their opener and followed it with a 21-16 victory over McNeese State last week.

Southwestern dropped its fourth in a row.

Tech took the opening kickoff in its end zone for a touchback. From the twenty they moved to Southwestern's 13 in 18 plays before Southwestern stopped the drive.

Quarterback Mickey Slaughter led the march connecting on four of five passes for 30 yards. Halfback Jack Lestage paced the rushing, carrying seven times for 18 yards.

With a first and 10 on the 15, Tech's drive faltered and on fourth with seven to go, attempted a field goal from the nineteen, but it was partially blocked and fell short of the mark.

Southwestern failed to move after an exchange of punts with Bulldog David Lee's punt going out of the USL end zone, the visitors moved from their 20 to Tech's 25. But here the Bulldogs held and took over with 12 minutes remaining in the first half.

This was the starting point of Tech's first scoring drive. They marched 72 yards to the USL three.

Southwestern took the second half kickoff and again could not move and after an exchange of punts Tech took the ball at their nine.

Lee punted from his end zone 70 yards to the Southwestern 20. Quarterback Adkins returned it to USL's 33, but the invaders from Lafayette couldn't start a drive against the rock - hard Bulldog defense and quarterback Ollie Cordill lofted a wobly punt off the side of his foot that gave Tech the ball at their 47.

Bulldog quarterback Johnny Hudson took over the Tech team and moved 53 yards in 10 plays for the only touchdown of the night.

Alexander booted the extra point to make it 10-0.

After the kickoff Southwestern marched from their 31 to the Bulldogs 10 for their biggest threat of the night.

From the 10 the Canines moved to their 38 where Slaughter hit end Charlie Bourgeois with a pass that he fumbled when he was racked-up hard. Southwestern recovered on the Bulldog 48.

At that point K-9 center John Williamson staged a one-man defensive show, throwing USL a net loss of eight yards on the next three plays.

On the first play he dropped Cordill for minus five yards. Then he retreated into the secondary and broke-up a pass. The third time he burst through Southwestern's line, stopping halfback Bert Resweder three yards behind the scrimmage line.

On the first play Tech swallowed up Adkins in the end zone for the final two points.

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Top-ranked Iowa built up a commanding lead in the early stages but fought for its life in defeating Southern California Saturday, 35-34, as a last-minute Trojan gamble for two extra points failed in their rousing intersectional game.

The amazing Trojans, who went into the game a two-touchdown underdog, rallied in the last quarter and closing minutes to score two touchdowns and set the stage for what could have been the shocking upset of the football season.

Score All Points In 2nd Quarter

By JACK GATES
News-Star—World
Executive Editor

BATON ROUGE — Louisiana State University, looking like the football team it was supposed to be, scored 10 points in the second period, then threw up a brilliant defense last night to knock highly-rated Georgia Tech from the ranks of the unbeaten, 10-0.

Actually, from the opening gun, the Tigers took charge of the game and never relinquished it as they showed unsuspecting offensive brilliance and ball-control. They also used the quick kicking and booming punts of West Monroe's Jerry Stovall to keep Tech off balance and in the hole time after time.

LSU's scoring came with startling swiftness in the second period after they had muffed a golden opportunity.

With the ball on the Tech one yard line, quarterback Jimmy Fields, who moved the first string last night, plunged over for the touchdown, while Wendell Harris booted the extra point.

| | Ga. Tech | LSU |
|---|---|---|
| First downs | 9 | 11 |
| Rushing yardage | 86 | 145 |
| Passing yardage | 70 | 66 |
| Passes | 6-16 | 5-11 |
| Passes intercepted | 1 | 1 |
| Punts | 8-37.9 | 8-40.0 |
| Fumbles lost | 0 | 2 |
| Yards penalized | 10 | 23 |

Late in the first half, with time running out, Harris booted a 22-yard goal and that was the scoring, but it was enough as the hard - charging Tigers pounded through time after time to stop Tech threats.

Almost from the start, it appeared LSU was the best team on the field last night to the amazement of a sellout crowd of 68,000. Taking the opening kickoff on their own 21, the Tigers, on a 22-yard fields to Harris pass moved to the 47 and finally ended up at the Tech 44 before they had to kick. From there Stovall kicked dead on the Tech nine yard line.

Tech couldn't go and punted to the Tigers on the LSU 48. Heading goalward again, the Tigers' drive stalled when left halfback Don Toner of Tech intercepted a field pass on his own 35.

Neither side threatened the remainder of the quarter. As the second period opened, LSU had possession of the ball on its own 40. The go team, with Lynn Amedee as quarterback started moving. Amedee hit halfback Ray Wilkins with a nine yarder. Then halfback Bo Campbell and Cranford carried it to the Tech 18. On the next play, after gaining six yards, Campbell fumbled and halfback Williamson recovered for Tech on the Tech 16. Three plays later, Tech quarterback Bill Lothridge, back to punt on fourth down, fumbled and LSU end Bob Flury charged in and pinned him to the ground.

On the first play, big fullback Earl Gros crashed 11 yards, taking the ball to the Tech four yard line. On the next play, he picked up three and almost got away for the score. However, on the next play, Fields slipped over right tackle for the tally.

Tech's yellowjackets, conquerors of Rice, the team that beat LSU 16 to 3 in the opening game of the season made a desperate effort to come back. Taking the ball on their 20, the Jackets moved to their own 38. From that Stan Gann, Tech's heralded quarterback went back to pass and three downfield. But LSU fullback Buddy Hamic got in the way and intercepted in on the LSU 45 and returned to the Tech 29 before he was stopped.

With time running out, Amedee hit Wilkins with a nine yard pass, moving the ball to the 19. Two attempted passes and a short run, LSU was at the Tech 16, with less than nine seconds left in the half. It was from this point that Harris calmly booted the 22 yard field goal.

Ironically, Tech made only one first down in the first half and picked up a total offense of only 38 yards, while LSU moved for 131, 66 passing and 65 on the ground.

Shortly after the second half, Tech pulled a razzle - dazzle play that almost went for a touchdown. Back to punt on his own 18, Lothridge, instead, threw a screen pass to Williamson that was good for 44 yards and a first down on the LSU 30. Tech then moved to the LSU four yard line and a first down, but the Tiger defense refused to give. With a foot to go for the score on fourth down, Tech fullback Mike McNames charged hard, but Stovall and Harris moved in and threw him for a two-yard loss.

Forced to kick, Stovall, lofted a short one and Tech ended up on LSU's 39 yard line. The Yellow Jackets moved to the LSU 29, but failed to go any further.

Two series of plays later, LSU had possession of the ball on its own 18. Gros, crashing off right tackle fumbled and Williamson pounced on it again for Tech.

In scoring position again, Tech pulled out all the stops in an effort to score, but on three plays, the hard charging LSU line had driven the Jackets back to the 35, crashing through to throw both Lothridge and Gann for losses.

Tech's final scoring drive came late in the final period. Taking the ball on their own 20, the Yellow Jackets, aided by two offside penalties against LSU, both of which gave them a first down. Moved to the LSU 27. But again, the Tigers held and that was the ball game — a sweet one for LSU and its fans, but a tough one for Tech.

There were numerous football heroes for LSU. In the line, there were such standouts as guard Roy Winston, end Jack Gates, both of whom played half of the ball game in the Tech backfield; Bill Booth, guard Dan Hargett, and guard Monk Guillot.

In the backfield Hamic was credited with six tackles and four assists, Gros, six and two assists, Stovall five, with three assists.

Stovall, having one of his better nights punting, ended up with a 40 yard average, but several times he boomed the Tigers out of trouble. One punt went for 52 yards, and another for 47.

Ironically, LSU beat Tech at its own game. The Yellow Jackets were touted as a passing team and the Tigers were supposed to be weak in that department.

Gann and Lothridge attempted 16 passes and completed six for 70 yards, while LSU attempted 11 and completed five for 66 yards. On the ground, it was LSU with 145 yards and Tech with 86.

Gros was the leading Tiger rushing ace, picking up 37 yards on 8 tries. Harris got 30 on four attempts, Wilkins 24, Campbell 12, Cranford 17 and Stovall 10.

Tech's leaders were McNames with 37 yards in nine attempts, Williamson with 32.

LSU Coach Paul Dietzel, who perhaps won the key game in his career at Tigertown, said he was "real proud of the fine scouting job done by Coaches George Terry and Larry Jones and the defensive preparation by Coaches Charles McClendon and Terry. I felt that our preparation for this game was excellent and it was thrilling to watch our 33 starters who gave a magnificent performance."

Badgers Swat Hoosiers With 2 Field Goals

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Indiana's revamped Hoosiers put a damper on Ron Miller's touchdown arm Saturday, but Jim Bakken booted two field goals to give Wisconsin a 6-3 Big Ten victory over the Hoosiers.

Indiana, with its games counting in the Big Ten after a year's "no-count" penalty for overzealous recruiting, kept Miller's throwing arm contained most of the afternoon but couldn't muster a touchdown themselves.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Statistics of the Wisconsin-Indiana game:

The Badgers scored with 3:57 remaining in the first quarter on Bakken's 32-yard boot—his first good one after six misses this season. Miller set it up with an 8-yard pass to Ron Carlson.

Indiana had threatened mildly twice earlier, but Bill Smith intercepted Byron Broome's pass on the Wisconsin 27 and Merritt Norvell pounced on the ball when Jim Bailey fumbled on the winners' 19.

The Hoosiers got a break in the final seconds of the half when Nate Ramsey grabbed a Miller pass intended for Ron Staley on the Badgers' 36 with 30 seconds remaining.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard quarterback Ted Halaby scored touchdowns on runs of 55 and four yards while Crimson defenders frustrated Cornell's "lonely end" in a 14-0 Ivy League football victory Saturday.

Halaby launched Harvard's first triumph in the series since 1956 when he faked a pass, sprinted to his right and cut down the side lines on a 55 yard dash less than three minutes from the kickoff.

TRAMMELL LEADS WAY

Alabama Pounds Vanderbilt, 35-6

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alabama quarterback Pat Trammell opened the flood gates on out-classed Vanderbilt Saturday night and his mates helped roll up a 35-6 outheastern Conference football victory.

He sent fullback Mike Fracchia into the line on the fourth play of game game and the Memphis junior shook off half a dozen tacklers to thread his way 66 yards for the opening touchdown for the fourth-ranked Crimson Tide.

Trammell, the other half of the Pat and Mike combination, scored the next two, one on an 8-yard run late in the first period and the other on a 16-yard sprint in the second quarter. The scores climaxed drives of 80 and 50 yards respectively.

The Commodores, previously, undefeated, braced temporarily to register their only touchdown late in the second period. Quarterback Hank Lesesne hit Jeff Starling for the 13-yard scoring play. Two 15-yard penalties against the hard charging Tidemen helped set up the touchdown.

Reserve fullback Larry Wall matched that tally, however, before the period was over when he plunged over the Valderbilt one to climax a 71-yard surge in six plays.

Trammell scored the fifth marker near the end of the period from the 3-yard line.

It was Alabama's third conference victory without a loss.

Razorbacks Crush TCU In 28-3 Win

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The Arkansas Razorbacks smothered the Texas Christian Horned Frogs Saturday night 28-3 in a Southwest Conference game with four long touchdown drives, one in each quarter.

Quarterback George McKinney scored the first two Arkansas touchdowns, the first on a two-yard sneak after a 65-yard drive, and the second on a one-yard sneak to climax a 52-yard push.

End Jimmy Collier recovered a Texas Christian fumble in the third quarter to start the Razorbacks on a 61-yard drive which ended with Billy Moore scoring from one yard out. Again in the fourth, a Texas fumble was recovered by Darrell Williams. Paul Dudley climaxed a 77-yard advance with a two-yard off-tackle touchdown run.

Late Rallies Get Colorado Exciting Win

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Quarterback Gale Weidner fired three touchdown passes in 10 minutes of the final period Saturday to erase a 19-point Kansas lead and give Colorado a thrilling 20-19 victory in their Big Eight football clash.

The crowd of 42,700 was on its feet through most of the heart-stopping closing minutes as the 6-1, 190-pound Colorado quarterback rose to his greatest performance. Weidner threw touchdown passes of 57 and 47 yards to end Ken Blair, then wrapped it up with a 17-yard scoring strike to end Jerry Hillebrand with less than three minutes to go.

Hillebrand had booted the extra points following Colorado's first two touchdowns, so the conversion failure after the final touchdown was insignificant.

Clemson Storms Past Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Striking twice via long scoring passes and adding two more touchdowns on the ground, Clemson overwhelmed North Carolina Saturday 27-0 in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game.

A shirt-sleeved crowd of 26,000 saw the Clemson Tigers score twice in the first half with their passing forays then turn the game into a near rout in the final period.

Demons Jolt Tribe With 6 Interceptions

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Northwestern grounded Northeast State's high flying offense with six pass interceptions and swept to a 28-7 Gulf States Conference victory to remain unbeaten after four games.

Rocked back by a Northeast touchdown early in the initial period, Northwestern rallied for two TD's in the first half and two more in the third period to revenge a 7-6 defeat suffered at the hands on Northeast in 1960.

Al Ott bulled on yard for the Northeast touchdown, set up when Demon punter Jackie Smith got a bad pass from center and was downed on the Northwestern five. Willie Ragan kicked the extra point, giving him 13 successful kicks in 14 tries for the season.

Speedy Kenny Thompson evened matters shortly after the Indian's touchdown with a 53 yard scoring scamper. He later took an eight yard pass from Herbie Smith for the second Demon touchdown. J. M. Maricelli ran four yards for the third TD, and Vick Stelly tossed an 18-yard pass to Steve Murphy for the fourth. Nick Norcia converted after two Demon touchdowns and Stelly passed to Troy Burch for a two pointer after the fourth.

Thompson's two touchdowns gave him a total of 36 points for the season, tops in the GSC. He had gone into the tame tied with Northeast's Ronnie Myrick at 24 points each.

Northeast will try to rebound next week in Monroe against another GSC opponent, McNeese, while Northwestern host Corpus Christi.

End Wendel Drost and guard Terry Burnet sparkled defensively for the losers, while Jerry Fowler, Gerald Yarbrough, Larry Crow and Dickie Rogers were defensive stars for the winning team. Crow and Rogers intercepted two passes each.

Thompson was the games top rushers with 97 yards in seven carries, while Maricelli got 46 yards in as many trips.

Top gainer overland for the Indians was Don Blackwelder who picked 45 yards in five carries. Ronnie Myrick got 35 yards in eight carries, and Ragen got 17 yards on four runs.

Northeast tried 10 passes and completed two for a net of eight yards. The Demons connected on 5 of ten for 65 yards.

Northwestern had 15 first-downs to nine for the Indians, and had 254 yards in total offense to 148 for Northeast.

Northeast opened the game strongly, taking the kickoff and reeling off three quick first downs to move to the Demon 22. But Crow stole his first pass at the seven and ran it back to the 18.

Northeast held the Demons and Jackie Smith dropped back to punt from his 22. He got a bad pass from center and a determined rush from the Indian defeders. Jim LaCoste led a hoard of Indians who smothered Smith on his spine.

Myrick jitter - bugged around end to the one and then Ott blasted over. Ragan kicked the extra point to give Northeast a 7-0 lead after six minutes of action.

The Demons struck back quickly. They moved from their 20 to their 47 in five plays from where Thompson darted off tackle and raced 53 yards for the TD. Norcia kicked the PAT to tie it up with 6:10 left in the period.

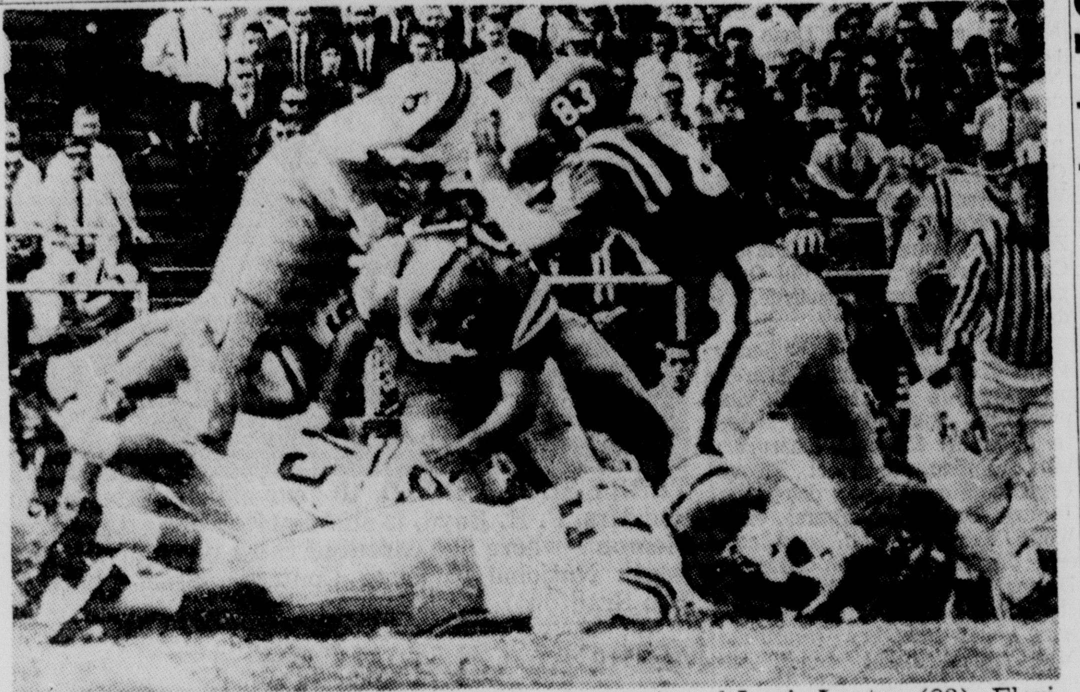
Northeast took the kick off and moved as far as the Demon 37. But a mix-up in the backfield resulted in a fumble, and left Demon Charles Ragus falling on the ball on the 39. The teams then swapped fumbles with Gordon Salsman grabbing a Northwestern fumble, and Roger Williams picking up one for the Demons on their 48.

Northwestern then moved for its second score. Thompson and Maricelli helped move the ball to the eight, from where Smith tossed to Thompson in the end zone. Norcia's kick was wide.

Northwestern wrapped up the game early in the third with a 75-yard scoring march after the kickoff. A Smith to Johnny Norman pass for 21 yards was the big gainer in the drive climaxed when Maricelli rammed over for the score.

Williams partially blocked a Salsman punt late in the third to set up the final TD. Salsman's kick went for only nine yards, and Northwestern had a first and ten on the Tribe 33. Seven plays later, with fourth and six on the 18 Stelly hit Murphy with a TD pass. Norcia faked a kick and Stelly tossed to Burch for a two pointer to make the final score 28-7.

Northeast made a last bid for a touchdown in the fourth. Starting on their 44, the Indians moved to the Demons 17, helped by a 15-yard penalty when an ineligible Demon re-entered the game. An 11-yard pass from Myrick to end Gene Harbert was the top play of the drive, which ended when Rogers intercepted a Myrick pass on the one.



IN FIRST QUARTER action in Mississippi-Florida State game, State's Keith Kinderman picks up three yards the hard way—by air. Stopping him for Mississippi were Donald Dickson (center) and Louis Lenter (83). Florida State players on ground are Don Donatelli (75) and Gene Roberts (41). (AP Wirephoto)

THIRD STRAIGHT WIN

La. Tech Grinds Out 12-0 Win Over Stubborn USL

By WAYNE KING
World Sports Writer

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs scored in every possible way here last night to defeat the University of Southwestern 12-0 for their second straight Gulf States conference win.

But it wes a hard fought game with the winless, but improving, Bulldogs from Lafayette giving but doing so grudgingly.

Southwestern held Tech to a very slim 3-0 halftime advantage that came on a Bud Alexander field goal from 10-yards away with only 3:08 left in the second quarter.

A 53-yard drive in the third period netted Tech the only touchdown of the night, with halfback Bob Ashley getting the pointage from six yards out. This put the Ruston school ahead 10-0 with 4:56 to go in the third quarter.

| | La. Tech | Southwestern |

| Passes Int by | 2 | 0 |
| Punts (No & Ave) | 7-42.4 | 5-35.8 |
| Fumbles (No. & Lost) | 2-1 | 1-1 |

A safety in the fourth quarter with 8:41 left added the final two points.

On the next play USL quarterback Dave Adkins was smothered in his end zone by the entire middle of the Bulldog line.

Tech's defense played a good game throughout, allowing only two real Southwestern drives and stopping both of these short of their mark.

On offense Tech's passing game was practically as good as it's been almost every game for the last two years.

Superlative Mickey Slaughter compelted nine of 12 throws for 89 yards, hitting end Jerry Griffin for three and 38 yards.

On the ground the Canines were sporadic. Their blocking was sharp at times. Of the 225 yards total offense garnered by Tech only 155 yards came on the ground. This was just slightly better than the 145 USL picked up running.

Halfbacks Jack Lestage and Paul Labenne were the top ground gainers for the Bulldogs, Lestage getting 35 yards in 12 attempts and Labenne 30 in seven.

Jim McNutt was the best runner fro Southwestern. He gained 49 yards in nine carries and was followed by Vernon Lott with 36 in 11.

It was the third straight win for Tech. They rolled over Arkansas State 47-8 in their opener and followed it with a 21-16 victory over McNeese State last week.

Southwestern dropped its fourth in a row.

Tech took the opening kickoff in its end zone for a touchback. From the twenty they moved to Southwestern's 13 in 18 plays before Southwestern stopped the drive.

Quarterback Mickey Slaughter led the march connecting on four of five passes for 30 yards. Halfback Jack Lestage paced the rushing, carrying seven times for 18 yards.

With a first and 10 on the 15, Tech's drive faltered and on fourth with seven to go, attempted a field goal from the nineteen, but it was partially blocked and fell short of the mark.

Southwestern failed to move after an exchange of punts with Bulldog David Lee's punt going out of the USL end zone, the visitors moved from their 20 to Tech's 25. But here the Bulldogs held and took over with 12 minutes remaining in the first half.

This was the starting point of Tech's first scoring drive. They marched 72 yards to the USL three.

Southwestern took the second half kickoff and again could not move and after an exchange of punts Tech took the ball at their nine.

Lee punted from his end zone 70 yards to the Southwestern 20. Quarterback Adkins returned it to USL's 33, but the invaders from Lafayette couldn't start a drive against the rock - hard Bulldog defense and quarterback Ollie Cordill lofted a wobly punt off the side of his foot that gave Tech the ball at their 47.

Bulldog quarterback Johnny Hudson took over the Tech team and moved 53 yards in 10 plays for the only touchdown of the night.

Alexander booted the extra point to make it 10-0.

After the kickoff Southwestern marched from their 31 to the Bulldogs 10 for their biggest threat of the night.

From the 10 the Canines moved to their 38 where Slaughter hit end Charlie Bourgeois with a pass that he fumbled when he was racked-up hard. Southwestern recovered on the Bulldog 48.

At that point K-9 center John Williamson staged a one-man defensive show, throwing USL a net loss of eight yards on the next three plays.

On the first play he dropped Cordill for minus five yards. Then he retreated into the secondary and broke-up a pass. The third time he burst through Southwestern's line, stopping halfback Bert Resweder three yards behind the scrimmage line.

On the first play Tech swallowed up Adkins in the end zone for the final two points.

The smaller but quicker Oregon squad played inspired football the first half, stopping the defending national champions four times inside the Oregon 30-yard line and finally scoring a touchdown with only 30 seconds left in the half.

Iowa Fights Off Trojans To Win, 35-34

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Top-ranked Iowa built up a commanding lead in the early stages but fought for its life in defeating Southern California Saturday, 35-34, as a last-minute Trojan gamble for two extra points failed in their rousing intersectional game.

The amazing Trojans, who went into the game a two-touchdown underdog, rallied in the last quarter and closing minutes to score two touchdowns and set the stage for what could have been the shocking upset of the football season.

They went for a two-point pass, but quarterback Bill Nelsen's desperation throw was knocked down in the end zone by Hawkeye Sammie Harris with 48 seconds left, and that was the ball game for Southern Cal.

Score All Points In 2nd Quarter

By JACK GATES

BATON ROUGE — Louisiana State University, looking like the football team it was supposed to be, scored 10 points in the second period, then threw up a brilliant defense last night to knock highly-rated Georgia Tech from the ranks of the unbeaten, 10-0.

Actually, from the opening gun, the Tigers took charge of the game and never relinquished it as they showed unsuspecting offensive brilliance and ball-control. They also used the quick kicking and booming punts of West Monroe's Jerry Stovall to keep Tech off balance and in the hole time after time.

LSU's scoring came with startling swiftness in the second period after they had muffed a golden opportunity.

With the ball on the Tech one yard line, quarterback Jimmy Fields, who moved the first string last night, plunged over for the touchdown, while Wendell Harris booted the extra point.

| | Ga. Tech | LSU |
|---|---|---|
| First downs | 9 | 11 |
| Rushing yardage | 86 | 145 |
| Passing yardage | 70 | 66 |
| Passes | 6-16 | 5-11 |
| Passes intercepted | 1 | 1 |
| Punts | 8-37.9 | 8-40.0 |
| Fumbles lost | 0 | 2 |
| Yards penalized | 10 | 23 |

Late in the first half, with time running out, Harris booted a 22-yard goal and that was the scoring, but it was enough as the hard - charging Tigers pounded through time after time to stop Tech threats.

Almost from the start, it appeared LSU was the best team on the field last night to the amazement of a sellout crowd of 68,000. Taking the opening kickoff on their own 21, the Tigers, on a 22-yard fields to Harris pass moved to the 47 and finally ended up at the Tech 44 before they had to kick. From there Stovall kicked dead on the Tech nine yard line.

Tech couldn't go and punted to the Tigers on the LSU 48. Heading goalward again, the Tigers' drive stalled when left halfback Don Toner of Tech intercepted a field pass on his own 35.

Neither side threatened the remainder of the quarter. As the second period opened, LSU had possession of the ball on its own 40. The go team, with Lynn Amedee as quarterback started moving. Amedee hit halfback Ray Wilkins with a nine yarder. Then halfback Bo Campbell and Cranford carried it to the Tech 18. On the next play, after gaining six yards, Campbell fumbled and halfback Williamson recovered for Tech on the Tech 16. Three plays later, Tech quarterback Bill Lothridge, back to punt on fourth down, fumbled and LSU end Bob Flury charged in and pinned him to the ground.

On the first play, big fullback Earl Gros crashed 11 yards, taking the ball to the Tech four yard line. On the next play, he picked up three and almost got away for the score. However, on the next play, Fields slipped over right tackle for the tally.

Tech's yellowjackets, conquerors of Rice, the team that beat LSU 16 to 3 in the opening game of the season made a desperate effort to come back. Taking the ball on their 20, the Jackets moved to their own 38. From that Stan Gann, Tech's heralded quarterback went back to pass and three downfield. But LSU fullback Buddy Hamic got in the way and intercepted in on the LSU 45 and returned to the Tech 29 before he was stopped.

With time running out, Amedee hit Wilkins with a nine yard pass, moving the ball to the 19. Two attempted passes and a short run, LSU was at the Tech 16, with less than nine seconds left in the half. It was from this point that Harris calmly booted the 22 yard field goal.

Ironically, Tech made only one first down in the first half and picked up a total offense of only 38 yards, while LSU moved for 131, 66 passing and 65 on the ground.

Shortly after the second half, Tech pulled a razzle - dazzle play that almost went for a touchdown. Back to punt on his own 18, Lothridge, instead, threw a screen pass to Williamson that was good for 44 yards and a first down on the LSU 30. Tech then moved to the LSU four yard line and a first down, but the Tiger defense refused to give. With a foot to go for the score on fourth down, Tech fullback Mike McNames charged hard, but Stovall and Harris moved in and threw him for a two-yard loss.

Forced to kick, Stovall, lofted a short one and Tech ended up on LSU's 39 yard line. The Yellow Jackets moved to the LSU 29, but failed to go any further.

Two series of plays later, LSU had possession of the ball on its own 18. Gros, crashing off right tackle fumbled and Williamson pounced on it again for Tech.

In scoring position again, Tech pulled out all the stops in an effort to score, but on three plays, the hard charging LSU line had driven the Jackets back to the 35, crashing through to throw both Lothridge and Gann for losses.

Tech's final scoring drive came late in the final period. Taking the ball on their own 20, the Yellow Jackets, aided by two offside penalties against LSU, both of which gave them a first down. Moved to the LSU 27. But again, the Tigers held and that was the ball game — a sweet one for LSU and its fans, but a tough one for Tech.

There were numerous football heroes for LSU. In the line, there were such standouts as guard Roy Winston, end Jack Gates, both of whom played half of the ball game in the Tech backfield; Bill Booth, guard Dan Hargett, and guard Monk Guillot.

In the backfield Hamic was credited with six tackles and four assists, Gros, six and two assists, Stovall five, with three assists.

Stovall, having one of his better nights punting, ended up with a 40 yard average, but several times he boomed the Tigers out of trouble. One punt went for 52 yards, and another for 47.

Ironically, LSU beat Tech at its own game. The Yellow Jackets were touted as a passing team and the Tigers were supposed to be weak in that department.

Gann and Lothridge attempted 16 passes and completed six for 70 yards, while LSU attempted 11 and completed five for 66 yards. On the ground, it was LSU with 145 yards and Tech with 86.

Gros was the leading Tiger rushing ace, picking up 37 yards on 8 tries. Harris got 30 on four attempts, Wilkins 24, Campbell 12, Cranford 17 and Stovall 10.

Tech's leaders were McNames with 37 yards in nine attempts, Williamson with 32.

LSU Coach Paul Dietzel, who perhaps won the key game in his career at Tigertown, said he was "real proud of the fine scouting job done by Coaches George Terry and Larry Jones and the defensive preparation by Coaches Charles McClendon and Terry. I felt that our preparation for this game was excellent and it was thrilling to watch our 33 starters who gave a magnificent performance."

Badgers Swat Hoosiers With 2 Field Goals

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Indiana's revamped Hoosiers put a damper on Ron Miller's touchdown arm Saturday, but Jim Bakken booted two field goals to give Wisconsin a 6-3 Big Ten victory over the Hoosiers.

Indiana, with its games counting in the Big Ten after a year's "no-count" penalty for over-zealous recruiting, kept Miller's throwing arm contained most of the afternoon but couldn't muster a touchdown themselves.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Statistics of the Wisconsin-Indiana game:

The Badgers scored with 3:57 remaining in the first quarter on Bakken's 32-yard boot—his first good one after six misses this season. Miller set it up with an 8-yard pass to Ron Carlson.

Indiana had threatened mildly twice earlier, but Bill Smith intercepted Byron Broome's pass on the Wisconsin 27 and Merritt Norvell pounced on the ball when Jim Bailey fumbled on the winners' 19.

Citadel, 24-6

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard quarterback Ted Halaby scored touchdowns on runs of 55 and four yards while Crimson defenders frustrated Cornell's "lonely end" in a 14-0 Ivy League football victory Saturday.

Halaby launched Harvard's first triumph in the series since 1956 when he faked a pass, sprinted to his right and cut down the side lines on a 55 yard dash less than three minutes from the kickoff.

Yankees Win On Maris Home Run

Hands Yanks 3-2 Win In Ninth Frame

the winner and last of three Yankee pitchers.

With one out in the home half of the ninth and an enthusiastic Crosley Field crowd of 32,589 yelling for a rally, pinch hitter Leo Cardenas drilled a long double high off the score board in left center field. Three or 4 feet to the right and it would have sailed out of the park for a tying home run. It was hit off this 51-foot high board instead of over the 18-foot wall that runs the rest of the way in left and center.

Cardenas' ball smashed into the board and bounced back so that Yogi Berra was able to return it in time to hold the Cuban infielder to a double. He died on second when both pinch hitters Dick Gernert and Gus Bell grounded out. Bell bashed a one-hopper at Arroyo who pounced on the ball as it bounced off his glove and threw to first for the final out.

The goat's horns were being adjusted to Maris' measurements when he came through with the big blow. He was the only hitless Yankee regular and it appeared the season-long homer pressure had taken its toll. However, he hit a 2-1 pitch about 10 rows back into those right field bleachers, called "the sundeck" in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati crashed through for a run off Bill Stafford in the third inning with the help of an error. Elio Chacon, the Reds' speed demon second baseman, beat out a bunt to the right of the plate for a single and went to second when Stafford's throw was wild.

Two outs later, Frank Robinson, the Reds' big slugger, snapped out of his batting slump, and rammed a double off the wall in left. Chacon scored easily with the first run on this bright, summery afternoon. It was Robinson's first Series hit after seven futile trips.

With Purkey rolling along easily, that run looked bigger and bigger. The Yanks finally got to Purkey for a hit in the fifth, a double by Elston Howard high off the center field fence.

Tony Kubek opened the seventh with a single to center. With one out, Purkey's third pitch to Mantle got away from rookie catcher John Edwards. The ball rolled into the Cincy dugout and Kubek took second.

After Mantle fanned, Berra lofted a fly ball into short right. Robinson came in and Chacon went back beyond the normal range of a second baseman, finally getting his glove on the ball just as Robinson crashed into him. Both went down and the ball rolled on the grass, Kubek scoring the tying run.

Cincinnati bounced right back when Edwards lined a double to the right field corner and scored on Eddie Kasko's single to center. Once again Yankee strategy backfired for manager Ralph Houk, who ordered pinch hitter Jerry Lynch walked with first base open and chose to have Stafford pitch to Kasko. Lynch, a lefty hitter, had a .404 record as a pinch batter this year.

There were two out and nobody on base when Blanchard was called up to bat for Daley. The handy catcher-outfielder had hit four pinch homers this season and had won at least seven games with homers in the late innings.

Leading 3-2 going into the last of the ninth, the Yanks still had a fight on their hands against this underrated Cincinnati club. Gene Freese, a home run threat but still hitless, struck out but Cardenas came through with the pinch double.

Tony Kubek made a fine play and throw on pinch hitter Gernert's roller and Arroyo grabbed Bell's smash to throw him out for the game-ending play.

Whitey Ford, 2-hit winner of the first game with a string of 27 consecutive scoreless innings in Series play, will pitch the Sunday game for the Yanks. Ford had a 25-4 record in regular season and has won more Series games than any other pitcher—eight.

Jim O'Toole, the 24-year-old lefty who lost the opener to Ford 2-0 despite his own 6-hitter, again will be Ford's opponent.

The clubs will play here again Monday and then will return to New York if a sixth and seventh game are needed. In any event, Tuesday will be an open date for travel.

On Mantle, Houk said:

"Mickey was hurting. I would have taken him out in the ninth, regardless of the score." (Mantle was replaced by Jack Reed in center at the start of the ninth.)

"I wasn't too worried as long as we were only one run back," Houk added. "This gang can pop one at any time. Stafford pitched a fine game."

Fred Hutchinson, Cincinnati manager, paid a fine tribute to Purkey for his fine pitching. He said neither of the home run pitches were knucklers. Incidentally, although he gave up 27 homers in the regular season, Purkey had allowed none in his last seven starts, dating back to Aug. 25.

Blanchard said he hit a slider. Maris didn't know what he hit.

"I made up my mind to go after the first pitch," said Maris. "I noticed he wasn't throwing the knuckler on the first pitch. I don't know what I hit."

Purkey's failure to help himself at bat hurt him dearly. In the second he was called out on strikes for the third out with Reds on second and third. Stafford struck him out again in the fifth and also in the seventh after Edwards' double.

The home run ball did it for the Yanks just as it had been doing all season when they set a major league club record with 240.

ROGER MARIS crosses home plate with the winning run in the ninth inning after ending his dismal slump by dumping a homer into the right field bleachers. Centerfielder Mickey Mantle (7) and the Yankee bat boy greet Maris. The umpire is Fran Umont. (AP Wirephoto)

CLUTCH HIT

Maris Stays Calm After Home Run

CINCINNATI (AP) — Vindication came Saturday for Roger Maris but he took his change of World Series fortunes calmly, almost glumly.

Maris, who had 61 homers during the regular season but had gone hitless in 10 times at bat, beat Cincinnati 3-2 in the third game with a tremendous homer into the right field bleachers in the ninth inning. The boos he had been drawing changed to cheers.

"I knew I had it," the New York Yankee said calmly, sipping at a beer and sitting with his back to the packed dressing room with a semicircle of reporters' heads crowded above his.

"I hadn't even hit one out of the park either here or in New York in practice since the Series started. Change my swing? I honestly don't know what I'm doing," he said in a whisper.

The other Yankee homer, the pinch hit by John Blanchard in the eighth, was the result of some strategy.

"I made up my mind to go for the first pitch when I noticed Bob Purkey had been getting most of them in, and furthermore he wasn't throwing the knuckleball on the first pitch. So I went for it. It was a slider. I didn't have any intention of hitting it out of the park, but it was good," said Blanchard.

Manager Ralph Houk felt pretty fine about the day's work.

"I always figure our club can pop one," he said. "It was just a question when we would break loose. Incidentally, our pitchers have sure looked good."

Mickey Mantle, getting into his first game in the Series, came in limping, but asserted he felt good.

Whitey Ford, whose stiff neck has been bothering him, said "I'll be all right tomorrow." But he held his head awkwardly.

Sunday Ford will be going for one of Babe Ruth's great records, made in 1916 and 1918 as a pitcher for the Boston Red Sox—29 2-3 consecutive scoreless innings of Series pitching. Ford now has three consecutive shutouts for 27 scoreless innings.

Yank Victory Meaningless Says Hutch

By HAROLD HARRISON

CINCINNATI (AP) — "This doesn't mean anything. We're not hitting and they're getting the long balls."

That was Cincinnati Manager Fred Hutchinson's comment Saturday after Roger Maris' lead off home run in the ninth inning had given the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and a 2-1 margin in the 1961 World Series.

Hutchinson, sitting in a subdued Reds' clubhouse, pointed out that the Yankees have scored only seven runs in the three games and five of them have been on home runs.

He also pointed out that Vada Pinson, Frank Robinson and Gene Freese have had only two hits among them in the first three games of the Series.

"They have to get some hits or we don't score any runs."

Then Hutchinson quickly added: "I guess they (the Yankees) can say the same thing."

Hutchinson had only brief comment about the mixup play in the seventh inning which led to the first Yankee run.

Tony Kubek led off with a hit that Robinson, second baseman Elio Chacon and Pinson let drop for a hit.

"They can't wait for one another," Hutchinson said. "It was a case of whoever could get to it. I can't condemn anyone."

Robinson said no one called the play. When asked if he could have made the catch, he said, "You're damned right I could have."

Hutchinson also had praise for the pitching in the Series and unhappiness over the lack of long ball hitting by the Reds.

"There has been good pitching all through the Series. The problem has been they're hitting the long balls. We're not."

Bob Purkey, who served up the game-winning home run to Maris, said it was a fast slider and "he hit it like he was using a nine-iron."

It was only the second ball Maris has hit out of the infield in the Series.

Dejected but still proud of his pitching job, Purkey said:

"I'm not ashamed of the game I pitched. But what happened today to me is my story this year. I don't get many runs to go on."

Purkey, who used only 46 pitches in the first six innings and completed the game with a total of 91, ruefully commented on the pinch hit homer of Johnny Blanchard in the eighth inning.

"That ball also was a slider, was just where he wanted it. It was a bad pitch and my fault."

As Manager Hutchinson, frowning heavily, started for the shower room, he made one final remark:

"I can't blame our pitching and I can't blame our defense. We just got to get those hits."

NC State Wins

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — North Carolina State finally found a running attack to supplement Roman Gabriel's passing brilliance Saturday and stood off determined Virginia, 21-14, for its first football victory of the season.

Gabriel, the Wolfpack quarterback, passed for two touchdowns and as usual was the key man in the State attack. But for a change, he got some support from a fleet of sophomore halfbacks headed by Carson Bosher, who had not seen previous action because of an injured shoulder.

Bosher snared a pass from Gabriel on a 37-yard play that gave N.C. State its first touchdown. Later he reeled off a 53-yard run to the Virginia 18 that set up a touchdown.

Huskies Catch Pitt Panthers For 22-17 Win

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington loosed a secret weapon named Pete Ohler on unsuspecting Pittsburgh Saturday, and the rookie quarterback's sharp passing carried the Huskies to a 22-17 intersectional football victory.

The cool young Canadian, who had not played even one down for Washington this year, whipped a 42-yard pass to end Lee Bernhardi for the deciding touchdown in the game's closing minutes.

| | PITT | WASH |
|---|---|---|
| First downs | 9 | 17 |
| Rushing yardage | 187 | 219 |
| Passing yardage | 53 | 202 |
| Passes | 3-14 | 7-14 |
| Passes intercepted by | 2 | 1 |
| Punts | 8-35 | 6-29 |
| Fumbles lost | 1 | 1 |
| Yards penalized | 47 | 78 |

The game was not quite a quarter old when Ohler, listed as third string quarter, made his first appearance. He drove the Huskies 71 yards in six plays, tossing a 22-yard pass to Nat Whitmeyer for the touchdown, then hit Whitmeyer with a conversion toss to put Washington in front 8-0.

Less than four minutes later, he climaxed a 68-yard Husky attack by sending Whitmeyer over from the 1-yard line for touchdown No. 2. He missed the conversion pass, however, and this looked like a fatal error when the Panthers rallied to tie the score before the half ended.

The late-starting Panthers finally got their attack moving the final four minutes of the half. Richard Leeson touched it off with a 42-yard canter. With Leeson carrying the ball on nearly every play, Pittsburgh went 80 yards in nine plays, quarterback Paul Martha negotiating the final 5 for the tally. The conversion kick was blocked, but Pitt was right back when a bit of Washington strategy misfired.

Washington kicked on third down, and the poorly punted ball went out of bounds on the Husky 36. Pitt quarterback Sam Colella pitched two first-down passes, then sent Leeson 2 yards for a touchdown. Martha passed to John Yaccino for the conversion to tie the score.

CADET FUMBLES HELP

Michigan Batters Army In 38-8 Tilt

By DICK PYLE

ANN ARBOR Mich. (AP) — Michigan's bruising line battered Army into submission before halftime and, combined with a devastating ground attack, carried the ninth-ranked Wolverines to a 38-8 victory Saturday.

Some 65,000 persons, many in shirt sleeves in the 80 degree temperature, witnessed the intersectional clash in which undefeated Michigan blistered the previously unbeaten Cadets with a total of 239 yards gained in rushing.

The Wolverines grabbed a 17-0 halftime lead after recovering three Army fumbles, two of them inside the Army 25.

The first set up Michigan's first touchdown, scored by Dave Raimey from the 12. Following the kickoff, Army lost the ball again and after the Michigan attack, stalled at the four, sophomore Doug Bickle booted an 11-yard field goal.

Michigan's second touchdown came on a 47-yard jaunt by Benny McCrae, the Big Ten's hurdles champion, early in the second period.

For the second week in a row, Michigan Coach Bump Elliott was not forced to rely on his passing game. But just to prove he has one, he sent reserve quarterback Bob Chandler into the game in the fourth period and Chandler flipped a 36-yard scoring pass to end Bob Brown for Michigan's final touchdown.

The only bright spot for the Cadets was the passing of Dick Eckert who worked the option plays beautifully and completed 22 of 31 passes for 164 yards and the Cadets lone touchdown.

Yankees Win On Maris Home Run

Hands Yanks 3-2 Win In Ninth Frame

the winner and last of three Yankee pitchers.

With one out in the home half of the ninth and an enthusiastic Crosley Field crowd of 32,589 yelling for a rally, pinch hitter Leo Cardenas drilled a long double high off the score board in left center field. Three or 4 feet to the right and it would have sailed out of the park for a tying home run. It was hit off this 51-foot high board instead of over the 18-foot wall that runs the rest of the way in left and center.

Cardenas' ball smashed into the board and bounced back so that Yogi Berra was able to return it in time to hold the Cuban infielder to a double. He died on second when both pinch hitters Dick Gernert and Gus Bell grounded out. Bell bashed a one-hopper at Arroyo who pounced on the ball as it bounced off his glove and threw to first for the final out.

The goat's horns were being adjusted to Maris' measurements when he came through with the big blow. He was the only hitless Yankee regular and it appeared the season-long homer pressure had taken its toll. However, he hit a 2-1 pitch about 10 rows back into those right field bleachers, called "the sundeck" in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati crashed through for a run off Bill Stafford in the third inning with the help of an error. Elio Chacon, the Reds' speed demon second baseman, beat out a bunt to the right of the plate for a single and went to second when Stafford's throw was wild.

Two outs later, Frank Robinson, the Reds' big slugger, snapped out of his batting slump, and rammed a double off the wall in left. Chacon scored easily with the first run on this bright, summery afternoon. It was Robinson's first Series hit after seven futile trips.

With Purkey rolling along easily, that run looked bigger and bigger. The Yanks finally got to Purkey for a hit in the fifth, a double by Elston Howard high off the center field fence.

Tony Kubek opened the seventh with a single to center. With one out, Purkey's third pitch to Mantle got away from rookie catcher John Edwards. The ball rolled into the Cincy dugout and Kubek took second.

After Mantle fanned, Berra lofted a fly ball into short right. Robinson came in and Chacon went back beyond the normal range of a second baseman, finally getting his glove on the ball just as Robinson crashed into him. Both went down and the ball rolled on the grass, Kubek scoring the tying run.

Cincinnati bounced right back when Edwards lined a double to the right field corner and scored on Eddie Kasko's single to center. Once again Yankee strategy backfired for manager Ralph Houk, who ordered pinch hitter Jerry Lynch walked with first base open and chose to have Stafford pitch to Kasko. Lynch, a lefty hitter, had a .404 record as a pinch batter this year.

There were two out and nobody on base when Blanchard was called up to bat for Daley. The handy catcher-outfielder had hit four pinch homers this season and had won at least seven games with homers in the late innings.

Leading 3-2 going into the last of the ninth, the Yanks still had a fight on their hands against this underrated Cincinnati club. Gene Freese, a home run threat but still hitless, struck out but Cardenas came through with the pinch double.

Tony Kubek made a fine play and throw on pinch hitter Gernert's roller and Arroyo grabbed Bell's smash to throw him out for the game-ending play.

Whitey Ford, 2-hit winner of the first game with a string of 27 consecutive scoreless innings in Series play, will pitch the Sunday game for the Yanks. Ford had a 25-4 record in regular season and has won more Series games than any other pitcher—eight.

Jim O'Toole, the 24-year-old lefty who lost the opener to Ford 2-0 despite his own 6-hitter, again will be Ford's opponent.

The clubs will play here again Monday and then will return to New York if a sixth and seventh game are needed. In any event, Tuesday will be an open date for travel.

On Mantle, Houk said:

"Mickey was hurting. I would have taken him out in the ninth, regardless of the score." (Mantle was replaced by Jack Reed in center at the start of the ninth.)

"I wasn't too worried as long as we were only one run back," Houk added. "This gang can pop one at any time. Stafford pitched a fine game."

Fred Hutchinson, Cincinnati manager, paid a fine tribute to Purkey for his fine pitching. He said neither of the home run pitches were knucklers. Incidentally, although he gave up 27 homers in the regular season, Purkey had allowed none in his last seven starts, dating back to Aug. 25.

Blanchard said he hit a slider. Maris didn't know what he hit.

"I made up my mind to go after the first pitch," said Maris. "I noticed he wasn't throwing the knuckler on the first pitch. I don't know what I hit."

Purkey's failure to help himself at bat hurt him dearly. In the second he was called out on strikes for the third out with Reds on second and third. Stafford struck him out again in the fifth and also in the seventh after Edwards' double.

The home run ball did it for the Yanks just as it had been doing all season when they set a major league club record with 240.

CLUTCH HIT

Maris Stays Calm After Home Run

CINCINNATI (AP) — Vindication came Saturday for Roger Maris but he took his change of World Series fortunes calmly, almost glumly.

Maris, who had 61 homers during the regular season but had gone hitless in 10 times at bat, beat Cincinnati 3-2 in the third game with a tremendous homer into the right field bleachers in the ninth inning. The boos he had been drawing changed to cheers.

"I knew I had it," the New York Yankee said calmly, sipping at a beer and sitting with his back to the packed dressing room with a semicircle of reporters' heads crowded above his.

"I hadn't even hit one out of the park either here or in New York in practice since the Series started. Change my swing? I honestly don't know what I'm doing," he said in a whisper.

The other Yankee homer, the pinch hit by John Blanchard in the eighth, was the result of some strategy.

"I made up my mind to go for the first pitch when I noticed Bob Purkey had been getting most of them in, and furthermore he wasn't throwing the knuckleball on the first pitch. So I went for it. It was a slider. I didn't have any intention of hitting it out of the park, but it was good," said Blanchard.

Manager Ralph Houk felt pretty fine about the day's work.

"I always figure our club can pop one," he said. "It was just a question when we would break loose. Incidentally, our pitchers have sure looked good."

Mickey Mantle, getting into his first game in the Series, came in limping, but asserted he felt good.

Whitey Ford, whose stiff neck has been bothering him, said "I'll be all right tomorrow." But he held his head awkwardly.

Sunday Ford will be going for one of Babe Ruth's great records, made in 1916 and 1918 as a pitcher for the Boston Red Sox—29 2-3 consecutive scoreless innings of Series pitching. Ford now has three consecutive shutouts for 27 scoreless innings.

Yank Victory Meaningless Says Hutch

By HAROLD HARRISON

CINCINNATI (AP) — "This doesn't mean anything. We're not hitting and they're getting the long balls."

That was Cincinnati Manager Fred Hutchinson's comment Saturday after Roger Maris' lead off home run in the ninth inning had given the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and a 2-1 margin in the 1961 World Series.

Hutchinson, sitting in a subdued Reds' clubhouse, pointed out that the Yankees have scored only seven runs in the three games and five of them have been on home runs.

He also pointed out that Vada Pinson, Frank Robinson and Gene Freese have had only two hits among them in the first three games of the Series.

"They have to get some hits or we don't score any runs."

Then Hutchinson quickly added: "I guess they (the Yankees) can say the same thing."

Hutchinson had only brief comment about the mixup play in the seventh inning which led to the first Yankee run.

Tony Kubek led off with a hit that Robinson, second baseman Elio Chacon and Pinson let drop for a hit.

"They can't wait for one another," Hutchinson said. "It was a case of whoever could get to it. I can't condemn anyone."

Robinson said no one called the play. When asked if he could have made the catch, he said, "You're damned right I could have."

Hutchinson also had praise for the pitching in the Series and unhappiness over the lack of long ball hitting by the Reds.

"There has been good pitching all through the Series. The problem has been they're hitting the long balls. We're not."

Bob Purkey, who served up the game-winning home run to Maris, said it was a fast slider and "he hit it like he was using a nine-iron."

It was only the second ball Maris has hit out of the infield in the Series.

Dejected but still proud of his pitching job, Purkey said:

"I'm not ashamed of the game I pitched. But what happened today to me is my story this year. I don't get many runs to go on."

Purkey, who used only 46 pitches in the first six innings and completed the game with a total of 91, ruefully commented on the pinch hit homer of Johnny Blanchard in the eighth inning.

"That ball also was a slider, was just where he wanted it. It was a bad pitch and my fault."

As Manager Hutchinson, frowning heavily, started for the shower room, he made one final remark:

"I can't blame our pitching and I can't blame our defense. We just got to get those hits."

NC State Wins

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — North Carolina State finally found a running attack to supplement Roman Gabriel's passing brilliance Saturday and stood off determined Virginia, 21-14, for its first football victory of the season.

Gabriel, the Wolfpack quarterback, passed for two touchdowns and as usual was the key man in the State attack. But for a change, he got some support from a fleet of sophomore halfbacks headed by Carson Bosher, who had not seen previous action because of an injured shoulder.

Bosher snared a pass from Gabriel on a 37-yard play that gave N.C. State its first touchdown. Later he reeled off a 53-yard run to the Virginia 18 that set up a touchdown.

Huskies Catch Pitt Panthers For 22-17 Win

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington loosed a secret weapon named Pete Ohler on unsuspecting Pittsburgh Saturday, and the rookie quarterback's sharp passing carried the Huskies to a 22-17 intersectional football victory.

The cool young Canadian, who had not played even one down for Washington this year, whipped a 42-yard pass to end Lee Bernhardi for the deciding touchdown in the game's closing minutes.

| Punts | 8-35 | 6-29 |

The game was not quite a quarter old when Ohler, listed as third string quarter, made his first appearance. He drove the Huskies 71 yards in six plays, tossing a 22-yard pass to Nat Whitmeyer for the touchdown, then hit Whitmeyer with a conversion toss to put Washington in front 8-0.

Less than four minutes later, he climaxed a 68-yard Husky attack by sending Whitmeyer over from the 1-yard line for touchdown No. 2. He missed the conversion pass, however, and this looked like a fatal error when the Panthers rallied to tie the score before the half ended.

The late-starting Panthers finally got their attack moving the final four minutes of the half. Richard Leeson touched it off with a 42-yard canter. With Leeson carrying the ball on nearly every play, Pittsburgh went 80 yards in nine plays, quarterback Paul Martha negotiating the final 5 for the tally. The conversion kick was blocked, but Pitt was right back when a bit of Washington strategy misfired.

Washington kicked on third down, and the poorly punted ball went out of bounds on the Husky 36. Pitt quarterback Sam Colella pitched two first-down passes, then sent Leeson 2 yards for a touchdown. Martha passed to John Yaccino for the conversion to tie the score.

Michigan Batters Army In 38-8 Tilt

By DICK PYLE

ANN ARBOR Mich. (AP) — Michigan's bruising line battered Army into submission before halftime and, combined with a devastating ground attack, carried the ninth-ranked Wolverines to a 38-8 victory Saturday.

Some 65,000 persons, many in shirt sleeves in the 80 degree temperature, witnessed the intersectional clash in which undefeated Michigan blistered the previously unbeaten Cadets with a total of 239 yards gained in rushing.

The Wolverines grabbed a 17-0 halftime lead after recovering three Army fumbles, two of them inside the Army 25.

The first set up Michigan's first touchdown, scored by Dave Raimey from the 12. Following the kickoff, Army lost the ball again and after the Michigan attack, stalled at the four, sophomore Doug Bickle booted an 11-yard field goal.

Michigan's second touchdown came on a 47-yard jaunt by Benny McCrae, the Big Ten's hurdles champion, early in the second period.

For the second week in a row, Michigan Coach Bump Elliott was not forced to rely on his passing game. But just to prove he has one, he sent reserve quarterback Bob Chandler into the game in the fourth period and Chandler flipped a 36-yard scoring pass to end Bob Brown for Michigan's final touchdown.

The only bright spot for the Cadets was the passing of Dick Eckert who worked the option plays beautifully and completed 22 of 31 passes for 164 yards and the Cadets lone touchdown.

Faircloth Is Hero In 17-3 Vol Victory Over Maroons

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Mallon Faircloth, a third-stringer tailback, ran and passed Tennessee to a 17-3 victory over Mississippi State in a Southeastern Conference football game Saturday.

Faircloth, a 185-pound sophomore, hit end Hudson on a 42-yard pass for Tennessee's first touchdown and ran over from the [illegible] for its second.

Faircloth got his chance to show his running and passing prowess before a homecoming crowd of 31,000 after regular tailback Glenn Glass was felled with a face injury in the first period.

The triumph was Tennessee's first in two games and was State's first loss after wo victories.

Tennessee went ahead 3-0 late in the second period on a 19-yard field goal by Gary Cannon.

MUU came back in the third a tied it 3-3 with a 40-yard field goal by Sammy Dantone.

The Vols tried five passes and completed all for 115 yards and one TD.

Tailback George Canale hit end Mike Stratton with the first for 23 yards in the drive in which Tennessee made its field goal.

Faircloth hit on four successive passes after taking over midway the third period.

His first was a 42-yard ten-strike to Hudson, who speared the ball on State's 28 and raced over beh a fine block by halfback Hubert McCvain. Cannon make good the first of two extra point kicks.

Faircloth, showing great poise for a sophomore, then hit McClain, also a sophomore, on tosses of 14, 26 and 10 yards. The last one put the ball on State's 3 but MSU held.

State, which fought Tennessee to a scoreless draw last year and has lost 19 of its last 20 conference games, battled the favored Vols on even terms until midway the third period.

Faircloth, who had appeared briefly in the second stanza, came on for Canale at this point and obviously gave the Vols single wing a big lift.

Kentucky Throws Way Past Auburn

By VERNON BUTLER

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Aroused Kentucky used [illegible] combination of Jerry Woolum to Tom Hutchison to [illegible] Auburn 14-12 Saturday and hand the Tigers their first home loss in 31 football games.

Only three minutes and 12 seconds were left to play when quarterback Woolum coolly connected with end Hutchison on a six-yard payoff pitch that made Auburn a loser here for the first time since Mississippi State won in 1952.

Hutchison, making a tremendous bid for All-America recognition, got underdog Kentucky in position for its surprise victory by recovering Auburn fullback Larry Rawson's fumble at the Tiger 21. Seven plays later Kentucky scored.

Auburn took a 6-0 lead in the first quarter when halfback John McGeever blocked a Kentucky field goal attempt, grabbed the ball out of the air and raced 82 yards for a touchdown.

In the second quarter Kentucky started from the Auburn 26, surged for a touchdown in nine plays and took a 7-6 lead when Clarkie Mayfield converted.

Auburn rallied in the third quarter and scored on a 15-yard pass from quarterback Mallon Kent to end Dave Edwards. The Tigers then thrust back a Kentucky drive at their one and seemed to have [illegible] Rawson's home victory.

Auburn's fumbling tendencies, which almost cost the Tigers their opener against Tennessee, kept them in trouble throughout and eventually turned the course of the bruising game.

Kentucky's hard-charging line led by tackles Junior Hawthorne and Bob Butler and linebackers Irvan Goode and John McGeever blunted every effort at offense by Auburn, a team that had blocked and run extremely well in its opener last week.

Wyoming, US Tie

United Press International

LARAMIE, Wyo (UPI)—Wyoming and Utah State, 1960 Skyline co-champions, and two great defensive teams, battled to a 6-6 tie here Saturday before 18,090 fans in War Memorial Stadium.

By holding the Utags to a tie, Wyoming maintains a three year record of never having lost to a Skyline Conference opponent on its home field.

Each team scored its lone touchdown in the second quarter, the Utags striking first on an 80 yard drive in 14 plays, capped by halfback Ron Prince's 21 yard scamper behind 265-pound tackle Merlin Olsen.

The Cowboys, depending entirely on substitute quarterback Andy Melosky for their offensive punch, struck back three and one-half minutes later when Melosky threw a 30 yard touchdown pass to right end Lonnie Dunn.

Wyoming's great running quarterback, Chuck Lamson, saw no action Saturday. He sat out the entire game on the bench, although he was in uniform.

California Holds Missouri To Tie

By SKIPPER PATRICK

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — California's Golden Bears, underdogs by three touchdowns, harrassed and outplayed undefeated Missouri for most of three quarters Saturday before the Tigers shook loose for a touchdown and a 2-point conversion to gain a 14-14 tie in an intersectional football game.

Fine passing by Randy Gold, California's ace quarterback sidelined until Saturday because of a knee injury, kept Missouri off balance after the Tigers had driven 98 yards in the first quarter for a 6-point lead.

Gold completed four passes in a 78-yard drive that ended with halfback Jerry Scattini scoring from the one in the second quarter. Placekick specialist Jim Ferguson kicked the first of his two conversions and the Bears were not to be beaten.

The Tigers had three threats stopped by pass interceptions and were in a bad way early in the third quarter when alternate left halfback Alan Nelson sped 77 yards to the Missouri 4 and set up the Bears' second touchdown.

Ron Taylor, Missouri quarterback, sneaked the final yard for Missouri's first touchdown and ran four for the second, climaxing a 53-yard march midway in the fourth period.

After missing their first conversion by passing, the Tigers came up with a 2-pointer to tie with reserve quarterback Daryl Krugman sweeping right end.

Fired up by the return to action of Gold and after losses to Texas and Iowa, California rolled up 212 yards on the ground and picked up 86 through the air. Missouri ran for 192 and passed for 94.

Nel on, a 190-pound sophomore, cracked through the right side on his 77-yad jaunt. Conrad Hitchler, Tiger end, finally grounded him on the 4.

Gold accounted for all of California's passing yardage, completing seven of 13.

Spartans Roll By Stanford In 31-3 Win

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State, banking on a gambling offense to sustain two long touchdown drives, overcame its fumbling mistakes Saturday for a 31-3 intersectional victory over Stanford.

The Spartans, ranked sixth in the nation, kept on the ground almost throughout this brilliantly sunny and warm afternoon and smashed out drives of 77 and 80 yards before striking for two lightning fourth quarter touchdowns.

A crowd of 61,367 watched Michigan State stop the Indians' feared passing attack with hard-charging line play and a tight secondary defense. Risky play calling figured in Michigan States first two touchdowns and the gambles worked to put the Spartans out of reach.

Stopped on their 28 in a fourth down and two situation and protecting a 7-3 lead, the Spartans chose to go for it. Sherman Lewis who'd scored the Spartans' first touchdown, made it with 5-yards to spare. Michigan State went on to score and then turned the game into a rout with two touchdowns and a safety in the final quarter.

Rebs Trounce Seminoles In 33-0 Crusher

By JAMES SAGGUS

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi's mighty Rebels unleashed a devestating ground and air attack Saturday to crush ambitious Florida State 33-0.

The Rebels, No. 2 college football power nationally, scored in every quarter against an FSU team which never got started.

Mississippi used power running broken field talents of fleet halfbacks and deft passing by a trio of quarterbacks to make it a rout.

The Rebels marched 77 yards with the opening kickonf for their first touchdown and kept Florida State off balance the rest of the way. FSU, which tied Florida 3-3 Sept. 30, collected only three first downs in the first half and finished the game with only seven.

The Florida State line was unable to open holes and the backs were too slow to move around on wide plays.

Guy, Elmore and Adams spearheaded the first Rebel touchdown march with Guy sweeping end the final six yards. Adams smashed over from one yard out before the first quarter ended, after he and Elmore sparked a 91-yard march.

Ole Miss scored shortly before halftime with a 75-yard march which reserve quarterback Perry Lee Dunn ended with a 15-yard pass to Smith. Elmore brought the fourth touchdown with a 37-yard pass to end Ralph Smith to the one and a sneak across for the score.

Dunn guided the final touchdown drive, which covered 95 yards, in the fourth period. At one stage, the Rebels made five first downs on six plays. Adams smashed the final yard to end the scoring.

End Wes Sullivan booted two conversions and fullback Chuck Tempfer got the third.

Florida State got into Rebel territory only twice, once after a fumble recovery and later after a pass interference penalty against Ole Miss.

The fumble recovery came at the Rebel 30, the deepest FSU got, and the invaders lost 6 yards.

Mississippi's overwhelming superiority was clear from the statistical advantage the Rebels piled up. They collected 351 yards rushing and 169 passing, while FSU managed only 75 on the ground and 34 in the air.

Adams was the big Rebel groundgainer with 109 yards on 14 attempts. Elmore added 74 and reserve fullback Fred Roberts picked up 55.

Elmore hit on six of nine passes for 102 yards and Dunn on three of eight for 67. Receivers dropped several perfect pitches that cut the completion average down.

Halfback Keith Kinderman led FSU's groundgainers with 59 yards on 13 tries and was the only consistent runner the Seminoles had. Quarterbacks Ed Trancygier and Eddie Feely completed three of 10 passes, with Rebel linemen fushing throurh to cripple he FSU aerial atack.

Bill Peterson, FSU coach, said he didn't see any weakenesses in the Ole Miss team.

They were just too good for us. They kept the football and we couldn't move it," he said in the dressing room after the game.

Field Goal Gives Irish 22-20 Win

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — A 28-yard field goal by halfback Joe Perkowaski set Notre Dame solidly on the comeback trail Saturday with a 22-20 victory over Purdue's Boilermakers.

Ironically, Purdue had led most of the game on a couple of field goals by Skip Ohl. The Irish got ahead the first time when Perkowski booted the 3-pointer three minutes deep in the final period.

A powerful ground game was a big factor in Notre Dame's first victory over Purdue in their last four meetings, but quarterback Daryl Lamonica also hit with two key passes. He threw 27 yards to end James Kelly to set up one touchdown and tossed Kelly a 5-yard scoring pass.

Kelly also distinguished himself by smearing Rom DiGravio, Purdue's excellent sophomore quarterback, for a 9-yard loss when the Boilermakers tried to drive in the last minutes.

The Irish outgained the Boilermakers 349 yards to 265 from scrimmage, but goal-line defenses were so rugged they tried three field goals apiece.

Ohl, who kicked two field goals against Washington a week ago, connected from 36 and 40 yards Saturday and missed a 46-yarder that could have won the game with 3:16 to play. Perkowski missed two field goal tries from 25 and 35 yards.

DiGravio, an icy-calm New Englander from Weymouth, Mass set up Purdue's first-quarter touchdown with a 38-yard pass to halfback Dave Miller and scored it himself from the Irish two.

Northwestern Downs Illinois On 28-7 Win

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—High-powered Northwestern hammered Illinois with sophomore fullback Bill Swingle and an assortment of halfbacks Saturday, grinding out a 28-7 victory on touchdown drives of 75, 64, 55 and 51 yards.

The scoring thrusts totaled 245 yards and were accomplished in 32 plays—an average of 7.6 yards per crack.

Swingle, the 195-pound Grand Haven, Mich., lad who came out of oblivion by scoring three times in Northwestern's 45-0 route over Boston College a week ago, twice crossed the goal line Saturday.

He scored in the second quarter, taking a short pass from senior quarterback Fred Quinn on a play covering 22 yards which capped a 55-yard surge in six downs. Swingle again went over at the outset of the fourth period, ramming in from the 3 to climax a 64-yard march in six plays.

In each of the scoring bursts, Northwestern used two halfbacks as well as Swingle in turn-taking fashion. They were juniors Bob Snider and Larry Benz. Snider scored in the first period, round end from the 4 on a pitchout from Quinn. It ended a 75 yards drive in 15 plays.

Second string fullback Paul Flatley tallied Northwestern's last touchdown in the fourth from the one after the Wildcats ripped 51 yards in five plays.

Illinois scored with the help of a recovered fumble in the last 18 seconds of the second period, and cut Northwestern's halftime lead to 14 to 7.

14-12 VICTORY

Kentucky Throws Way Past Auburn

By VERNON BUTLER

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Aroused Kentucky used its great passing combination of Jerry Woolum to Tom Hutchinson to upset Auburn 14-12 Saturday and hand the Tigers their first home loss in 31 football games.

Only three minutes and 12 seconds were left to play when quarterback Woolum cooly connected with end Hutchison on a six-yard payoff pitch that made Auburn a loser here for the first time since Mississippi State won in 1952.

Hutchison, making a tremendous bid for All-America recognition, got underdog Kentucky in position for its surprise victory by recovering Auburn fullback Larry Rawson's fumble at the Tiger 21. Seven plays later Kentucky scored.

Auburn took a 6-0 lead in the first quarter when halfback John McGeever blocked a Kentucky field goal attempt, grabbed the ball out of the air and raced 82 yards for a touchdown.

In the second quarter Kentucky started from the Auburn 26, surged for a touchdown in nine plays and took a 7-6 lead when Clarkie Mayfield converted.

Auburn rallied in the third quarter and scored on a 15-yard pass from quarterback Mailon Kent to end Dave Edwards. The Tigers then thrust back a Kentucky drive at their one and seemed to have in hand until Rawson's home victory.

Auburn's fumbling tendencies, which almost cost the Tigers their opener against Tennessee, kept them in trouble throughout and eventually turned the course of the bruising game.

Kentucky's hard-charging line, led by tackles Junior Hawthorne and Bob Butler and linebackers rvan Goode and John McGeeve, blunted every effort at offense by Auburn, a team that had blocked and run extremely well in its opener last week.

Wyoming, US Tie

United Press International

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI)—Wyoming and Utah State, 1960 Skyline co-champions, and two great defensive teams, battled to a 6-6 tie here Saturday before 18,090 fans in War Memorial Stadium.

By holding the Utags to a tie, Wyoming maintains a three year record of never having lost to a Skyline Conference opponent on its home field.

Each team scored its lone touchdown in the second quarter, the Utags striking first on an 80 yard drive in 14 plays, capped by halfback Ron Prince's 21 yard scamper behind 265-pound tackle Merlin Olsen.

The Cowboys, depending entirely on substitute quarterback Andy Melosky for their offensive punch, struck back three and one-half minutes later when Melosky threw a 30 yard touchdown pass to right end Lonnie Dunn.

Wyoming's great running quarterback, Chuck Lamson, saw no action Saturday. He sat out the entire game on the bench, although he was in uniform.

California Holds Missouri To Tie

By SKIPPER PATRICK

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — California's Golden Bears, underdogs by three touchdowns, harrassed and outplayed undefeated Missouri for most of three quarters Saturday before the Tigers shook loose for a touchdown and a 2-point conversion to gain a 14-14 tie in an intersectional football game.

Fine passing by Randy Gold, California's ace quarterback sidelined until Saturday because of a knee injury, kept Missouri off balance after the Tigers had driven 98 yards in the first quarter for a 6-point lead.

Gold completed four passes in a 78-yard drive that ended with halfback Jerry Scattini scoring from the one in the second quarter. Placekick specialist Jim Ferguson kicked the first of his two conversions and the Bears were not to be beaten.

The Tigers had three threats stopped by pass interceptions and were in a bad way early in the third quarter when alternate left halfback Alan Nelson sped 77 yards to the Missouri 4 and set up the Bears' second touchdown.

Ron Taylor, Missouri quarterback, sneaked the final yard for Missouri's first touchdown and ran four for the second, climaxing a 53-yard march midway in the fourth period.

After missing their first conversion by passing, the Tigers came up with a 2-pointer to tie with reserve quarterback Daryl Krugman sweeping right end.

Fired up by the return to action of Gold and after losses to Texas and Iowa, California rolled up 212 yards on the ground and picked up 86 through the air. Missouri ran for 192 and passed for 94.

Nel on, a 190-pound sophomore, cracked through the right side on his 77-yad jaunt. Conrad Hitchler, Tiger end, finally grounded him on the 4.

Gold accounted for all of California's passing yardage, completing seven of 13.

Rebs Trounce Seminoles In 33-0 Crusher

By JAMES SAGGUS

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi's mighty Rebels unleashed a devestating ground and air attack Saturday to crush ambitious Florida State 33-0.

The Rebels, No. 2 college football power nationally, scored in every quarter against an FSU team which never got started.

Mississippi used power running broken field talents of fleet halfbacks and deft passing by a trio of quarterbacks to make it a rout.

The Rebels marched 77 yards with the opening kickonf for their first touchdown and kept Florida State off balance the rest of the way. FSU, which tied Florida 3-3 Sept. 30, collected only three first downs in the first half and finished the game with only seven.

The Florida State line was unable to open holes and the backs were too slow to move around on wide plays.

Guy, Elmore and Adams spearheaded the first Rebel touchdown march with Guy sweeping end the final six yards. Adams smashed over from one yard out before the first quarter ended, after he and Elmore sparked a 91-yard march.

Ole Miss scored shortly before halftime with a 75-yard march which reserve quarterback Perry Lee Dunn ended with a 15-yard pass to Smith. Elmore brought the fourth touchdown with a 37-yard pass to end Ralph Smith to the one and a sneak across for the score.

Dunn guided the final touchdown drive, which covered 95 yards, in the fourth period. At one stage, the Rebels made five first downs on six plays. Adams smashed the final yard to end the scoring.

End Wes Sullivan booted two conversions and fullback Chuck Tempfer got the third.

Florida State got into Rebel territory only twice, once after a fumble recovery and later after a pass interference penalty against Ole Miss.

The fumble recovery came at the Rebel 30, the deepest FSU got, and the invaders lost 6 yards.

Mississippi's overwhelming superiority was clear from the statistical advantage the Rebels piled up. They collected 351 yards rushing and 169 passing, while FSU managed only 75 on the ground and 34 in the air.

Adams was the big Rebel groundgainer with 109 yards on 14 attempts. Elmore added 74 and reserve fullback Fred Roberts picked up 55.

Elmore hit on six of nine passes for 102 yards and Dunn on three of eight for 67. Receivers dropped several perfect pitches that cut the completion average down.

Halfback Keith Kinderman led FSU's groundgainers with 59 yards on 13 tries and was the only consistent runner the Seminoles had. Quarterbacks Ed Trancygier and Eddie Feely completed three of 10 passes, with Rebel linemen fushing throurh to cripple he FSU aerial atack.

Bill Peterson, FSU coach, said he didn't see any weakenesses in the Ole Miss team.

They were just too good for us. They kept the football and we couldn't move it," he said in the dressing room after the game.

Spartans Roll By Stanford In 31-3 Win

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State, banking on a gambling offense to sustain two long touchdown drives, overcame its fumbling mistakes Saturday for a 31-3 intersectional victory over Stanford.

The Spartans, ranked sixth in the nation, kept on the ground almost throughout this brilliantly sunny and warm afternoon and smashed out drives of 77 and 80 yards before striking for two lightning fourth quarter touchdowns.

A crowd of 61,367 watched Michigan State stop the Indians' feared passing attack with hard-charging line play and a tight secondary defense. Risky play calling figured in Michigan States first two touchdowns and the gambles worked to put the Spartans out of reach.

Stopped on their 28 in a fourth down and two situation and protecting a 7-3 lead, the Spartans chose to go for it. Sherman Lewis who'd scored the Spartans' first touchdown, made it with 5-yards to spare. Michigan State went on to score and then turned the game into a rout with two touchdowns and a safety in the final quarter.

Field Goal Gives Irish 22-20 Win

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — A 28-yard field goal by halfback Joe Perkowaski set Notre Dame solidly on the comeback trail Saturday with a 22-20 victory over Purdue's Boilermakers.

Ironically, Purdue had led most of the game on a couple of field goals by Skip Ohl. The Irish got ahead the first time when Perkowski booted the 3-pointer three minutes deep in the final period.

A powerful ground game was a big factor in Notre Dame's first victory over Purdue in their last four meetings, but quarterback Daryl Lamonica also hit with two key passes. He threw 27 yards to end James Kelly to set up one touchdown and tossed Kelly a 5-yard scoring pass.

Kelly also distinguished himself by smearing Rom DiGravio, Purdue's excellent sophomore quarterback, for a 9-yard loss when the Boilermakers tried to drive in the last minutes.

The Irish outgained the Boilermakers 349 yards to 265 from scrimmage, but goal-line defenses were so rugged they tried three field goals apiece.

Ohl, who kicked two field goals against Washington a week ago, connected from 36 and 40 yards Saturday and missed a 46-yarder that could have won the game with 3:16 to play. Perkowski missed two field goal tries from 25 and 35 yards.

DiGravio, an icy-calm New Englander from Weymouth, Mass set up Purdue's first-quarter touchdown with a 38-yard pass to halfback Dave Miller and scored it himself from the Irish two.

Northwestern Downs Illinois On 28-7 Win

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—High-powered Northwestern hammered Illinois with sophomore fullback Bill Swingle and an assortment of halfbacks Saturday, grinding out a 28-7 victory on touchdown drives of 75, 64, 55 and 51 yards.

The scoring thrusts totaled 245 yards and were accomplished in 32 plays—an average of 7.6 yards per crack.

Swingle, the 195-pound Grand Haven, Mich., lad who came out of oblivion by scoring three times in Northwestern's 45-0 route over Boston College a week ago, twice crossed the goal line Saturday.

He scored in the second quarter, taking a short pass from senior quarterback Fred Qunin on a play covering 22 yards which capped a 55-yard surge in six downs. Swingle again went over at the outset of the fourth period, ramming in from the 3 to climax a 64-yard march in six plays.

In each of the scoring bursts, Northwestern used two halfbacks as well as Swingle in turn-taking fashion. They were juniors Bob Snider and Larry Benz. Snider scored in the first period, round end from the 4 on a pitchout from Quinn. It ended a 75 yards drive in 15 plays.

Second string fullback Paul Flatley tallied Northwestern's last touchdown in the fourth from the one after the Wildcats ripped 51 yards in five plays.

Illinois scored with the help of a recovered fumble in the last 18 seconds of the second period, and cut Northwestern's halftime lead to 14 to 7.

Ohio State Races Over UCLA, 13-3

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State turned loose a pair of sophomore halfbacks for fourth-quarter touchdowns Saturday to defeat the tiring but tenacious Bruins of USLA 13-3 in an intersectional football game before a shirt sleeve crowd of 82,992.

The highly-favored Bucks, after trying some fruitless fancy frills for the first three quarters, were forced back to their "grind-it-out" type of play to snatch their first victory of the season.

Stung by criticism of the drab offense in its 7-7 tie with Texas Christian, Ohio State tried such Buckeye innovations as double reverses, wide sweeps and even a pass from its own 20-yard line to no avail in the early going.

The Bruins, sparked by tailback Bob Smith, one of the handiest players ever seen here, went ahead in the second period on Smith's 32-yard field goal. The Bucks moved out front with less than a minute of the fourth quarter gone as sophomore Paul Warfield climaxed a 68-yard, seven-play assault with a 13-yard scoring dash over tackle. Three minutes later, Matt Snell of Locust Valley, N. Y., went over the same spot for 33 yards and the final counter.

The Bruins, humiliated 29-6 by Michigan earlier, refused to give up after Ohio's second touchdown.

With a fourth-down and 10-to-go situation on their own 31, Smith passed 15 yards to end Mel Profit, but the gamble failed to pay off as the receiver juggled the ball while going out of bounds. Ohio took the ball on downs, had a first down on UCLA's four, but the Bruins took the ball on the one. They had battered their way back to the Ohio 40 as the game ended.

Smith was the game's standout, even in a losing cause. In addition to this field goal, he carried 22 times for 82 yards, completed one of two passes for 8 yards, punted 80 yards in his lone try and stopped Ohio's All-America fullback, Bob Ferguson, on the final goal-line stand.

Ferguson, who gained 137 yards in 35 tries against Texas Christian in the opener, was held to 29 in 13 carries Saturday. Snell led the Ohioans with 72 yards in 11 jaunts.

With the Bruin defense set to halt Ohio's power plays, Buckeye quarterback Bill Mrukowski had an easy time with his aerial chores. He completed 10 of 11 for 86 yards.

Maryland Is Winner Over Syracuse 11

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Gary Collins, Maryland's All-America end candidate, snagged a pass to cash in on a two-point gamble Saturday for a rallying 22-21 football victory over Syracuse.

Quarterback Dick Novak threw the ball to Collins barely inside the corner of the end zone and the Maryland end reached out to take it from the outstretched hands of Syracuse defender Jerald Sobul.

It was the first setback for Syracuse in three games and Maryland's third straight victory to emerge again as a football giant.

Collins caught a 7-yard pass from Novak for Maryland's first touchdown and was a bearcat on defense in addition to punting.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Statistics of the Syracuse-Maryland game:

Syracuse went ahead 21-14 in the third quarter also on a two-point conversion run by quarterback Dave Sarette. Syracuse needed the additional point in case Maryland scored again, because the Orangemen failed to convert after their second touchdown of the second quarter.

Ernie Davis, Syracuse's All-America halfback candidate, plunged over for two touchdowns. He set up the first by running 41 yards in three carries and the second by dashing 43 yards to the Maryland goal.

Sarette passed 13 yards to end Walt Sweeney for the other Syracuse touchdown.

A pair of Maryland sophomores ignited a second half comeback. Dickshiner, quarterback from Lebanon, Pa., completed two passes for 27 yards and then snaked his way 29 yards over the goal to send Maryland ahead 14-13 in the third quarter.

Halfback Ernie Arizzi, 180-pounder from Barrington, N. J., flashed 64 yards to the Syracuse 10 to set up the winning touchdown. Halfback Dennis Condie blasted over from less than a yard out on last down.

Futrell Stars As Duke Wins Dad's Day Classic, 23-3

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI)—Third string halfback Billy Futrell caught two second period touchdown passes Saturday to spark Duke to a 23-3 victory over Wake Forest.

Futrell scored the touchdown on a four-yard pass from quarterback Walt Rappold. Bill Reynolds kicked the extra point.

Then with 10 seconds left in the half Rappold again found Futrell in the end zone for an 11-yard scoring pass and Reynolds booted his second extra point.

The Blue Devils added nine points in the final period on a touchdown and a safety.

On the first play of the fourth quarter Wake Forest had the ball on its own 6 and Bill Ruby went deep into his own end zone to punt out on third down and 12. The ball was snapped over the end zone for an automatic safety.

Georgia Wins As Young QB Leads Victory

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Larry Rakestraw injected scoring punch into the Georgia Bulldogs Saturday and they responded with a 17-14 football victory over South Carolina.

Rakestraw shared offensive honors with halfback Bill McKenny, team co-captain who was shifted to the right side of the Georgia backfield for the nonconference affair.

The Gamecocks scored first on a one-yard plunge by quarterback Lide Huggins, capping a 36-yard drive. Gamecock quarterback Jim Costen's razor-sharp passing and the running of halfback Billy Gambrel spearheaded the South Carolina attack.

The Bulldogs' first score came on a 26-yard field goal by Durward Pennington, his first of the year. An earlier attempt failed.

After a scoreless third period, the teams packed three touchdowns into the final quarter. Georgia came alive under the keen signal calling of Rakestraw and drove 89 yards for one, McKenny bulling over from the 2. A little later a blocked punt enabled the Bulldogs to get an easy touchdown and just before the game ended South Carolina recovered a Bulldog fumble in the end zone for the final points.

Yale 14, Brown 3

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Yale, led by Bill Leckonby's passing and running, opened defense of its Ivy League title with a 14-3 conquest of stubborn Brown Saturday.

Leckonby, Yale's 6-1 quarterback, tossed a touchdown pass to Jud Calkins, scored one himself and added the extra points.

Brown, walloped 50-0 by Columbia a week ago, showed a reversal of form and actually led until 11:04 of the second period. The Bruins, pressing all during the hot afternoon, scored late in the first quarter on Ray Barry's 26-yard field goal.

Later in the game Brown managed to reach Yale's 15, 11 and 12-yard line only to be held or pushed back.

The victory was Yale's 11th in a row over two seasons, the best record since 1910, and eighth straight in the Ivy League. That's a leep record.

Indians Add Gymnastics To Intercollegiate Slate

Northeast State is adding gymnastics to its intercollegiate athletic program this fall with Barry L. Johnson, instructor in health and physical education, to be the coach.

Johnson's team is currently working out in the new gymnasium extension at the college and is scheduled to attend the National Gymnastic Clinic in Satasota, Fla., Dec. 26-31. Johnson also hopes to schedule two dual meets at Northeast.

Seven boys are working out for the team and Johnson says he hopes to add three more boys and field a 10-man team. On the squad now are Billy Krieger of Hammond, Wynn Jefferson of Monroe, Don Walker of Oak Grove, Eugene Huffty of Bossier City, Louis Swann of Bunkie, Marvin Jordan of Heflin and John Pennel of Miami, Fla., also a star pole vaulter on the Northeast track and field team.

The gymnastics hall in the gymnasium extension, where Northeast will hold its home meets, is scheduled to be fully equipped for the sport within a week or two. The 60-by-40 gym may be the only air-conditioned gym of its kind in the country.

"I don't know of another in the country," says Johnson.

The gym is also centrally heated.

Dartmouth Wins 30-0

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Dartmouth, piloted by cool and calculating junior quarterback Billy King, scored the first four times it had the ball and then stifled Pennsylvania with a sound defense to whip the Quakers, 30-0, in the Ivy inaugural of each Saturday.

King, a hustler from Richmond, Va., described by coach Bob Blackman as the best "find" the Indians have made in several seasons, gave the Big Green its initial impetus by recovering a fumble on the second play of the game and then sneaking from the one-yard line for a touchdown.

Before the afternoon waned, King tossed a six-yard touchdown pass to halfback John Krumme, and in the fourth period carried an interception 27 yards which eventually set up a 10-yard scoring dash by halfback Dave Lawson.

BERT BELL RACE

Nine Teams Tied For Lead In NFL

BY JOE SARGIS
United Press International

Something gives today in the National Football League—or does it?

In what is euphemistically being called a "Bert Bell race," no less than nine teams, all with 2-1 records, battle today to break a log-jam atop the standings—and six of them are favored to keep on rolling.

The favorites are the Green Bay Packers, 7 at home over the Baltimore Colts; the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 at home over the New York Giants; the San Francisco Forty Niners, 8 at home over the Los Angeles Rams; the Detroit Lions, 7 at home over the Chicago Bears; the Cleveland Browns, 14 at home over the Washington Redskins; and the champion Philadelphia Eagles, 6 at home over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Among the underdogs are two teams which also have 2-1 records—the Giants and the Colts — but invariably, road teams hardly ever are favored in the NFL and in this case both the Giants and Colts have weaknesses.

The ninth team with a 2-1 record is the Dallas Cowboys. They, however, are four-point underdogs to the Vikings at Minneapolis-St. Paul in a return game between the circuit's two newest entries.

Bell, the late NFL commissioner, once said the "ideal race would be to have all 10 (there were two less clubs then) teams in the league tied for first-place with two games left to play." And if the odds hold up, there will be six and possibly seven teams still battling for the top spots in the two division races by sundown today.

In the American Football League, the Houston Oilers are picked by 13 at home over the Buffalo Bills and the Dallas Texans are favored by 10 over the Broncos at Denver. The San Diego Chargers, unbeaten in four games, were picked by 13 over the Patriots at Boston in a Saturday night game, while the New York Titans and the Oakland Raiders are idle this week.

Mustangs Win 9-7 Over The Air Force 11

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — John Richey, a shoeless sophomore placekicker, booted a 30-yard third quarter field goal Saturday to give Southern Methodist a 9-7 victory over the Air Force that broke a 13-game SMU string without a victory.

Richey, a 188-pound reserve fullback who kicks extra points with his shoes on uses his stocking feet on kickoffs and field goal efforts, gave a crowd of 28,000 its biggest thrill in an otherwise dull afternoon of ground assault football.

SMU had matched the Air Force's second period touchdown, but the visiting Falcons' 138-pound defensive back, Bob McDonough, had broken through to block Richey's tie-seeking extra point effort.

Nick Arshinkoff, the Falcons' junior fullback, lunged three yards for the Air Force's touchdowns at the end of a 60-yard second quarter drive and Wilson Parma tacked on the extra point.

A fumble recovery with two minutes left in the half set SMU up in a position for its two-play drive that saw 150-pound Tommy Brennan bounce 23 yards for the touchdown.

SMU, which hadn't won a game since beating Baylor in the next to last game on the 1960 schedule, had shown signs of mustering a victory in earlier losses to Maryland and Southern California, but it took a clutch defense in the dying moments Saturday to achieve the breakthrough.

The Air Force, which outgained the Methodists 182 yards to 136 in almost strictly a rushing battle, drove deep into SMU territory in a race with the clock, twice faking field goals in an effort to prolong the drive. One worked, but the second one didn't.

Air Force quarterback Bob McNaughton kept SMU guessing all afternoon with his pitchouts and option plays and wound up as the game's top ground gainer with 60 yards, but the Falcons' inability to hit on their passes hurt the academy's chances of earning its first triumph of the season.

Barber To Lead U.S. Pros In Ryder Cup Competiton

LYTHAM AND ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Top professional golfers from the United States and Britain meet in the Ryder Cup competition next Friday and Saturday over a British course made famous by the great Bobby Jones.

The invaders, captained by Jerry Barber, rate 2-1 favorites in the competition to be played over the windswept seaside links of Royal Lytham and St. Annes—the course where Jones won the British Open in 1926.

Everybody who has played this course knows of Jones. It was here that the Georgian played a title-winning recovery shot from a bunker on the left hand side of the fairway.

Jones sent the ball sailing to the green from the shallow trap—a distance of about 180 yards. It is now known as "the Bobby Jones bunker" and a plaque set in the edge of the trap commemorates the historic shot—the one that won.

Crowds of up to 10,000 are expected each day for the matches.

The American team has a wealth of talent — even without Sam Snead, who lost his place on the team after being suspended for six months for playing in a Cincinnati tournament while the PGA- sponsored Portland, Ore., Open was being held.

Others on the 10-man squad led by Barber are Arnold Palmer who won the British Open at Birkdale this year, Gene Littler, Dow Finsterwald, Jay Hebert, Art Wall, Mike Souchak, Bill Collins, Bill Casper and Doug Ford. Ford replaced Snead.

The British team is captained by Dai Rees who finished runner-up to Palmer in the British Open. Other players are long driving Harry Weetman, Peter Alliss, Bernard Hunt, Ralph Moffitt, Tom Haliburton, Christy O'Connor, Neil Coles, John Panton and Ken Bousfield.

Most British experts believe the match will end in a runaway victory for the Americans but Rees said:

"I think we've got a good chance of winning just as we did at Lindrick four years ago.

"Five members of the American team will be playing in this country for the first time. It is not every American who does well on his first visit to this country. The chill in the October air could make some of them feel uncomfortable."

All matches will be decided over 18 holes—a new idea. There will be eight Scotch foursomes, with players on each team taking alternate strikes at the ball, on Friday. Sixteen singles are listed for Saturday.

ORR, BERRY READY

Colt-Packer Tilt Tops NFL Action

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Both Jimmy Orr and Raymond Berry will be in the Baltimore lineup Sunday when the Colts tangle with the Packers at Green Bay in what looms as the big game in the National Football League. All 14 teams are in action.

Baltimore Coach Weeb Ewbank said that Orr is "too good to be sitting on the bench now that Berry is back." Orr played left end in the Colts' first two games while Berry was recuperating from a knee operation.

Orr likely will be inserted at flanker back with speedster Lenny Moore, the league's top scorer with 42 points, moving to inside half or alternating.

The Colts-Packers collision should help relieve the first place traffic jam in the Western Conference. Four clubs are tied for first with 2-1 records. The San Francisco 49ers and the Detroit Lions are deadlocked with the Colts and Packers.

San Francisco is host to the Los Angeles Rams (1-2), the Lions entertain the Chicago Bears (1-2) at Detroit and the Minnesota Vikings (1-2) meet the Dallas Cowboys (2-1) at Minneapolis. The Vikings hope to square things with the Cowboys, who whipped Minnesota in their first meeting two weeks ago 21-7.

The Eastern Conference has even a more acute jam in the scramble for first place, five teams being bunched at the top with 2-1 marks. Besides Dallas, they are the New York Giants, Philadelphia Eagles, St. Louis Cardinals and the Cleveland Browns.

New York and St. Louis clash in the headliner. The Cardinals, making their home debut, downed the Giants in the season's opener in New York, 21-10. Needless to say, the Giants, who now seem to have settled on Y. A. Tittle as No. 1 quarterback over Charlie Conerly, will be seeking revenge.

Known as "The Incredible Cripples," the Cardinals will play the Giants with two more players, offensive end Hugh McInnis and punt return specialist Pat Fischer, a rookie, sidelined by injuries.

Ohio State Races Over UCLA, 13-3

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State turned loose a pair of sophomore halfbacks for fourth-quarter touchdowns Saturday to defeat the tiring but tenacious Bruins of USLA 13-3 in an intersectional football game before a shirt sleeve crowd of 82,992.

The highly-favored Bucks, after trying some fruitless fancy frills for the first three quarters, were forced back to their "grind-it-out" type of play to snatch their first victory of the season.

Stung by criticism of the drab offense in its 7-7 tie with Texas Christian, Ohio State tried such Buckeye innovations as double reverses, wide sweeps and even a pass from its own 20-yard line to no avail in the early going.

The Bruins, sparked by tailback Bob Smith, one of the handiest players ever seen here, went ahead in the second period on Smith's 32-yard field goal. The Bucks moved out front with less than a minute of the fourth quarter gone as sophomore Paul Warfield climaxed a 65-yard, seven-play assault with a 13-yard scoring dash over tackle. Three minutes later, Matt Snell of Locust Valley, N. Y., went over the same spot for 33 yards and the final counter.

The Bruins, humiliated 29-6 by Michigan earlier, refused to give up after Ohio's second touchdown.

With a fourth-down and 10-to-go situation on their own 31, Smith passed 15 yards to end Mel Profit, but the gamble failed to pay off as the receiver juggled the ball while going out of bounds Ohio took the ball on downs, had a first down on UCLA's four, but the Bruins took the ball on the one. They had battered their way back to the Ohio 40 as the game ended.

Smith was the game's standout, even in a losing cause. In addition to this field goal, he carried 22 times for 82 yards, completed one of two passes for 8 yards, punted 50 yards in his lone try and stopped Ohio's All-America fullback, Bob Ferguson, on the final goal-line stand.

Ferguson, who gained 137 yards in 35 tries against Texas Christian in the opener, was held to 29 in 13 carries Saturday. Snell led the Ohioans with 72 yards in 11 jaunts.

With the Bruin defense set to halt Ohio's power plays, Buckeye quarterback Bill Mrukowski had an easy time with his aerial chores. He completed 10 of 11 for 86 yards.

Maryland Is Winner Over Syracuse 11

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)— Gary Collins, Maryland's All-America end candidate, snagged a pass to cash in on a two-point gamble Saturday for a rallying 22-21 football victory over Syracuse.

Quarterback Dick Novak threw the ball to Collins barely inside the corner of the end zone and the Maryland end reached out to take it from the outstretched hands of Syracuse defender Jerald Sobul.

It was the first setback for Syracuse in three games and Maryland's third straight victory to emerge again as a football giant.

Collins caught a 7-yard pass from Novak for Maryland's first touchdown and was a bearcat on defense in addition to punting.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Statistics of the Syracuse-Maryland game:

Syracuse went ahead 21-14 in the third quarter also on a two-point conversion run by quarterback Dave Sarette. Syracuse needed the additional point in case Maryland scored again, because the Orangemen failed to convert after their second touchdown of the second quarter.

Ernie Davis, Syracuse'a All-America halfback candidate, plunged over for two touchdowns. He set up the first by running 41 yards in three carries and the second by dashing 43 yards to the Maryland goal.

Sarette passed 13 yards to end Walt Sweeney for the other Syracuse touchdown.

A pair of Maryland sophomores ignited a second half comeback. Dickshiner, quarterback from Lebanon, Pa., completed two passes for 27 yards and then snaked his way 29 yards over the goal to send Maryland ahead 14-13 in the third quarter.

Halfback Ernie Arizzi, 180-pounder from Barrington, N. J., flashed 64 yards to the Syracuse 10 to set up the winning touchdown. Halfback Dennis Condie blasted over from less than a yard out on last down.

Georgia Wins As Young QB Leads Victory

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Larry Rakestraw injected scoring punch into the Georgia Bulldogs Saturday and they responded with a 17-14 football victory over South Carolina.

Rakestraw shared offensive honors with halfback Bill McKenny, team co-captain who was shifted to the right side of the Georgia backfield for the nonconference affair.

The Gamecocks scored first on a one-yard plunge by quarterback Lide Huggins, capping a 36-yard drive. Gamecock quarterback Jim Costen's razor-sharp passing and the running of halfback Billy Gambrel spearheaded the South Carolina attack.

The Bulldogs' first score came on a 26-yard field goal by Durward Pennington, his first of the year. An earlier attempt failed.

After a scoreless third period, the teams packed three touchdowns into the final quarter. Georgia came alive under the keen signal calling of Rakestraw and drove 89 yards for one, McKenny bulling over from the 2. A little later a blocked punt enabled the Bulldogs to get an easy touchdown and just before the game ended South Carolina recovered a Bulldog fumble in the end zone for the final points.

Yale 14, Brown 3

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Yale, led by Bill Leckonby's passing and running, opened defense of its Ivy League title with a 14-3 conquest of stubborn Brown Saturday.

Leckonby, Yale's 6-1 quarterback, tossed a touchdown pass to Jud Calkins, scored one himself and added the extra points.

Brown, wallopped 50-0 by Columbia a week ago, showed a reversal of form and actually led until 11:04 of the second period. The Bruins, pressing all during the hot afternoon, scored late in the first quarter on Ray Barry's 25-yard field goal.

Later in the game Brown managed to reach Yale's 15, 11 and 12-yard line only to be held or pushed back.

The victory was Yale's 11th in a row over two seasons, the best record since 1910, and eighth straight in the Ivy League. That's a loop record.

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI)—Third string halfback Billy Futrell caught two second period touchdown passes Saturday to spark Duke to a 23-3 victory over Wake Forest.

Then with 10 seconds left in the half Rappold again found Futrell in the end zone for an 11-yard scoring pass and Reynolds booted his second extra point.

The Blue Devils added nine points in the final period on a touchdown and a safety.

On the first play of the fourth quarter Wake Forest had the ball on its own 6 and Bill Ruby went deep into his own end zone to punt out on third down and 12. The ball was snapped over the end zone for an automatic safety.

Barber To Lead U.S. Pros In Ryder Cup Competiton

LYTHAM AND ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Top professional golfers from the United States and Britain meet in the Ryder Cup competition next Friday and Saturday over a British course made famous by the great Bobby Jones.

The invaders, captained by Jerry Barber, rate 2-1 favorites in the competition to be played over the windswept seaside links of Royal Lytham and St. Annes—the course where Jones won the British Open in 1926.

Everybody who has played this course knows of Jones. It was here that the Georgian played a title-winning recovery shot from a bunker on the left hand side of the fairway. Jones sent the ball sailing to the green from the shallow trap—a distance of about 150 yards. It is now known as "the Bobby Jones bunker" and a plaque set in the edge of the trap commemorates the historic shot—the one that won.

Crowds of up to 10,000 are expected each day for the matches.

The American team has a wealth of talent — even without Sam Snead, who lost his place on the team after being suspended for six months for playing in a Cincinnati tournament while the PGA- sponsored Portland, Ore., Open was being held.

Others on the 10-man squad led by Barber are Arnold Palmer who won the British Open at Birkdale this year, Gene Littler, Dow Finsterwald, Jay Hebert, Art Wall, Mike Souchak, Bill Collins, Bill Casper and Doug Ford. Ford replaced Snead.

The British team is captained by Dai Rees who finished runner-up to Palmer in the British Open. Other players are long driving Harry Weetman, Peter Alliss, Bernard Hunt, Ralph Moffitt, Tom Haliburton, Christy O'Connor, Neil Coles, John Panton and Ken Bousfield.

Most British experts believe the match will end in a runaway victory for the Americans but Rees said:

"I think we've got a good chance of winning just as we did at Lindrick four years ago.

"Five members of the American team will be playing in this country for the first time. It is not every American who does well on his first visit to this country. The chill in the October air could make some of them feel uncomfortable."

All matches will be decided over 18 holes—a new idea. There will be eight Scotch foursomes, with players on each team taking alternate strikes at the ball, on Friday. Sixteen singles are listed for Saturday.

ORR, BERRY READY

Colt-Packer Tilt Tops NFL Action

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Both Jimmy Orr and Raymond Berry will be in the Baltimore lineup Sunday when the Colts tangle with the Packers at Green Bay in what looms as the big game in the National Football League. All 14 teams are in action.

Baltimore Coach Weeb Ewbank said that Orr is "too good to be sitting on the bench now that Berry is back." Orr played left end in the Colts' first two games while Berry was recuperating from a knee operation.

Orr likely will be inserted at flanker back with speedster Lenny Moore, the league's top scorer with 42 points, moving to inside half or alternating.

The Colts-Packers collision should help relieve the first place traffic jam in the Western Conference. Four clubs are tied for first with 2-1 records. The San Francisco 49ers and the Detroit Lions are deadlocked with the Colts and Packers.

San Francisco is host to the Los Angeles Rams (1-2), the Lions entertain the Chicago Bears (1-2) at Detroit and the Minnesota Vikings (1-2) meet the Dallas Cowboys (2-1) at Minneapolis. The Vikings hope to square things with the Cowboys, who whipped Minnesota in their first meeting two weeks ago 21-7.

The Eastern Conference has even a more acute jam in the scramble for first place, five teams being bunched at the top with 2-1 marks. Besides Dallas, they are the New York Giants, Philadelphia Eagles, St. Louis Cardinals and the Cleveland Browns.

New York and St. Louis clash in the headliner. The Cardinals, making their home debut, downed the Giants in the season's opener in New York, 21-10. Needless to say, the Giants, who now seem to have settled on Y. A. Tittle as No. 1 quarterback over Charlie Conerly, will be seeking revenge.

Known as "The Incredible Cripples," the Cardinals will play the Giants with two more players, offensive end Hugh McInnis and punt return specialist Pat Fischer, a rookie, sidelined by injuries.

Official Says U.S. Winning Berlin Battle

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A State Department official said Saturday night the United States and its Allies are winning the battle of Berlin. He said he expects the Russians "are seriously worried" at their failure.

The claim was made by Salvatore A. Bontempo, administrator of the State Department's Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs, in remarks prepared for a dinner honoring Carmine Bellino, a special assistant to President Kennedy.

"The closing of the East German border," Bontempo said, "is a major defeat for the Russians and their way of life.

"For more than 15 years, they have had control of the press, of the education of children, of travel, and all means of communication. Despite all this they failed so miserably in their attempt to indoctrinate the East Germans that they were forced to barbed wire, tanks and machine guns.

"And significantly, despite the gantlet of terror the Communists have set up, man still strives for freedom every day. They brave death to escape to what the Communists call 'the capitalist cesspool.'"

Bontempo declared, "The lesson of Berlin is not lost on the rest of the world, and it should not be lost on Americans."

On Dit'

by Denise

New houses, are interesting to those building and those watching. And remodelling can be even more interesting, more painful, and more long-drawn-out. We have been observing work on several homes during the summer months, and have visited two to report on this week.

One of the most unusual looking places completed this year is the salmon brick residence of JEAN and THOMAS ZENTNER. The house takes advantage of a pie-shaped lot formed where Pargoud Boulevard angles to follow the bayou. The front door faces the street on one side, with the carport, though around the corner, still facing the boulevard.

To the left of the entrance is the blue carpeted living room, with blue-white walls. Wallpaper, blue-white with a faint self-scroll, is used on the right-hand wall, opposite the windows, and continues into the dining room. Behind the blue sofa is a panel of the paper featuring figures in shades of blue and green, colors repeated in chairs and throw-pillows. White draw draperies are used in both rooms. A fixed screen divides living and dining rooms. In the latter, one wall is of glass panels, overlooking a small roofed patio which is enclosed with an airy wall of open concrete blocks. Quarry tile forms the floor, and a planter box is built into an angle of the house.

Behind the dining room is the kitchen, with its own entrance through the carport and utility area. The window in this room angles to overlook the rear entry on one side, and the enclosed yard and terrace on the other. Cabinets are of cherry, with white paper printed in brown and orange above. Counters are white Formica.

Kitchen flows into family room, with its louvered glass door and fixed panel opening onto the terrace. A fireplace of Roman brick dominates this cherry - panelled room with its family dining area, piano, built-in high-fidelity and television equipment, bookshelves . . .

The master bedroom is at the rear of the house, where a wing encloses the terrace, and this room opens thereonto. Fruitwood furniture is placed on a deep beige carpet, and draperies and spreads are of a print in shades of blue and green.

Having outgrown their home on Lexington avenue, the BRANTON KELLOGGS decided to keep the location and expand the house. Two rooms and a bath were added, and changes made in the existing structure. One enters the living room, which has pale beige walls and white draperies bordered in a gold Greek key design. On the right is a china cabinet in antiqued green, flanked by a pair of provincial chairs. Opposite the door is a Federalist mirror topped with an eagle.

The new dining room, incorporating the old den and dining area, is separated from living room on one side and library on the other by baffles of antiqued brass grills above white wainscoating. The latter continues around the wall, with paper (a fruit print of summer apples) hung above. Walnut parquet flooring is used, and a black iron chandelier rescued from a family attic. Under the window is a buffet-chest, finished in antique green. Clayton plans to re-finish other pieces to match this.

n the boys' rooms, wallpaper and furniture contribute to a colonial look. BILL's paper is printed in eagles, and BRANTON's with sextants, maps, and sailing ships. Their bath has drums and bunting.

Daughter LIBBY's room is done in a dainty printed paper of yellow roses on white background. She shares the elegant master bath, with its marble counters and damask wallpaper flocked gold on white. Gray-green carpet covers the floor of the white-walled master bedroom. Cornices and bedspreads are of a green on white print, with white draperies edged with green ball-fringe.

Our poem today is by Edsel Ford, entitled "A Song for My Sons":

I shall not leave this world alone
Until I have some ground of my own;
And when I do, I will say to my sons,
"Look at this land! I had nothing once!"

And if my sons are all that I hope,
They will build a house on the southern slope—
A house with a rain-tight roof, and a floor
So level a marble won't roll to the door.

And when they are done, they will all take wives
To love unduly the rest of their lives,
And build more houses . . But — what a pity! —
The first thing you know, it will be a city.

And all of my dreams will have gone to pot!
All I desired was a reasonable plot
To offer someday to my unborn sons,
Telling them "Look! — I had nothing once!"

I will raise my sons (if sons I get)
In the city streets. It's a sure-fire bet
That, younger than I, they'll all grow wise
Enough to know where the country lies.

On Dit'

by Denise

New houses, are interesting to those building and those watching. And remodelling can be even more interesting, more painful, and more long-drawn-out. We have been observing work on several homes during the summer months, and have visited two to report on this week.

One of the most unusual looking places completed this year is the salmon brick residence of JEAN and THOMAS ZENTNER. The house takes advantage of a pie-shaped lot formed where Pargoud Boulevard angles to follow the bayou. The front door faces the street on one side, with the carport, though around the corner, still facing the boulevard.

To the left of the entrance is the blue carpeted living room, with blue-white walls. Wallpaper, blue-white with a faint self-scroll, is used on the right-hand wall, opposite the windows, and continues into the dining room. Behind the blue sofa is a panel of the paper featuring figures in shades of blue and green, colors repeated in chairs and throw-pillows. White draw draperies are used in both rooms. A fixed screen divides living and dining rooms. In the latter, one wall is of glass panels, overlooking a small roofed patio which is enclosed with an airy wall of open concrete blocks. Quarry tile forms the floor, and a planter box is built into an angle of the house.

Behind the dining room is the kitchen, with its own entrance through the carport and utility area. The window in this room angles to overlook the rear entry on one side, and the enclosed yard and terrace on the other. Cabinets are of cherry, with white paper printed in brown and orange above. Counters are white Formica.

Kitchen flows into family room, with its louvered glass door and fixed panel opening onto the terrace. A fireplace of Roman brick dominates this cherry - panelled room with its family dining area, piano, built-in high-fidelity and television equipment, bookshelves . . .

The master bedroom is at the rear of the house, where a wing encloses the terrace, and this room opens thereonto. Fruitwood furniture is placed on a deep beige carpet, and draperies and spreads are of a print in shades of blue and green.

The commission's report to Congress and the governors of the states also showed that more than half of the patients in most state mental hospitals receive no active treatment of any kind designed to improve their mental condition.

Colorful Hosiery

The schoolgirl look in hosiery is colorful. Butterscotch and russet tones are most highly recommended. But look, too, for the continuation of caramel tones, toffee, curry gold, taupe browns, grayed greens, and mulberry hues.

Watch Trick

Old - fashioned pocket watches with big faces apparently will be the biggest thing since the pencil among the school crowd. They're hitched to a chain long enough to trip over. The chain goes around the neck. What's left over gets looped into a belt.

MR. AND MRS. JIMMY EARL NORDAN

Nordan-Nolan Vows Read In Candlelight Setting

The First United Pentecostal church of West Monroe was scene of the wedding of Miss Sadie Nolan and Jimmy Earl Nordan, which was solemnized at 7:30 p.m. Friday, September 22. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Nolan of Monroe, and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nordan, West Monroe.

The double ring candlelight ceremony was performed by Rev. E. W. Caughron before an arch of white candles in wrought iron candelabra, entwined with Southern smilax, which formed a background for large arrangements of white gladioli and greenery.

Lighting of the memory candle by the couple preceded the exchange of vows. Mrs. Dale Smith, cousin of the bridegroom, as organist and soloist, presented a program of nuptial music which included " I Love You Truly," and "Whither Thou Goest."

Candles were lighted by Miss Carol Lynn Stevens, cousin of the bridegroom, who wore a dress of mint green and a wrist corsage to match.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of embroidered net over deep lustre satin. The bouffant skirt swept into a chapel train from a sculptured bodice styled with Peter Pan collar, outlined by seed pearls, and long fitted sleeves which came to petal points over her wrists. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a pillbox of Alencon lace over Dupioni silk, encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and satin streamers centered with a white orchid, atop a white Bible.

Mrs. L. C. Nolan, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor and only attendant. Her dress of mint green taffeta, overlaid with matching chiffon, was identical in color to the candlelighter's. She wore a small headband of white with white gloves and satin shoes and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums with satin steamers.

David "Tim" Nordan of Savannah, Tennessee, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man and ushers were Floyd Avery and Bobby Nordan of Arkadelphia, also a brother of the groom.

The bride's mother chose a dress of blue crepe with matching accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a mauve lace sheath with brown accessories. Both had corsages of yellow tinted white chrysanthemums.

A reception followed in the social room of the church annex. The bride's table, covered with a hand-made lace cloth was centered with pale pink roses. Pink punch was served by Mrs. R. C. Cannon and Mrs. A. A. Cosby and the tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, was served by Mrs. T. L. Fuller. Miss Gracie Spillers presided at the bride's book.

For a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas, the bride changed to a navy blue ensemble with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will reside in Monroe.

'Back Street' Coming Soon To The Jim

"Back Street," the Fannie Hurst novel now a motion picture, opens at the Jim Theatre, October 19. It stars Susan Hayward, John Gavin, and Vera Miles, and was produced by Universal - International Pictures.

Ross Hunter was the producer.

RE-ADAPTED

The Fannie Hurst classic, timelessly engrossing and essentially a woman's story in every sense of the term, was an outstanding success when first filmed with Irene Dunne and John Boles and later with Margaret Sullavan and Charles Boyer.

It has been re-adapted to take advantage of modern cinema techniques. New concepts in sound and photography have added immeasurably to the film's dramatic appeal. Heart - tugs and the original love magic of "Back Street" however, remain unchanged. The theme is eternal.

OPPORTUNITIES

For John Gavin, "Back Street" and his co-starring part opposite Miss Hayward offer the popular young player even greater opportunities than his portrayals in "Imitation of Life," "A Time to Love and a Time to Die," and the more recent "Tammy Tell Me True."

The story traces Gavin's clandestine affair with Miss Hayward from the day they meet in Lincoln, Nebraska, to his death, years later, in Paris.

Starts Run In Suburbs Area

MINEOLA, N. Y. (AP) —For the benefit of suburban drama fans, a 1,200-seat legitimate theater has opened here, the first such new playhouse on Long Island in 30 years.

Louis M. Simon, managing producer, expects the venture to attract sizeable attendance from people unable or unwilling to make the 20-mile trek to New York. The playhouse formerly was a cinema. Touring productions as well as pre-Broadway tryouts are to be included on the season schedule.

'The Hustler' Opens Today At Paramount

The driving and ruthless lust of a young pool shark to become the nation's all - time champion is the crux of Robert Rossen's fast-paced production "The Hustler," opening today at the Paramount Theatre.

The CinemaScope film stars Paul Newman, Jackie Gleason, Piper Laurie, George C. Scott and Myron McCormick, and was shot against the authentic backgrounds of New York's thousand levels of life, its multiple underworlds, its fashionable and pseudo-elegant society, the daily flow and flux of the world's greatest melting pot.

ARRIVED

"Fast" Eddie (Paul Newman), has arrived in the big city with his friend and manager Charlie Burns (Myron McCormick) after a hustling career in the west. Obsessed with one aim only, to take on the legendary Minnesota Fats (Jackie Gleason) undisputed champion in the field. Eddie is equipped with cash and a cold resolve that beats out all other loyalties. The game is on, a nerve - grinding, exhausting battle of skills, wits and stamina. Eddie loses, but he has been watched by Bert, (George Scott), a big-time money man who exploits pool-room talent for percentages.

Defeat draws Eddie into the aura of a desperate street waif named Sarah, (Piper Laurie), a strange, lame, humiliated girl whose own insecurity has turned her toward alcoholism and isolation.

UNDERSTANDING

Her understanding of Eddie's blind need to be a winner, gives Sarah a new purpose, and she attempts, through love, to awaken some instinct of decency in him. She gives him shelter, nurses him when his thumbs are brutally broken by a tough water-front, pool - room gang, and strives to steer him away from Bert, to whom he has sold himself in a betrayal of his old manager.

Failing to reshape Eddie, her will to persevere is lost in the welter of poverty and perversion that have overwhelmed all of them, and she takes her own life. It is in this act that she accomplishes the regeneration of Eddie, who, now aware of the waste of human life for which he has been responsible, returns to beat Minnesota Fats in a climactic and perfect game, and in a showdown with Bert, regains his personal self-respect.

Curtain Call

"Teahouse of the August Moon," the Pulitzer Prize winning comedy, will open the Little Theatre's 1961-1962 season on Friday, October 20. It will run through Monday, October 23.

Reservations can be made at the Little Theatre starting Wednesday, October 18, after 1:00 p.m.

The play is in full cast rehearsals now. The rehearsals are open to the public, with the exception of the final dress rehearsal, and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

COMMENDED

Judy Evans, Mary Gill, Yoko Napoli, Val Nichols, Nancy Franklin and Mary Ann Grasser are to be commended for their work on the costumes.

The light crew is composed of Betty Bandy, Mary Lou Clay and Curtis Rape. George Patterson and Frances Yeldell are working on the set construction and painting.

The director wishes to thank Yoko Napoli for her advice and help with the language and customs of the Okinawans. She is always at rehearsals, watching and helping.

SCHEDULE CHANGE

"Tales of Hoffman," the foreign film scheduled to be seen on October 12 has been changed to October 14.

The cast, crews, and director have certainly appreciated the refreshments several of the members have brought to rehearsals. Thank you.

Happy Birthday to Grandpa Nobes, who will be 83 years young on October 9 and is still going strong.

Homeowner Untuned To Guidebook

(EDITOR'S NOTE: United Press International reporter William J. Eaton recently moved into his own home after life-long apartment dwelling.)

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)— There's nothing wrong with my handyman's guide. A homeowner's life just isn't that simple.

The guides make it look easy to fix a faucet, paint a wall or do the fall tuneup on the furnace 1-2-3 steps. Fine—but

"Small plumbing repair jobs around the house are not difficult," the handyman's guide assures the novice. "You avoid the inconvenience of waiting until the plumber can get around to you."

With that encouragement, I recently turned my talents to a leaky faucet in the kitchen sink. Fixing it looked like a lead-pipe cinch.

The faucet got fixed—after 48 hours with no water and a $16.50 visit by the plumber. The would-be repairman used the wrong wrench on the wrong packing nut, stripped threads on the faucet and then discovered it was a rare brand that had not been manufactured for 10 years.

'Back Street' Coming Soon To The Jim

"Back Street," the Fannie Hurst novel now a motion picture, opens at the Jim Theatre, October 19. It stars Susan Hayward, John Gavin, and Vera Miles, and was produced by Universal - International Pictures.

Ross Hunter was the producer.

RE-ADAPTED

The Fannie Hurst classic, timelessly engrossing and essentially a woman's story in every sense of the term, was an outstanding success when first filmed with Irene Dunne and John Boles and later with Margaret Sullavan and Charles Boyer.

It has been re-adapted to take advantage of modern cinema techniques. New concepts in sound and photography have added immeasurably to the film's dramatic appeal. Heart - tugs and the original love magic of "Back Street" however, remain unchanged. The theme is eternal.

Susan Hayward is seen as the story's Rae Smith, ambitious young fashion designer who lives in the shadowy background of the married man she loves.

OPPORTUNITIES

For John Gavin, "Back Street" and his co-starring part opposite Miss Hayward offer the popular young player even greater opportunities than his portrayals in "Imitation of Life," "A Time to Love and a Time to Die," and the more recent "Tammy Tell Me True."

The story traces Gavin's clandestine affair with Miss Hayward from the day they meet in Lincoln, Nebraska, to his death, years later, in Paris.

THE HOME SHIFT

Fall Chores Beckoning

By MILDRED SWIFT

Now that the children are in school and well adjusted (we hope), you can begin thinking about the garden, fall house cleaning, redecorating, new clothes or whatever it may be. Here are some jobs that can take up your time in the garden.

GARDEN JOBS

Work up rose beds using some humus. Work in a heavy sprinkling of 8-8-8. You plant roses later, but October is a good month to get the beds in readiness.

October is a good month to make hydrangea and hibiscus cuttings, too.

Pansy plants can be put out as soon as they come in at the nurseries and seed stores. Have the bed ready.

Disbud your exhibition dahlias and chrysanthemums, or those you want to be extra large. Remove all bloom buds in each cluster except one. All the strength of each stem will go into that one flower. The blossom will be larger, generally have a better color and a finer stem.

Watch for calendula plants in the stores. Get them out early and maybe you'll have blooms for Christmas.

You can still put out Louisiana iris rhizomes.

If you're planning to plant a tree, notice the tallow and gingkos after the frosts come. Their gorgeous colors may influence you.

LANDSCAPING

The functional look in landscaping is so sensible. The grounds are planned for the owners personal use and enjoyment and not for the general public. That's the reason foundation planting is placed some distance away from the house, not crowding as we once used it. We stay inside the house more than we stay outside. With the planting extended, we can enjoy the plants because we can see them.

Confusion results when too many kinds of plants are used. If you pick a limited number and use several of them together, you can avoid confusion.

Plants at the doorway to a house are inviting, but avoid the use of too rigid plants standing like sentinels.

Some trees can be planted close to a building because of their habit of growth. They arch out and grow away from the wall. Red bud is an example of such a tree. [illegible] is even better. Trees of that type will grow up and [illegible] space, but they don't block the view or the breezes.

POINSETTIAS

If you've saved your poinsettia plant from last Christmas and would like to have it brighten the house this winter, be careful of the lights.

The poinsettia develops its blooms when days are short and nights are long. To help the plant bloom this winter, keep it in a room not used at night. Begin the short days now and continue until Thanksgiving. Put it in the dark at 5:00 p.m. and remove it at 8:00 a.m. each day. Even short periods of exposure to night lights will interfere with blooming.

When the plant begins to bloom, you will want to display in your lighted rooms. At this stage, the light will make no difference.

The blooming period will last about 10 days or so, then the red leaves, which we call the flower, will fall off and the plant will again become dormant.

A reminder: Keep leaves of all house plants clean. They breathe through their leaves.

PRETTY

The red leaf barberry is a strong ornamental shrub whose graceful growth habit and colorful foliage add beauty to the landscape nine months of the year. Also, the branches are attractive when cut and arranged in the house.

The plant grows fairly fast, requires little care except for an occasional trimming and shaping, which can be done at any time of the year. The plant seems to be free from insects and diseases. They need no protection in winter. This plant loses its leaves in winter. There's a dwarf barberry growing only about 12 inches high, but its a slow grower.

DRYING

A number of arrangers are using okra. They say to dry this they pull up the plant and leave it for a short time, a week or so. The okra dries and is ready to use.

Gourds dry nicely if you'll put a few holes through each one with a skewer or hat pin. The gourd will mold and rot unless the holes are put through it to let out some of the moisture.

STYLES

A New York milliner has been creating what he calls "veil hats" because, he says, it's easier to get a little hat on a woman than a big, elaborate creation. Even the woman who generally refuses to wear hats at all seems to like donning a veil hat, because it's so airy and light weight it doesn't feel like a hat at all. And it does help to keep hairdos smooth.

Veil hats simply are veils with small, interesting hat shapes built on top of them. His new collection of miniatures for fall includes ers to patent leather and lizard.

A well-known company obviously has been taking coiffure styles in mind when designing shower caps. The extra large, bubble shaped shower cap is good news for girls with bouffant hairdos. The flower-patterned flexible cap may be donned without disturbing the line, or it fits over large-sized rollers.

Toe-pinched women who long for the "good old days" should take another look at the shoe styles which were considered high fashion around the "turn of the century." They had that uncomfortable pointed toe even then. And women complaining about today's spike and needle heels will find that back in those days the ladies really didn't have any choice of heel styles—there didn't seem to be any other heel shape except the ungainly little Louis. Its broadening base was considered the finishing touch to the 1911 fashions of tight "harem" skirts, plumed hats and feather boas. About the only variation was in the way the little Louis was elevated to a high Louis for evening.

PLENTY OF CHOICE

Anyway, there'll be plenty of choice in shoe fashions this fall. While the pointed toes and stiletto heels will still be worn by some, the majority of heels will be lower. And many toes will be squared.

Designers of some smart daytime shoes are compromising by turning out a pointed toe pump with a heel, shaped and curved to create the illusion of greater height.

This is the year of the snake skin shoes and bags. Belts follow the lead to brighten waistlines. Even scarves of reptile print are being featured on the accessory counters this fall.

Men's shoes, too, are taking on smart new touches, like British straps and buckles. And men's shoes are becoming more slendered and tapered, and tapered soles give light - footed ease to every style.

Racetrack checks and horse-blanket plaids add a flippant note to even elegant daytime fashions.

The set-in sleeve is making a comeback. Several Paris designers showed it, and though far from becoming a universal choice, it is on its way back. Many women will say it's a good thing, too, because it means that they can lift their arms even to strap hanging height without discomfort.

STRONG POSITION

Buttons are taking a strong position in fall fashions. They're big and dramatic, made of unusual materials such as wood and leather, or they are of metals, like filigree domes.

Have you been wondering what has happened to the popular "little nothing" dress? Well, it's being replaced by the "dress-up" little dress. There are sheer wools, with and without their own jackets. These dresses have necklines made for a necklace or a pin or clip. The dress line are slender through the mid section, with skirts a bit easier than in recent seasons.

The crepes are even more dressed up than the wools, though they too, make much of uncluttered lines. These smart crepes look very new when they are bloused at a slightly lowered waistline, or have a bolero effect that swings out from a snug waist.

GOOD NEWS

Some good news from the bra industry has cheered us up immesely. The news is this: Strapless bras of the future will have no wiring, no boning, more comfort. Many's the woman who has been pierced and pinched by the wiring in her strapless bra. Many another has spent season after season, trying to yank her strapless bra back up into place where it belonged. Most of us have been resigned to the mechanics of making a bra hold up without shoulder support. But that doesn't mean that we have really enjoyed it. There just wasn't any choice because bare shoulder fashions have become a basic part of our lives. Even if a woman doesn't spend every evening at a party or a night club, clothes in general have become increasingly bare, even in the day time. So the strapless bra has become a necessity in even the most down-to-earth wardrobe.

Well, it seems that women will be able to live much more happily from now on, thanks to strapless bras which will stay up without punishing the wearer. This miracle will be achieved by new nets and meshes, and what is called "live rubber." Our test-tube fabrics are constantly being taught to do just what the designer wants done, no matter what they may be. And there will be another bonus, when it comes to sudsing the new bras. For laundering will be even simpler than it is now, with no wires and bones to handle with care. Just a quick swish through soap or detergent suds and rinses, with no bother about the construction framework.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Stamp News

HISTORY AND ART are the handmaidens of postage stamps. This is most evident with the recent issuance of three new stamps from the Republic of China. The stamps are the latest in the series showing Chinese art treasures. There were three previous stamp releases (the first on Aug. 4, 1960) totaling 13 stamps. Thus there are now 16 in the set and all are available at your local stamp dealer. The latest three illustrate a porcelain washer, jade tankard and jade chimaera.

A timely note is that the art treasures seen on these stamps are now on exhibition at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City and will remain on exhibit there until Nov. 1. Rarely shown outside China, these priceless objects were once housed in the Peiping Palace and are now preserved in the underground vaults on Formosa. The collection dates back to the Manchu Dynasty and spans some 2,900 years of Chinese art and history.

The 1962 edition of the Minkus New American Stamp Catalog is now off the press. This edition is a noteworthy improvement over the 1961 book. It contains more than 10,000 entries, 1,700 illustrations and — of prime interest to collectors — 5,350 price changes showing an upward market trend. Included are all U.S. commemoratives, regular issues, duck stamps, postal savings, revenues, a revised section on postal cards, postal stationery, Confederate states, U.S. possessions, administrative areas plus all the stamps of the United Nations. The price is $3 and it is available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department.

An interesting facet of the edition is the introduction which traces the evolution of the United States Postal System from the coffee - house Post Office of Colonial days to the present. There are also descriptive phrases giving the stories behind the stamps.

The new United Nations commemorative stamp honoring the U.N. Economic Commission for Africa will depict the recently constructed Africa House, headquarters of the commission in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. As previously announced in this column, the new issue (fourth U.N. commemorative stamp of 1961) will be placed on sale on United Nations Day, Oct. 24.

The stamp, which will be issued in 4-cent and 11-cent denominations, consists of a line drawing of the headquarters superimposed on a map of the African continent. It was designed by Robert Perrot, a member of the presentation unit of the U.N. Department of Conference Services.

First day cover collectors may send their unstamped envelopes to the U. N. Postal Administration, Room 1B-1, United Nations, New York 17, N.Y. Requests must be postmarked before midnight Oct. 18. The outside envelope must be clearly marked "First Day Covers — Economic Commission for Africa."

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

Mrs. Lloyd B. Young, Suttons Bay, Mich., wins this week's Tailor Trix pressing board for this suggestion.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"May I add to your suggestions for shortening men's and boys' trousers. If trousers are of the wash material type, be sure to wash before alterations. In case of shrinkage, the job of cuff making need be done only once.

"Be sure to save material cut of the trouser legs so it will be available if the boy grows taller and a false cuff is needed. Since the material has already been washed and shrunk, it should fit on the trouser leg perfectly when you need to lengthen them. Also if the trousers become torn, a matching material is available."

Mrs. L.B.Y.

HEMS FOR COATS

"Dear Eunice,

"We have a group of short women in the family and having the hems of coats shortened is quite costly. Please tell us the best way to finish the hem of coats. I appreciate your articles as I'm a 4-H leader and a mother, and find they are a great help."

Mrs. J. McK.

Dear Mrs. J. McK.

The correct way to finish the hem of the coat may or may not be the way it was finished originally. This method however, eliminates the visible "hem-line" and should be used when making jacket or coat hems as well as the sleeve hems.

Use a bias strip of woven type interfacing about the same type as muslin, about ½ - inch wider than the width of the hem. Baste this bias strip to your coat, the edge should be exactly on the hem line marks, as illustrated. Catch- stitch this edge of the bias strip to your coat.

Now fold the hem of the coat in place and baste with silk thread near the fold. Silk thread will not mark your favric when pressed. You may now carefully press the hem of your garment, be sure the edge doesn't get pulled or stretched.

Now catch - stitch the edge of the hem, to the bias - strip only. Bias strip should not extend more than ½ inch beyond width of hem, trim if necessary. Next, catch - stitch the edge of the bias strip which extends, to each and every seam of your coat. This will hold your hem in place until the lining is applied, and will avoid a ridge from the hem, and also the hem stitches from showing on the right side of your garment. You will notice that this bias strip also gives the hemline of your garment, as well as the hem of the sleeves, a little extra body.

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY

Dropped Shoulders: This means that the shoulder line is located below the normal line. It is often a little difficult to detect when you are looking at a pattern, but if the width of the shoulder seam is much more than 4½ inches you can be certain it is a dropped shoulder. The cap of the sleeve in a dropped shoulder garment, should not be shaped as we do in a normal set-in-sleeve, but eased in and pressed flat.

If sleeves are your difficulty, you may wish to send for my leaflet "all About Sleeves," Send 10 cents and a large, stamped, self - addressed envelope to Sew Simple in care of this newspaper.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Spider Lily Time Here

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Red spider lilies were a bit late this year, but now they are blooming from the deep south to Richmond.

North of Richmond, the foliage gets damaged too much in winter to allow them to make buds. Gardeners in Baltimore have taken them up there, but, although they survive, they can never bloom.

THEORY

When they were late, we thought that perhaps last winter had been too cold for the foliage down here, but they pushed up like a medieval army of spears. Fire red, they are. No wonder they are called "British soldiers" in some places. Around colleges and universities, they are often called "freshman lilies" because they arrive with the new crop of freshmen each year. It was not until clipper ships began to go around the Cape of Good Hope and bring the treasures of China and Japan back, that the red spider lilies began to come out of the Orient. Even then, the English could not often get the bulbs to bloom and still cannot, even when they grow them in greenhouses.

Unlike the fall blooming yellow sternbergias that came to the palace garden at Williamsburg from England, our red spider lilies came to us directly from Japan.

One source was probably Commodore Perry, whose relatives on the coast of North Carolina are said to have received their bulbs from his expedition.

STUDY TRIP

Perry took a South Carolinian with him on this trip to study the agriculture of Japan, and this gentleman may have brought spider lily bulbs home, too.

It pays to keep your eyes open when visiting very old gardens in the south. We had always thought we had only one kind of sternbergia in southern gardens, but a wide - leaved variety showed up in eastern North Carolina. Sternbergias are extremely valuable in a fall garden because they will bloom every single year, cold winters or no cold winters.

Their foliage is hardier to extreme cold than the folige of spider lilies. They multiply rapidly, but will flower even when very crowded. In fact, they seem to like being crowded, and only poor soil will prevent their blooming vigorously in September and October.

BIRD-OF-PARADISE

Several readers have asked whether or not to cut back their long unbranched plants of bird-of - paradise shrub they raised from seeds last year or the year before. The answer is to leave this long wood alone until next spring, just before the plants come out and then cut them back to one third of their length. Well fed specimens will then put out side shoots.

We are still getting requests for information about where to get bulbs and plants without a self-addressed postal enclosed. we shall be glad to return these postals, but we are sorry that the column is not a "questions and answers" column.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

La Petite Maison Displays Flowers

By Mrs. K. R. YOUNG

The La Petite Maison Garden Club of Monroe presented the lovely show for the Garden Center and the TV program last week. Mrs. Beattle Eason is club president.

An interesting pyramid arrangement was done by Mrs. Amos Smelser. Her container was a black reproduction of an Etruscan cup. Her material was anchored in a cone shaped piece of hardware cloth.

For greenery, she used tips of green pittosporum foliage, and for color, she used orange colored French marigolds, graduating her color into orange pyracantha berries, and on into the yellow green berries at the very tip of the pyramid. This was a most interesting and beautifully made arrangement.

ARRANGEMENT

Mrs. Vernon Smith and Mrs. Louis Breard Jr., created a very colorful harvest arrangement. A vertical mass arrangement was made with dried heads of grain, stems of brown seed heads and brown cat tails. The massed line was done with orange zinnias, with a few brown magnolia leaves places low in the design. For accessory, a very interesting turkey pattern was worked out by making the body of the turkey from an eggplant which was completely covered with yellow French marigolds. The head of the turkey was made from the neck of a yellow squash. Tan colored sea oats formed the tail. The overall design of the arrangement was triangular, and would make a most interesting harvest coffee table arrangement.

CRESCENT DESIGN

Mrs. Ben Johnson used coleus to form the line for a lovely crescent design. She clustered small zinnias at the center of interest, using a large zinnia at the lowest point, letting it extend over the edge of the container. Her container was rectangular in shape, and suitable for the crescent design. Her colors were most pleasing.

Mrs. Jack Murphy created a vertical triangular design, using leaves of native iris foliage for a first placement and variegated sansavieria for second and third placement. Yellow daylillies formed the center of interest. The container was made of ceramic to resemble a piece of weathered wood and quite suitable for the material used. This was a well balanced triangle, and a beautiful arrangement.

LONG LASTING

Mrs. Walter Ernest's long lasting dried arrangement was placed in a palm spathe container, light tan in color, and lightly sprayed with gold. Slender dried branches formed the line of the cresent.

Wood roses were massed at the center of interest, and dried grasses which had been touched with gold were used to fill in the design. The overall effect of tans, browns and gold was very pleasing.

FROM Silver Waters Council

This is Fair week! Look for the Girl Scout booth at the far end of the exhibits building, next door to the Boy Scouts'. Mrs. F. M. Waren, Mrs. Courtlandt McCoy and Mrs. N. L. Huckabee were responsible for the exhibits. Mrs. Waren and Mrs. McCoy also had charge of the Girl Scout participation in the football half-time show at the West Monroe game. Representing the Girl Soucts in the United Givers kickoff were Marilyn Waren, Betsy Einhorn, Kathleen McCoy and Ann Works.

Fair week also includes the Art Festival at Columbia Saturday. The Girl Scouts will have an exhibit, as they have had each year. The festival promises to be more attractive than ever, with the addition of a flower show. Theme for the festival is the Civil War Centennial. Plan to drive down and spend a few hours at the outdoor affair.

Tuesday is the first neighborhood meeting for West Monroe, at Highland School at 1:15 p.m. Troop leaders or adult representatives are urged to attend. Plans will be made for activities and services including a court-of-awards, playday at camp, training, organization of troops. Mrs. R. W. Plair is neighborhood chairman. Southside neighborhood meets Thursday at 1:15 at Plum Street School.

A meeting of great interest and importance to Girl Scout adults is "The Swing" in Jackson, Mississippi on November 9. Instead of one regional conference, meetings are being held in each state in Region V, with the Regional Chairman, members of National staff and members of the regional committee making a "swing" to attend. Closest to this area is Jackson, which can be a one-day trip.

The meeting is for all, especially for leaders. For fun and inspiration there's nothing like a Girl Scout meeting. It is well worth the effort it takes for volunteers to leave home for a full day. Car pools are being made up for the trip. A nominal fee for registration and lunch is the only expense except transportation. To make arrangements, the hostess council needs to know how many are planning to attend. In our council, interested adults should call the office or their neighborhood chairmen by the 10th of this month, if possible.

October, besides being the month for bright blue weather, fairs and festivals, football and Scout meetings, is United Givers time. The United Givers organization is an opportunity for citizens to support character - building agencies, including Girl Scouts, and others necessary to modern living, with one gift.

McGavin Wants Lots Of Sound To Fill Theater

"I have an obsession about filling the theater," declares the star of "Blood, Sweat and Stanley Poole."

"It has nothing to do with having all the seats filled. I'm a great believer in using plenty of volume. At least they'll damn well hear what I say."

Early Start For Annuals

By AUDREY DAWSON

Many of our annuals do much better in fall instead of spring. There are so many, it's a problem of selection.

Those recommended for each area are: larkspur, calendula, poppy, phlox, verbena, snapdragon, stock, candytuft. The seed may be planted in beds and transplanted in spring of the year or planted in beds or rows where they are to remain.

EARLIER, LARGER

In case of extreme cold during winter, cover lightly with straw or similar material. Planting these in the fall will usually result in earlier and larger blooms, as well as a longer blooming period.

Our spring flowering bulbs should be planted in October, also. These include daffodils, Easter lilies, grape hyacinths, anemonies, and ronunculas. However, amaryllis should be planted out of doors after danger of frost. Tulips should be planted out of doors in December.

There is no set rule on how deep to plant bulbs. It depends on the type of soil. Ordinarily, plant bulbs to a depth of two and one half to three times their diameter, although in clay soil, not so deep. It is well to mix some sand in heavy clay soils.

CIVIL DEFENSE

Mrs. Peggy Richard, educational project officer from New Orleans, spent one day in the parish this past week training Home Demonstration Club Civil Defense leaders in the Home Preparedness area of Civil Defense. These leaders will help other homemakers by giving them instructions on the nature of radioactive fall out and the importance of learning how to deal with it and protective measures to insure survival of the family.

The following leaders attended the workshop:

Bosco, Mrs. W. D. Dear, Mrs. Pat Salisbury; Better Homemaker, Mrs. T. E. Miller; Cadeville, Mrs. Lee Wilder; Cheniere, Mrs. E. G. Cagle; Claiborne, Mrs. J. R. Frantom; Colony, Mrs. R. C. ### PARISH FAIR

This is to remind you to bring your exhibits to the fair grounds tomorrow from 8:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. You may exhibit canning, baking, clothing, flowers and handicraft. Everything must be brought on Monday except the baking. You must enter the baked products Monday and bring them in on Tuesday morning not later than 9:00 a.m. All homemaking exhibits will be judged Tuesday.

MILDEW

Many homemakers are calling about mildew in the clothes closet. There are several things you may use to prevent mildew and mold in closets. Heat from an electric light bulb kept burning in the closet will keep the air dry enough to prevent mildew. Frequent airing with an electric fan also helps.

An old stand - by to absorb moisture from the air is a jar [illegible] calcium chloride. However, the disadvantage of using this, is that it absorbs moisture and becomes liquid. When this happens, it must be drained and new solid chloride must be added. If you have trouble with mildew on shoes in the closet, keep them on high shelves or racks. Damp air is heavy and it tends to settle along the floor and encourage mildew.

BLEACHES

Many of our wash - and - wear materials have a resin finish which makes them turn yellow or tan, when a chlorine bleach is used. Unless the label definitely states that the fabric is non-chlorine retentive use no bleaches or only those listed as mild bleaches.

But if you did use a chlorine bleach the discoloration may be removed if the garment has not been subjected to heat, such a a dryer which is too hot or ironing. Research shows that to remove chlorine discoloration you may add one tablespoon of sodium thiosulfate or rit color remover to one gallon of water and one gallon of water and one-fourth cup of white vinegar.

It is possible that some finishes may be entirely removed by this process but in most cases after there is chlorine damage the garment is not wearable anyway unless the discoloration is removed.

A THOUGHT

What a racket there'd be if we made as much noise when things go right as we do when things go wrong.

Producer Gains Lawyer Status After 7 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — Theatrical producer Bruce Becker is a lawyer after seven years of spare-time study between stage projects.

Becker, [illegible], operates the Tappan Zee Playhouse at Nyack, N. Y., and has been involved in various Broadway ventures. Having received his legal degree from New York University, Becker plans to specialize in theatrical and copyright law.

THE HOME SHIFT

Fall Chores Beckoning

By MILDRED SWIFT

Now that the children are in school and well adjusted (we hope), you can begin thinking about the garden, fall house cleaning, redecorating, new clothes or whatever it may be. Here are some jobs that can take up your time in the garden.

GARDEN JOBS

Work up rose beds using some humus. Work in a heavy sprinkling of 8-8-8. You plant roses, later, but October is a good month to get the beds in readiness.

October is a good month to make hydrangea and hibiscus cuttings, too.

Pansy plants can be put out as soon as they come in at the nurseries and seed stores. Have the bed ready.

Disbud your exhibition dahlias and chrysanthemums, or those you want to be extra large. Remove all bloom buds in each cluster except one. All the strength of each stem will go into that one flower. The blossom will be larger, generally have a better color and a finer stem.

Watch for calendula plants in the stores. Get them out early and maybe you'll have blooms for Christmas.

You can still put out Louisiana iris rhizomes.

If you're planning to plant a tree, notice the tallows and ginglos after the frosts come. Their gorgeous colors may influence you.

LANDSCAPING

The functional look in landscaping is so sensible. The grounds are planned for the owners personal use and enjoyment and not for the general public. That's the reason foundation planting is placed some distance away from the house, not crowding as we once used it. We stay inside the house more than we stay outside. With the planting extended, we can enjoy the plants because we can see them.

Confusion results when too many kinds of plants are used. If you pick a limited number and use several of them together, you can avoid confusion.

Plants at the doorway to a house are inviting, but avoid the use of too rigid plants standing like sentinels.

Some trees can be planted close to a building because of their habit of growth. They arch out and grow away from the wall. Redbud is an example of such a tree, but mimosa is even better. Trees of that type will grow up and provide shade, but they don't block the view or the breezes.

POINSETTIAS

If you've saved your poinsettia plant from last Christmas and would like to have it brighten the house this winter, be careful of the lights.

The poinsettia develops its blooms when days are short and nights are long. To help the plant bloom this winter, keep it in a room not used at night. Begin the short days now and continue until Thanksgiving. Put it in the dark at 5:00 p.m. and remove it at 8:00 a.m. each day. Even short periods of exposure to night lights will interfere with blooming.

When the plant begins to bloom, you will want to display in your lighted rooms. At this stage, the light will make no difference.

The blooming period will last about 10 days or so, then the red leaves, which we call the flower, will fall off and the plant will again become dormant.

PRETTY

The red leaf barberry is a spring ornamental shrub whose pleasing growth habit and colorful foliage add beauty to the landscape, nine months of the year. Also, the branches are attractive when cut and arranged in the house.

The plant grows fairly fast, requires little care except for an occasional trimming and shaping, which can be done at any time of the year. The plant seems to be free from insects and diseases. They need no protection in winter. This plant loses its leaves in winter. There's a dwarf barberry growing only about 12 inches high, but its a slow grower.

DRYING

A number of arrangers are using okra. They say to dry this they pull up the plant and leave it for a short time, a week or so. The okra dries and is ready to use.

Gourds dry nicely if you'll put a few holes through each one with a skewer or hat pin. The gourd will mold and rot unless the holes are put through it to let out some of the moisture.

STYLES

A New York milliner has been creating what he calls "veil hats" because, he says, it's easier to get a little hat on a woman than a big, elaborate creation. Even the woman who generally refuses to wear hats at all seems to like donning a veil hat, because it's so airy and light weight it doesn't feel like a hat at all. And it does help to keep hairdos smooth.

Veil hats simply are veils with small, interesting hat shapes built on top of them. His new collection of miniatures for fall includes ers to patent leather and lizard.

A well-known company obviously has been taking coiffure styles in mind when designing shower caps. The extra large, bubble shaped shower cap is good news for girls with bouffant hairdos. The flower-patterned flexible cap may be donned without disturbing the line, or it fits over large-sized rollers.

Toe-pinched women who long for the "good old days" should take another look at the shoe styles which were considered high fashion around the "turn of the century." They had that uncomfortable pointed toe even then. And women complaining about today's spike and needle heels will find that back in those days the ladies really didn't have any choice of heel styles—there didn't seem to be any other heel shape except the ungainly little Louis. Its broadening base was considered the finishing touch to the 1911 fashions of tight "harem" skirts, plumed hats and feather boas. About the only variation was in the way the little Louis was elevated to a high Louis for evening.

PLENTY OF CHOICE

Anyway, there'll be plenty of choice in shoe fashions this fall. While the pointed toes and stiletto heels will still be worn by some, the majority of heels will be lower. And many toes will be squared.

Designers of some smart daytime shoes are compromising by turning out a pointed toe pump with a heel, shaped and curved to create the illusion of greater height.

This is the year of the snake —in shoes and bags. Belts follow the lead to brighten waistlines. Even scarves of reptile print are being featured on the accessory counters this fall.

Men's shoes, too, are taking on smart new touches, like British straps and buckles. And men's shoes are becoming more slendered and tapered, and tapered soles give light - footed ease to every style.

Racetrack checks and hose-blanket plaids add a flippant note to even elegant daytime fashions.

The set-in sleeve is making a comeback. Several Paris designers showed it, and though far from becoming a universal choice, it is on its way back. Many women will say it's a good thing, too, because it means that they can lift their arms even to strap hanging height without discomfort.

STRONG POSITION

Buttons are taking a strong position in fall fashions. They're big and dramatic, made of unusual materials such as wood and leather, or they are of metals, like filigree domes.

Have you been wondering what has happened to the popular "little nothing" dress? Well, it's being replaced by the "dress-up" little dress. There are sheer wools, with and without their own jackets. These dresses have necklines made for a necklace or a pin or clip. The dress line are slender through the mid section, with skirts a bit easier than in recent seasons.

The crepes are even more dressed up than the wools, though they too, make much of uncluttered lines. These smart crepes look very new when they are bloused at a slightly lowered waistline, or have a bolero effect that swings out from a snug waist.

GOOD NEWS

Some good news from the bra industry has cheered us up immesely. The news is this: Strapless bras of the future will have no wiring, no boning, more comfort. Many's the woman who has been pierced and pinched by the wiring in her strapless bra. Many another has spent season after season, trying to yank her strapless bra back up into place where it belonged. Most of us have been resigned to the mechanics of making a bra hold up without shoulder support. But that doesn't mean that we have really enjoyed it. There just wasn't any choice because bare shoulder fashions have become a basic part of our lives. Even if a woman doesn't spend every evening at a party or a night club, clothes in general have become increasingly bare, even in the day time. So the strapless bra has become a necessity in even the most down-to-earth wardrobe.

Well, it seems that women will be able to live much more happily from now on, thanks to strapless bras which will stay up without punishing the wearer. This miracle will be achieved by new nets and meshes, and what is called "live rubber." Our test-tube fabrics are constantly being taught to do just what the designer wants done, no matter what they may be. And there will be another bonus, when it comes to sudsing the new bras. For laundering will be even simpler than it is now, with no wires and bones to handle with care. Just a quick swish through soap or detergent suds and rinses, with no bother about the construction framework.

Stamp News

HISTORY AND ART are the handmaidens of postage stamps. This is most evident with the recent issuance of three new stamps from the Republic of China. The stamps are the latest in the series showing Chinese art treasures. There were three previous stamp releases (the first on Aug. 4, 1960) totaling 13 stamps. Thus there are now 16 in the set and all are available at your local stamp dealer. The latest three illustrate a porcelain washer, jade tankard and jade chimaera.

A timely note is that the art treasures seen on these stamps are now on exhibition at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City and will remain on exhibit there until Nov. 1. Rarely shown outside China, these priceless objects were once housed in the Peiping Palace and are now preserved in the underground vaults on Formosa. The collection dates back to the Manchu Dynasty and spans some 2,900 years of Chinese art and history.

The 1962 edition of the Minkus New American Stamp Catalog is now off the press. This edition is a noteworthy improvement over the 1961 book. It contains more than 10,000 entries, 1,700 illustrations and — of prime interest to collectors — 5,350 price changes showing an upward market trend. Included are all U.S. commemoratives, regular issues, duck stamps, postal savings, revenues, a revised section on postal cards, postal stationery, Confederate states, U.S. possessions, administrative areas plus all the stamps of the United Nations. The price is $3 and it is available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department.

An interesting facet of the edition is the introduction which traces the evolution of the United States Postal System from the coffee - house Post Office of Colonial days to the present. There are also descriptive phrases giving the stories behind the stamps.

By Eunice Farmer

Mrs. Lloyd B. Young, Suttons Bay, Mich., wins this week's Tailor Trix pressing board for this suggestion.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"May I add to your suggestions for shortening men's and boys' trousers. If trousers are of the wash material type, be sure to wash before alterations. In case of shrinkage, the job of cuff making need be done only once.

"Be sure to save material cut of the trouser legs so it will be available if the boy grows taller and a false cuff is needed. Since the material has already been washed and shrunk, it should fit on the trouser leg perfectly when you need to lengthen them. Also if the trousers become torn, a matching material is available."

Mrs. L.B.Y.

HEMS FOR COATS

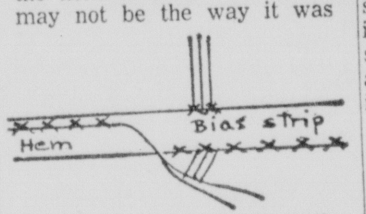
"Dear Eunice,

"We have a group of short women in the family and having the hems of coats shortened is quite costly. Please tell us the best way to finish the hem of coats. I appreciate your articles as I'm a 4-H leader and a mother, and find they are a great help."

Mrs. J. McK.

Dear Mrs. J. McK:

The correct way to finish the hem of the coat may or may not be the way it was finished originally. This method however, eliminates the visible "hem-line" and should be used when making jacket or coat hems as well as the sleeve hems.



Use a bias strip of woven type interfacing about the same type as muslin, about ½ - inch wider than the width of the hem. Baste this bias strip to your coat, the edge should be exactly on the hem line marks, as illustrated. Catch- stitch this edge of the bias strip to your coat.

Now fold the hem of the coat in place and baste with silk thread near the fold. Silk thread will not mark your favric when pressed. You may now carefully press the hem of your garment, be sure the edge doesn't get pulled or stretched.

Now catch - stitch the edge of the hem, to the bias - strip only. Bias strip should not extend more than ½ inch beyond width of hem, trim if necessary. Next, catch - stitch the edge of the bias strip which extends, to each and every seam of your coat. This will hold your hem in place until the lining is applied, and will avoid a ridge from the hem, and also the hem stitches from showing on the right side of your garment. You will notice that this bias strip also gives the hemline of your garment, as well as the hem of the sleeves, a little extra body.

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY

Dropped Shoulders: This means that the shoulder line is located below the normal line. It is often a little difficult to detect when you are looking at a pattern, but if the width of the shoulder seam is much more than 4½ inches you can be certain it is a dropped shoulder. The cap of the sleeve in a dropped shoulder garment, should not be shaped as we do in a normal set-in-sleeve, but eased in and pressed flat.

If sleeves are your difficulty, you may wish to send for my leaflet "all About Sleeves," Send 10 cents and a large, stamped, self - addressed envelope to Sew Simple in care of this newspaper.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Spider Lily Time Here

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Red spider lilies were a bit late this year, but now they are blooming from the deep south to Richmond.

North of Richmond, the foliage gets damaged too much in winter to allow them to make buds. Gardeners in Baltimore have taken them up there, but, although they survive, they can never bloom.

THEORY

When they were late, we thought that perhaps last winter had been too cold for the foliage down here, but they pushed up like a medieval army of spears. Fire red, they are. No wonder they are called "British soldiers" in some places. Around colleges and universities, they are often called "freshman lilies" because they arrive with the new crop of freshmen each year. It was not until clipper ships began to go around the Cape of Good Hope and bring the treasures of China and Japan back, that the red spider lilies began to come out of the Orient. Even then, the English could not often get the bulbs to bloom and still cannot, even when they grow them in greenhouses.

Unlike the fall blooming yellow sternbergias that came to the palace garden at Williamsburg from England, our red spider lilies came to us directly from Japan.

One source was probably Commodore Perry, whose relatives on the coast of North Carolina are said to have received their bulbs from his expedition.

STUDY TRIP

Perry took a South Carolinian with him on this trip to study the agriculture of Japan, and this gentleman may have brought spider lily bulbs home, too.

It pays to keep your eyes open when visiting very old gardens in the south. We had always thought we had only one kind of sternbergia in southern gardens, but a wide - leaved variety showed up in eastern North Carolina. Sternbergias are extremely valuable in a fall garden because they will bloom every single year, cold winters or no cold winters.

Their foliage is hardier to extreme cold than the folige of spider lilies. They multiply rapidly, but will flower even when very crowded. In fact, they seem to like being crowded, and only poor soil will prevent their blooming vigorously in September and October.

BIRD-OF-PARADISE

Several readers have asked whether or not to cut back their long unbranched plants of bird-of - paradise shrub they raised from seeds last year or the year before. The answer is to leave this long wood alone until next spring, just before the plants come out and then cut them back to one third of their length. Well fed specimens will then put out side shoots.

We are still getting requests for information about where to get bulbs and plants without a self-addressed postal enclosed. we shall be glad to return these postals, but we are sorry that the column is not a "questions and answers" column.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

La Petite Maison Displays Flowers

By Mrs. K. R. YOUNG

The La Petite Maison Garden Club of Monroe presented the lovely show for the Garden Center and the TV program last week. Mrs. Beattle Eason is club president.

An interesting pyramid arrangement was done by Mrs. Amos Smelser. Her container was a black reproduction of an Etruscan cup. Her material was anchored in a cone shaped piece of hardware cloth.

For greenery, she used tips of green pittosporum foliage, and for color, she used orange colored French marigolds, graduating her color into orange pyracantha berries, and on into the yellow green berries at the very tip of the pyramid. This was a most interesting and beautifully made arrangement.

A vertical mass arrangement was made with dried heads of grain, stems of brown seed heads and brown cat tails. The massed line was done with orange zinnias, with a few brown magnolia leaves places low in the design. For accessory, a very interesting turkey pattern was worked out by making the body of the turkey from an eggplant which was completely covered with yellow French marigolds. The head of the turkey was made from the neck of a yellow squash. Tan colored sea oats formed the tail. The overall design of the arrangement was triangular, and would make a most interesting harvest coffee table arrangement.

CRESCENT DESIGN

Mrs. Ben Johnson used coleus to form the line for a lovely crescent design. She clustered small zinnias at the center of interest, using a large zinnia at the lowest point, letting it extend over the edge of the container. Mrs. Walter Ernest's long lasting dried arrangement was placed in a palm spathe container, light tan in color, and lightly sprayed with gold. Slender dried branches formed the line of the cresent.

Wood roses were massed at the center of interest, and dried grasses which had been touched with gold were used to fill in the design. The overall effect of tans, browns and gold was very pleasing.

FROM Silver Waters Council

This is Fair week! Look for the Girl Scout booth at the far end of the exhibits building, next door to the Boy Scouts'. Mrs. F. M. Waren, Mrs. Courtlandt McCoy and Mrs. N. L. Huckabee were responsible for the exhibits. Mrs. Waren and Mrs. McCoy also had charge of the Girl Scout participation in the football half-time show at the West Monroe game. Representing the Girl Soucts in the United Givers kickoff were Marilyn Waren, Betsy Einhorn, Kathleen McCoy and Ann Works.

Fair week also includes the Art Festival at Columbia Saturday. The Girl Scouts will have an exhibit, as they have had each year. The festival promises to be more attractive than ever, with the addition of a flower show. Theme for the festival is the Civil War Centennial. Plan to drive down and spend a few hours at the outdoor affair.

Tuesday is the first neighborhood meeting for West Monroe, at Highland School at 1:15 p.m. Troop leaders or adult representatives are urged to attend. Plans will be made for activities and services including a court-of-awards, playday at camp, training, organization of troops. Mrs. R. W. Plair is neighborhood chairman. Southside neighborhood meets Thursday at 1:15 at Plum Street School.

A meeting of great interest and importance to Girl Scout adults is "The Swing" in Jackson, Mississippi on November 9. Instead of one regional conference, meetings are being held in each state in Region V, with the Regional Chairman, members of National staff and members of the regional committee making a "swing" to attend. Closest to this area is Jackson, which can be a one-day trip.

The meeting is for all, especially for leaders. For fun and inspiration there's nothing like a Girl Scout meeting. It is well worth the effort it takes for volunteers to leave home for a full day. Car pools are being made up for the trip. A nominal fee for registration and lunch is the only expense except transportation. To make arrangements, the hostess council needs to know how many are planning to attend. In our council, interested adults should call the office or their neighborhood chairmen by the 10th of this month, if possible.

October, besides being the month for bright blue weather, fairs and festivals, football and Scout meetings, is United Givers time. The United Givers organization is an opportunity for citizens to support character - building agencies, including Girl Scouts, and others necessary to modern living, with one gift.

McGavin Wants Lots Of Sound To Fill Theater

"I have an obsession about filling the theater," declares the star of "Blood, Sweat and Stanley Poole."

"It has nothing to do with having all the seats filled. I'm a great believer in using plenty of volume. At least they'll damn well hear what I say."

Early Start For Annuals

By AUDREY DAWSON

Many of our annuals do much better in fall instead of spring. There are so many, it's a problem of selection.

Those recommended for each area are: larkspur, calendula, poppy, phlox, verbena, snapdragon, stock, candytuft. The seed may be planted in beds and transplanted in spring of the year or planted in beds or rows where they are to remain.

EARLIER, LARGER

In case of extreme cold during winter, cover lightly with straw or similar material. Planting these in the fall will usually result in earlier and larger blooms, as well as a longer blooming period.

Our spring flowering bulbs should be planted in October, also. These include daffodils, Easter lilies, grape hyacinths, anemonies, and ronunculas. However, amaryllis should be planted out of doors after danger of frost. Tulips should be planted out of doors in December.

There is no set rule on how deep to plant bulbs. It depends on the type of soil. Ordinarily, plant bulbs to a depth of two and one half to three times their diameter, although in clay soil, not so deep. It is well to mix some sand in heavy clay soils.

CIVIL DEFENSE

Mrs. Peggy Richard, educational project officer from New Orleans, spent one day in the parish this past week training Home Demonstration Club Civil Defense leaders in the Home Preparedness area of Civil Defense. These leaders will help other homemakers by giving them instructions on the nature of radioactive fall out and the importance of learning how to deal with it and protective measures to insure survival of the family.

The following leaders attended the workshop:

Bosco, Mrs. W. D. Dear, Mrs. Pat Salisbury; Better Homemaker, Mrs. T. E. Miller; Cadeville, Mrs. Lee Wilder; Cheniere, Mrs. E. G. Cagle; Claiborne, Mrs. J. R. Frantom; Colony, Mrs. R. C. Welch Home Demonstration Council, Mrs. L. J. Bower; Cypress, Mrs. George Meredith; Drew, Mrs. W. O. Roberts, Lakeshore, Mrs. Neal Collins, Lakeview; Mrs. D. E. McGraw, Lamkin; Mrs. F. Lightsey, Lenwil; Mrs. F. M. Graft, Logtown; Mrs. W. A. Calloway, Mc Clendon Mrs. E. H. Moore, McGuire; Mrs. J. B. Terral, Okaloosa; Mrs. Johnnie Bonnett, Progressive, Mrs. T. E. Ford, Liberty, Mrs. J. Aulds; Sterlington, Mrs. O. H. Manhart; Swartz, Mrs. W. J. St. John; Thrifty Homemaker, Mrs. Milton Hall; Watson, Mrs. Recca Jones; Woodlawn, Mrs. Leon Sims.

PARISH FAIR

This is to remind you to bring your exhibits to the fair grounds tomorrow from 8:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. You may exhibit canning, baking, clothing, flowers and handicraft. Everything must be brought on Monday except the baking. You must enter the baked products Monday and bring them in on Tuesday morning not later than 9:00 a.m. All homemaking exhibits will be judged Tuesday.

MILDEW

Many homemakers are calling about mildew in the clothes closet. There are several things you may use to prevent mildew and mold in closets. Heat from an electric light bulb kept burning in the closet will keep the air dry enough to prevent mildew. Frequent airing with an electric fan also helps.

An old stand - by to absorb moisture from the air is a jar of calcium chloride. However, the disadvantage of using this, is that it absorbs moisture and becomes liquid. When this happens, it must be drained and new solid chloride must be added. If you have trouble with mildew on shoes in the closet, keep them on high shelves or racks. Damp air is heavy and it tends to settle along the floor and encourage mildew.

BLEACHES

Many of our wash - and - wear materials have a resin finish which makes them turn yellow or tan, when a chlorine bleach is used. Unless the label definitely states that the fabric is non-chlorine retentive use no bleaches or only those listed as mild bleaches.

But if you did use a chlorine bleach the discoloration may be removed if the garment has not been subjected to heat, such as a dryer which is too hot or ironing. Research shows that to remove chlorine discoloration you may add one tablespoon of sodium thiosulfate or rit color remover to one gallon of water and one-gallon of water and one-fourth cup of white vinegar.

It is possible that some finishes may be entirely removed by this process but in most cases after there is chlorine damage the garment is not wearable anyway unless the discoloration is removed.

A THOUGHT

What a racket there'd be if we made as much noise when things go right as we do when things go wrong.

Producer Gains Lawyer Status After 7 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — Theatrical producer Bruce Becker is a lawyer after seven years of spare-time study between stage projects.

Becker, 36, operates the Tappan Zee Playhouse at Nyack, N. Y., and has been involved in various Broadway ventures. Having received his legal degree from New York University, Becker plans to specialize in theatrical and copyright law.

According to the Home Improvement Council, outlays for repairs and maintenance, expansion and improvements soared to about $18-20 billion last year. To tell the nation's home-owners of their products and services, manufacturers of housing equipment and household furniture and furnishings placed nearly $22 million worth of advertising in daily newspapers in 1960.

Contrast Seen In Discipline Of Professions

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Lawyers have a far more demanding intellectual discipline than ministers, says the Rev. Donald L. Robertson.

But, he adds, the emotional discipline is far more demanding in the ministry.

The associate pastor of Fairborn Methodist Church ought to know. He is a graduate of Cincinnati and Harvard law schools, and was teaching law himself and engaged in a profitable practice when he decided to enter United Theological Seminary.

"I realized that there is so much more to life than just the legal aspects," he says. "I had been making money off the problems of my clients, but these were not the problems that really needed solving."

"Besides," he says with a grin, "I look a lot more like a minister than a lawyer."

COOPERATIVE STUDY

Church Leaders Study New Plan

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Religious leaders and public school officials are quietly exploring a bold new plan for church-state cooperation in the education of America's children.

A SHREVEPORT layman, William H. Hamm Jr., wil be speaker today at 11 a.m. services at College Place Baptist Church on Sherouse Avenue, in observance of Layman's Day. He is a member of the Broadmoor Baptist Church of Shreveport.

Supporters say it would settle the controversy over public aid to parochial schools, and at, the same time open the way for more adequate religious education of millions of children attending public schools.

And, they say, it would achieve both of these objectives without violating constitutional requirements for separation of church and state.

Here's how it would work:

Public schools would continue to offer a complete program of studies for all children who elect full-time attendance.

But they would also offer a "shared-time" arrangement, under which a child would take some of his courses in a church school, and others in a public school.

For example, boys and girls enrolled in Catholic elementary and high schools might go to public schools for instruction in such subjects as mathematics, physical education, industrial arts and home economics.

RELIGION CREDIT

Protestant and Jewish children, while taking most of their academic courses in public schools, would have the option of spending a substantial portion of each school day in a religious school. And they would receive full academic credit for any approved courses which they took there.

This would mean, to choose two illustrations at random, that a Jewish child would receive the credit for mastering Hebrew in a synagogue school that he gets for learning Spanish or French in a public school; and a Presbyterian youth could study the Bible or church history under professional teachers provided by his church during periods of the regular school day when he might otherwise be taking elective courses in a public school.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders have been exchanging views on the proposal for several months on an informal, private basis. A full-dress conference of religious leaders and public school officials, to consider its pros and cons, is now in the works.

Although no religious body or educational organization is yet committeed to it, the discussions indicate that it has powerful appeal for at least four differenct groups.

RELIGIOUS ILLITERACY

The original proponents were leaders of several major Protestant denominations who are deeply concerned about the religious illiteracy of vast numbers of American children. These leaders know that a child cannot learn much about his faith from one hectic hour a week at Sunday school.

They are not optimistic about the average parent's ability —or willingness — to do the job at home. And they see no constitutional way in which public schools can inculcate religious insights and values.

Protestant efforts to provide systematic religious courses outside of regular school hours or within the school day on the so-called "released-time" basis have not been outstandingly successful. These courses are by definition "extra-curricular activities" to public school children, and they suffer from the competition of a vigorously promoted school program.

These Protestant leaders like the "shared time" concept, first for the practical reason that it would allow more room foor systematic religious education within a child's normal curriculum, and second for the theological reeson that it recognizes the church as a full partner, by right and not by sufference, in the nurture of children.

LEADERS SYMPATHETIC

Catholic leaders have responded to the proposal with active and sympathetic interest. It falls considerably short of a direct public subsidy for Catholic schools, which many Catholics feel would be justified on the basis that these schools are doing a job for the state by educating one-eighth of America's children.

But Catholic educators recognize that any subsidy will be politically difficult if not impossible to obtain.

Jewish leaders, traditionally wary of any arrangement that divides children conspicuously into religious groupings, have been divided in their reaction to "shared time." Some are very skeptical of the whole idea. Others are attracted by the prospect of averting the dangerous church-state entanglement.

Public school officials tend to be appalled by the administrative difficulties which "shared time" would involve. But some of them see great merit in the plan. They believe it would help to unite Americans of all faiths behind measures to improve the public school system.

Short Items On Activities In Religion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Grandfather can give a lot of advice to Floyd L. Stolzenburg, a Capital University student who plant to become clergyman. Grand father is the Rev. Otto F. Stolzenburg, 71, who is retiring this year after 50 years in the ministry — 41 at Zion Lutheran Church in Columbus.

RETURNING

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The offeratory completed at Monroe United Presbyterian Church, David Heasley came down the aisle with the collection plate. He was headed for the church office, but 5-year-old Chris Weldon drew his own conclusions.

Young Chris, a wide-eyed participant in the morning worship service, exclaimed: "Oh, you're the man who takes the money to God."

FLOWER SIGN

CHEEKTOWAGA, N.Y. (AP) — Flowers growing on a lawn of the Cleveland Drive United Presbyeterian Church spell out the message, "God Gave His Son."

The design was created by Howard Calton, who says it is "sort of a missionary effort on my part. A lot of people who love flowers, don't have time for God."

BRUSH UP

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Many Methodist ministers in the Ohio area go back to school about the same time as the youngsters toward the end of summer.

A four-day pastors' school is conducted annually at Ohio Wesleyan University. The ministers take brush-up courses in preaching, church history, social ethics and other topcis.

CARE ENOUGH

PARMA, Ohio (AP) — Thirteen nuns are providing dedicated care at an unusual institution here which most patients never leave alive. It's the Holy Family Cancer Hospital-Home, which cares for penniless victims of incurable cancer regardless of religion or color.

"Most patients aren't morbid," says Sister M. Matthew, who directs the work of the Dominican Sisters of St. Rose of Lima at the home. "Many are incurable optimists. They talk about what they're going to do when they leave here, even as they're getting worse every day."

Contributions and memorial gifts finance the operation, and many volunteers assist the 13 nuns. Sister M. Matthew says: "It's become sort of a community project."

Area Educator Will Speak At Church Service

WINNFIELD (Special) — Eugene F. Love, principal of Winnfield School, will be guest speaker for this morning's Laymen's Day service, at 11:00 a.m. in Waller Baptist Church, Bossier City, of which the Rev. Stogner is pastor.

Love's topic is "What is Blocking Your View of Jesus Christ?" He spoke to a capacity crowd the last Laymen's Day. During this year Love spoke in 17 different area churches.

Inovated several years ago by Principal Love, Winnfield High school students have a prayer meeting every school day from 8:00 to 8:15. This spiritual feature is open to students of all faiths. Average attendance is 150.

Consumers spent an all-time high of $10.4 billion last year for men's and boys' wear, including footwear. This represents a 3 per cent increase over 1959. Men's apparel shops reach their customers by advertising their wares in the pages of their local daily newspapers, where they habitually invest 80-89 per cent of their promotional budgets.

Contrast Seen In Discipline Of Professions

But, he adds, the emotional discipline is far more demanding in the ministry.

The associate pastor of Fairborn Methodist Church ought to know. He is a graduate of Cincinnati and Harvard law schools, and was teaching law himself and engaged in a profitable practice when he decided to enter United Theological Seminary.

"I realized that there is so much more to life than just the legal aspects," he says. "I had been making money off the problems of my clients, but these were not the problems that really needed solving."

"Besides," he says with a grin, "I look a lot more like a minister than a lawyer."

COOPERATIVE STUDY

Church Leaders Study New Plan

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Religious leaders and public school officials are quietly exploring a bold new plan for church-state cooperation in the education of America's children.

Supporters say it would settle the controversy over public aid to parochial schools, and at, the same time open the way for more adequate religious education of millions of children attending public schools.

And, they say, it would achieve both of these objectives without violating constitutional requirements for separation of church and state.

Here's how it would work:

Public schools would continue to offer a complete program of studies for all children who elect full-time attendance.

But they would also offer a "shared-time" arrangement, under which a child would take some of his courses in a church school, and others in a public school.

For example, boys and girls enrolled in Catholic elementary and high schools might go to public schools for instruction in such subjects as mathematics, physical education, industrial arts and home economics.

RELIGION CREDIT

Protestant and Jewish children, while taking most of their academic courses in public schools, would have the option of spending a substantial portion of each school day in a religious school. And they would receive full academic credit for any approved courses which they took there.

This would mean, to choose two illustrations at random, that a Jewish child would receive the credit for mastering Hebrew in a synagogue school that he gets for learning Spanish or French in a public school; and a Presbyterian youth could study the Bible or church history under professional teachers provided by his church during periods of the regular school day when he might otherwise be taking elective courses in a public school.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders have been exchanging views on the proposal for several months on an informal, private basis. A full-dress conference of religious leaders and public school officials, to consider its pros and cons, is now in the works.

Although no religious body or educational organization is yet committeed to it, the discussions indicate that it has powerful appeal for at least four differenct groups.

RELIGIOUS ILLITERACY

The original proponents were leaders of several major Protestant denominations who are deeply concerned about the religious illiteracy of vast numbers of American children. These leaders know that a child cannot learn much about his faith from one hectic hour a week at Sunday school.

They are not optimistic about the average parent's ability —or willingness — to do the job at home. And they see no constitutional way in which public schools can inculcate religious insights and values.

Protestant efforts to provide systematic religious courses outside of regular school hours or within the school day on the so-called "released-time" basis have not been outstandingly successful. These courses are by definition "extra - curricular activities" to public school children, and they suffer from the competition of a vigorously promoted school program.

These Protestant leaders like the "shared time" concept, first for the practical reason that it would allow more room foor systematic religious education within a child's normal curriculum, and second for the theological reeson that it recognizes the church as a full partner, by right and not by sufference, in the nurture of children.

LEADERS SYMPATHETIC

Catholic leaders have responded to the proposal with active and sympathetic interest. It falls considerably short of a direct public subsidy for Catholic schools, which many Catholics feel would be justified on the basis that these schools are doing a job for the state by educating one-eighth of America's children.

But Catholic educators recognize that any subsidy will be politically difficult if not impossible to obtain.

Jewish leaders, traditionally wary of any arrangement that divides children conspicuously into religious groupings, have been divided in their reaction to "shared time." Some are very skeptical of the whole idea. Others are attracted by the prospect of averting the dangerous church-state entanglement.

Public school officials tend to be appalled by the administrative difficulties which "shared time" would involve. But some of them see great merit in the plan. They believe it would help to unite Americans of all faiths behind measures to improve the public school system.

A SHREVEPORT layman, William H. Hamm Jr., wil be speaker today at 11 a.m. services at College Place Baptist Church on Sherouse Avenue, in observance of Layman's Day. He is a member of the Broadmoor Baptist Church of Shreveport.

Short Items On Activities In Religion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Grandfather can give a lot of advice to Floyd L. Stolzenburg, a Capital University student who plant to become clergyman. Grandfather is the Rev. Otto F. Stolzenburg, 71, who is retiring this year after 50 years in the ministry — 41 at Zion Lutheran Church in Columbus.

RETURNING

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The offeratory completed at Monroe United Presbyterian Church, David Heasley came down the aisle with the collection plate. He was headed for the church office, but 5-year-old Chris Weldon drew his own conclusions.

Young Chris, a wide-eyed participant in the morning worship service, exclaimed: "Oh, you're the man who takes the money to God."

FLOWER SIGN

CHEEKTOWAGA, N.Y. (AP) — Flowers growing on a lawn of the Cleveland Drive United Presbyeterian Church spell out the message, "God Gave His Son."

The design was created by Howard Calton, who says it is "sort of a missionary effort on my part. A lot of people who love flowers, don't have time for God."

BRUSH UP

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Many Methodist ministers in the Ohio area go back to school about the same time as the youngsters toward the end of summer.

A four - day pastors' school is conducted annually at Ohio Wesleyan University. The ministers take brush-up courses in preaching, church history, social ethics and other topcis.

CARE ENOUGH

PARMA, Ohio (AP) — Thirteen nuns are providing dedicated care at an unusual institution here which most patients never leave alive. It's the Holy Family Cancer Hospital-Home, which cares for penniless victims of incurable cancer regardless of religion or color.

"Most patients aren't morbid," says Sister M. Matthew, who directs the work of the Dominican Sisters of St. Rose of Lima at the home. "Many are incurable optimists. They talk about what they're going to do when they leave here, even as they're getting worse every day."

Contributions and memorial gifts finance the operation, and many volunteers assist the 13 nuns. Sister M. Matthew says: "It's become sort of a community project."

Area Educator Will Speak At Church Service

WINNFIELD (Special) — Eugene F. Love, principal of Winnfield School, will be guest speaker for this morning's Laymen's Day service, at 11:00 a.m. in Walter Baptist Church, Bossier City, of which the Rev. Stogner is pastor.

Love's topic is "What is Blocking Your View of Jesus Christ?" He spoke to a capacity crowd the last Laymen's Day. During this year Love spoke in 17 different area churches.

Inovated several years ago by Principal Love, Winnfield High school students have a prayer meeting every school day from 8:00 to 8:15. This spiritual feature is open to students of all faiths. Average attendance is 150.

Consumers spent an all - time high of $10.4 billion last year for men's and boys' wear, including footwear. This represents a 3 per cent increase over 1959. Men's apparel shops reach their customers by advertising their wares in the pages of their local daily newspapers, where they habitually invest 80-89 per cent of their promotional budgets.

EAST BERLIN CAPTIVE

Grandma Can Only Wave At Relatives

BERLIN (AP) — An elderly woman stood in the midst of the rubble, her wrists crossed in front of her in a gesture of helpless captivity. She stood in East Berlin.

Then, the grandmother raised her arms and waved them back and forth over her head.

"She means she sees no chance to escape but she says we shouldn't worry," her daughter explained. "She could have left two weeks ago—hundreds escaped here at this spot. Now it's too late. She wanted to stay because of her home. Now that's gone.

"Look there in front of her, that debris. That's all that is left of her house. She loved it so much. She took such care of her beautiful fruit trees and her garden."

Two days ago, bulldozers and swarms of bare-chested young Communist soldiers smashed the woman's home to the ground. They took the wooden beams from the room and laid them in a deep trench.

The trench is the first line of a death strip being built at spots along the Communist wall, which divides East and West Berlin.

Beyond the trench, is a 20-foot-wide open trench of sand, and beyond that four rows of barbed wire.

With grim determination to prevent escapes from the Communist regime, the Red soldiers ruthlessly have torn down 50 homes in the last few days in the three-quarter-mile-long area where the powerless mother stood.

The last houses were torn down Friday, leaving only a dusty, 100-yard-deep strip.

First, groups of soldiers clambered on the roofs and with demolition poles pried the tiles loose. Then they kicked the tiles away.

Bulldozers charged at the little three and four-room homes and, in a cloud of dust, the buildings collapsed.

Swarms of soldiers scrambled over the ruins and cleared the debris into trucks.

"It doesn't take them long, they are like ants, and many of those young soldiers don't know what they are doing," a West Berlin policeman said.

"The poor people who lived in those homes. One night the Eastern police came and told them they had to be out in two hours. The moving trucks simply came up and took out most of their belongings."

"Yesterday my mother could come within 20 yards of the barbed wire. Today they are holding her farther back. We probably won't see her at all tomorrow," the woman on the West said.

As she spoke, an old woman on the Kestern side wandered along the barbed wire, head down, muttering.

"Why do they do it? They are Germans too. Why do they do it?," shaking her old head and looking anxiously at the young Communist troops.

PARTNERS AGAIN

Crisis Tightens U.S.-British Ties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Relations between the United States and its European allies have undergone subtle changes in recent months, tending to restore Britain to her traditional position as America's closest partner on the other side of the Atlantic.

At the same time, relations between the United States on the one hand and France and — particularly — West Germany on the other have shown occasional signs of strain.

Measured against the vast area of common interests and common purposes among the allies, these shifts are — in the view of diplomatic observers here — not necessarily very significant. But they may be of some importance in East-West negotiations over Berlin.

U. S.-Britain relations reached their new closeness after a period of strain. During some weeks last summer, U.S. officials consistently dropped none-too-subtle hints that in their view the British government was "soft" on Berlin.

Asked at that time to define the U.S. position on Berlin, American officials said the United States was standing somewhere between West Germany and France on the one hand and Britain on the other—but closer to the two continental powers.

The turning point came during the Western discussions of the Soviet note of Aug. 3 in which Moscow declared its readiness to negotiate over Berlin but insisted that negotiations must have as their goal "the conclusion of a German peace treaty."

The four-power diplomatic steering committee in Washington drafted a reply indicating Western willingness to open negotiations.

But the Western answer was never dispatched. French President Charles de Gaulle informed the other Western powers that at this stage he would not approve any Western move indicating Western eagerness to negotiate. To the Soviet Union, De Gaulle argued, such a step would appear as sign of weakness.

Faced by De Gaulle's veto, the United States and Britain drew closer together. When the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany met in Washington last month, it became soon apparent, as regards contacts with Russia, that France had one policy, Britain and the United States another, and that West Germany floated unhappily in between.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville agreed reluctantly that Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home should open preliminary talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in New York. But Couve refused to participate in this effort and flew back to Paris.

Home, shortly thereafter, further cemented the newly-restored U. S. - British unanimity by making a speech in the U.N. General Assembly which drew high praise from both U. S. officials and the U.S. press.

TV Revamps 1946 Movie For Series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Still another successful motion picture is being parlayed into a television series — the 1946 box office hit "Margie."

Now another fresh-faced youngster, Cynthia Pepper, will caper through the part of an old-fashioned teen-ager in a segment of the 1920s that didn't roar.

The track record for movies-turned-TV series is mixed.

SOME MAKE GRADE

"Lassie" made the grade in a big way, "National Velvet" is prospering as have several others, including "The Third Man" and "Dobie Gillis."

There were bombs too, as evidenced by "Asphalt Jungle," "Five Fingers" and "My Friend Flicka."

Along with "Margie," revamped movies on the air this season are "Father of the Bride," "Dr. Kildare" and "Bus Stop."

More are being prepared for the 1962-63 season.

In the case of young Miss Pepper, 20th Century-Fox TV and the ABC network hope she will make as great an impact on audiences as did Miss Crain.

"I never saw the movie version," said Cynthia, a pretty little blonde with long pig tails and big blue eyes.

SEES GOOD INFLUENCE

"But I think our show will have a very good influence on teenagers. Margie is very different from today's high school kids. She has higher morals and leads a more wholesome life.

"Unfortunately too many of today's swinging teen-age girls won't watch the show. They'll be too busy running around with boys and drinking and smoking."

ON NATIONAL LEVEL

Campaign Costs Soar To Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everything is going up, including the high costs of winning, and losing, elections.

A study by Brookings Institution shows a record $25 million was spent at the national level on that exciting, narrow squeak 1960 election.

While figures on lesser campaigns—state, county, precinct—are almost impossible to come by, the estimate is that this nation poured out a staggering $175 million on its assorted politicking last year.

Brookings officials released the figures Saturday as an aftermath to President Kennedy's announcement of last week that he was naming a nine-man bipartisan commission to study campagin costs and see what can be done about them.

"I have long thought," the President said in choosing the commission, "that we must either provide a federal share in campaign costs, or reduce the costs of campaign services, or both."

Brookings, a nonprofit, private research organization, is publishing a book, "The Presidential Election and Transition 1960-1961," that is due out Oct. 31. The chapter on financing was written by Herbert C. Alexander, a political scientist and researcher.

His conclusion points up why Kennedy is worried, and why the worry is bipartisan.

"Spending by both parties," Alexander says, "increased dramatically in 1960."

In 1952 and 1956, he says, Republicans outspent the combined efforts of Democrats and organized labor, which normally backs Democratic candidates.

It was different in 1960. In direct expenditures, the Republicans put out $10.1 million, Democrats and labor $10.6 million.

Both parties had one thing in common: They spent all they had—and then some. The Republicans wound up with a $700,000 deficit, the Democrats were mired in a $3.8 million debt.

Diplomats Say Syria Anxious For U.S. Ties

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet officer credited with shooting down U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers was named Saturday as a delegate to the 22nd congress of the Soviet Communist party this month in Moscow.

Voronov was a major in a rocket unit when Powers' plane crashed near Sverdslovsk in May 1960.

The broadcast said his present job is "training new soldiers in the art of sharpshooting."

U.S. Troops Use In Laos Is Opposed

TOKYO (AP) — Cambodia's neutralist Prince Sihanouk warned Saturday that sending American or SEATO troops to Laos might provoke a Korean-type war in which the West would be "surely defeated" by the Chinese Communists.

But he said in his opinion sending U.S. troops to South Viet Nam would mean "less danger" of triggering massive Communist intervention and a major conflict in Southeast Asia.

"I think it would be possible for the United States to interfere militarily in South Viet Nam because North Viet Nam is interfering in South Viet Nam," the Cambodian chief of state told a news conference. "If the United States wants to send troops there, [illegible] is less danger than sending American troops [illegible] into Laos," he said.

"But I advised my American friends not to send troops to Laos, because you can be sure the Chinese would intervene too," said Sihanouk.

"And you know, they are very numerous. There would be another Korean War. The Americans would be surely defeated. There would be a serious conflict and we would be its victims."

High State Department sources in Washington disclosed Friday that the United States is considering sending troops to South Viet Nam, which is faced with increasingly dangerous operations by Communist guerrillas.

Sihanouk, here on an unofficial visit, placed most of the blame for that nation's troubles on President Ngo Dinh Diem. He called him a dictator with no popular support.

Sihanouk said he was "very pessimistic" about Laos and saw little chance for neutrality there.

He played a mediator's role when he proposed the international conference on Laos at Geneva and brought Laos' conservative, neutralist and pro-Communist princes together for a meeting this summer at Zurich. The three princes agreed to work toward a coalition government but have deadlocked on the details.

Sihanouk predicted a government, headed by neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma would be a first step toward communism in Laos.

Souvanna has the backing of the pro-Communists.

"The process of communization will come step by step like microbes in a body—like iancer," Sihanouk warned.

"In Laos," he said, "it is too late."

Laos Princes Disagree On Power Division

HIN HEUP, Laos (AP)—Representatives of the three Laotian princes disagreed Saturday on the [illegible] of their talks in this village on the edge of the [illegible] land—the division of power in a coalition government.

After discussing for more than [illegible] how the 16 seats in the proposed Cabinet should be [illegible] out, the three factions [illegible] separate statements.

The neutralists and pro-Communist Pathet Lao spokesmen [illegible] had agreed eight seats would go to neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, four to his pro-Communist half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, and four to Premier Boun Oum, a pro-Westerner.

The government faction took exception. It demanded that Souvanna Phouma's allocation be open to groups other than his own [illegible] Lao [illegible] a government [illegible] "For instance, Souvanna Phouma might have only four [illegible] those with him and use the other four to serve politicians who have not been directly involved in the recent war."

Man Recovers $5,000 After Messy Search

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Raymond E. Martin, 41, did better than find a needle in a haystack—he found his $5,000 in 10,000 pounds of garbage.

After battling flies and decayed [illegible], corn cobs and other garbage for two hours to recover his hardware store receipts, Martin explained how the money got to the incinerator.

The bank closed before Martin could make his Thursday deposit. So he brought the cash home in a brown paper bag.

Yesterday his wife placed the bag on top of a waste paper basket to get it momentarily out of the way. When garbage collectors approached, the maid, scooped up the basket and the brown sack, just in time for the pickup.

Mrs. Martin noticed the bag missing minutes later, was too frightened to call her husband, but drove to the store to advise him.

They rushed to the incinerator, explained their problem and the truck dumped its 10,000 pounds of garbage three feet high for the search.

There were only about 100 pounds of the stuff left to search when Martin found the bag. He passed out rewards for the sanitation department workers who helped him and said garbage men "are regular fellows."

NEARING MILLION MARK

PARIS (AP) — "Brigitte Bardot," a recording made in Brazil in Portuguese, is nearing the million sales mark in France, distributors report. The disc sung by Jorge Viega is hardly comprehensible to Frenchmen but many seem satisfied with occasional recognition of the name.

Soviet Press Publishes First A-Sub Picture

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press published for the first time Saturday a picture of what it claimed was one of a fleet of Soviet atomic submarines.

Premier Khrushchev has said in speeches that the Soviet Union has nuclear-powered underwater ships armed with missiles, but there has never been any direct mention of them in the press nor has any Westerner ever seen one.

They were expected to be on display at Soviet Navy Day last July but did not appear.

The picture shown in the newspaper Izvestia did not give away any secrets and could have been a picture of almost anything.

The newspaper story made no mention of missiles, but was devoted mostly to how safe the vessel was with shielded reactor and tremendous power not available from many other form of energy.

The sudden unexpected publicity for the nuclear submarine seemed intended as another display of Soviet armed might during the Berlin crisis and as a counter to America's Polaris fleet.

Town Receives Death Sentence

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) —The people of Yallourn did little else Saturday but discuss the death sentence passed on their town.

The State Electricity Commission announced that Yallourn, 90 miles east of Melbourne, population 4,500, was to be demolished.

The reason was 200 million tons of brown coal under the town which the commission wants to extract by open-cut methods.

The town's 1,100 houses are owned by the commission which rents them.

Hit-Run Death Driver Sought

d BATON ROUGE (AP) — State police Saturday searched for a motorist who hit and killed an 80-year-old man who had been thrown from an automobile in which he had been riding.

Police from troop "A" said James Smith of Gonzales was thrown from a car driven by Sulcer John Smith of Gonzales after their automobile had been struck when it pulled out of a street onto Highway 61.

Hike Record Try Is Due Across U.S.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Harry (The Hiker) Johnson is on his way again—this time headed for Charleston, S. C., and an assault on the cross-country hiking record.

Johnson, who hiked from Florence, on the Oregon coast, to New York City in 133 days earlier this year, hopes to walk from Charleston to Los Angeles in 59 days. This would break the record of 66 days set a couple of years ago by a pair of British army sergeants.

This time, Harry will sing as he walks. His faded grey raincoat bears the words, "With a song in my heart."

"I sing popular songs and classical," he said. "I'm no pro or anything, but I have had some training."

He hopes to earn enough with his singing along the way to buy a boat ticket to Europe, where he wants to make a hiking and singing tour.

Harry, 45, has been living with his brother in Salem, Ore., since returning from his last hike. He failed to get a hoped-for job in the Arabian oil fields as a result of that hike and returned to Salem in search of work.

Finding none, he's off again. He plans to hitchhike to Charleston and start his walk about the middle of this month.

"You have to get out and make yourself known in the world," Harry said Friday, just before leaving Eugene.

"Different people have different ways. This is the only way I know. I'm just trying to put myself forward a little."

Plans For Salt Dome Nuclear Blast Shelved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., has received notification from the Atomic Energy Commission it has shelved plans to set off an atomic explosion in a Mississippi salt dome.

The AEC Friday advised it will complete present exploratory drilling in the Tatum dome near Hattiesburg and has already finished such drilling in the Bruinsburg dome near Vicksburg.

The commission said the Mississippi domes were found suitable for testing if the $100 million project is resumed.

However, the commission said because of a "recent high priority requirements," possibly testing in Nevada or other areas, it will conduct no tests in the immediate future in Mississippi.

The commission had planned to touch off underground nuclear blasts in a salt dome to test nuclear detection devices and see whether they could pick up such explosions elsewhere. The state had cooperated on grounds such test blasts would spur nuclear industrialization in the state.

JFK Joins Family On Yacht Trip

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Kennedy rejoined his family Saturday for a weekend of rest and relaxation ashore and afloat on the presidential yacht.

The President was on the ground only a few minutes after his 52-minute flight from Washington, and then he was aboard the yacht Honey Fitz and off for an afternoon on the water.

Mrs. Kennedy waited for him aboard the boat.

The Kennedys' daughter, Caroline, couldn't wait—she was driven up from the pier in an automobile and wriggled her way through a group of naval officers.

The President was being greeted by an admiral when Caroline broke through the line and threw her arms around his knees, shouting, "Hi, Daddy." She wore pink overalls over a blue shirt.

The President hugged and kissed Caroline and then led her to an open car for the short drive to the waiting yacht.

As he sailed on the yacht the President was greeted by the crews of three Navy ships, the carrier Essex and submarines Corsair and Croaker.

Sailors manned the rails, lining the flight deck of the carrier, which displays on her gangplanks the ship's slogan "The oldest and the boldest."

The President also put in a phone call from the White House to Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin, who is in New York.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the President put in the call "to welcome him to the United States."

In New York, Brandt said the President congratulated him for his speech, in which he said the wall that divides Berlin must come down.

Brandt made the speech Friday in New York. He said he and the President had an exchange of views during their telephone talks and added he thought it "reassuring that the President was able to identify himself to some degree with the ideas I expressed yesterday."

Missing Civil War Papers Are Found

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The long-missing personal papers of Maj. Gen. Don Carlos Buell, a ranking Union commander in the Civil War, have turned up in Houston.

The Houston Post said in a copyright story Saturday that a scholar from Rice University found the bulk of the papers in a battered trunk inside a tool shed.

The collection contains letters to the bewhiskered general from Abraham Lincoln, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, Gen. George B. McClellan, Andrew Johnson and others.

There are hundreds of letters —both originals and copies — which Buell wrote in his scrathy script to his wife, his fellow generals, and his friends.

"As far as the western theater of the Civil War is concerned, this is the most important collection found in the last 10 or 20 years," said Dr. Frank Vandiver, a historian and author of several books on the Civil War.

Vandiver and other Rice officials negotiated with Buell's descendants for the purchase of rights to microfilm the papers and keep them on loan at Rice.

The collection also includes a 200-page transcript of Buell's hearing before an Army board of inquiry in 1862-63.

The board investigated Buell's leadership in the Union campaign against Confederate Gen. Braxton Bragg in Kentucky in 1862.

Although the board never made its findings public, the inquiry cast a shadow over Buell's long military career. After a year awaiting new orders, he retired from the Army.

The West Pointer earlier had fought in the Seminole War of 1841-42 and had been breveted for bravery at Monterey in the Mexican War.

The papers, in two caches, were in the hands of two Houston descendants of the general's family. The Buell family originally was from Ohio, but some of its members drifted to Texas.

Most of the papers were in the possession of Henry Lee Buell, an 80-year-old nephew of the general. He lives alone in a two-story house off South Post Oak on the southern fringe of Houston. Two of his nieces, Mrs. H. A. Tschumy and Mrs. James M. Andrews, first disclosed the existence of the papers during telephone calls to Vandiver in May 1960.

Mrs. Tschumy had the second sizable collection of papers. They were passed along to her by her mother, Flora Buell Powers.

Mrs. Andrews lives near and cares for Henry Lee Buell.

"Unvle had no particular interest in seeing the papers made public," Mrs. Tschumy said. "He treasured them and he's old and just likes to be left alone."

N.Y. Orchestra Votes To End Concert Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra voted Saturday to end a week-long strike. They will resume work Monday.

By a 56-41 vote the members agreed to accept a three-year contract, which the musicians had rejected last week despite the recommendation of the executive board of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians.

The strike silenced the orchestra, which had just opened its 1961-1962 season.

A union spokesman said the vote to accept management's offer was a "reluctant one" due in part to "management's adamant attitude" in refusing to mediate or discuss contract terms further.

The management offer accepted on the second vote was a three-year contract with guaranteed seasons of increasing length, a $10 increase in the present $180 minimum salary rate with $10 more in 1963-64, and other benefits.

Management announced that the concert series would resume with the regularly scheduled concert Thursday evening. Leonard Bernstein will conduct.

Cotton Futures Show Increase As Week Ends

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures firmed up this week and closed 60 cents to $1.95 a bale higher than the closing prices of a week before.

The best gain was in distant March deliveries.

The strength of the market reflected mill price fixing, short covering and trade and commission house demand. These were influenced by a pickup in loan entries, weather and expectations of a moderate decrease in the forthcoming crop forecast.

Offerings resulted from scattered liquidation and hedge selling. Much in evidence was a tendency by spot houses to transfer to the more distant positions.

The possibility of a lower crop forecast was indicated by a report from a leading stock house placing output as of Oct. 1 at 14,076,000 bales. One month ago, a crop reporting board estimated the crop would be 14,262,000 bales.

However, exports for the season through Oct. 3 remained far ahead of last season. Exports then totaled only 321,000. This year 934,000 bales have been exported.

U.S. Volunteer Exile Leaves For Denmark

HOUSTON, Tex., (AP)—Charles Hugh Dillon voluntarily left the United States Saturday and flew to Denmark for a self-imposed exile.

Dillon, 57, son of a Boston family, first picked New Zealand as the country he wanted to live in but visa troubles canceled his scheduled departure Tuesday. New Zealand officials indicated he might not be allowed to enter.

Robert E. Nesmith, a Houston engineer, paid his way, making good an offer of a one-way ticket last year to anyone who would rather live in a socialistic country than in the United States. Nesmith asked that the person accepting his offer renounce his U.S. citizenship and never return.

Dillon a free-lance writer, said he will renounce his U.S. citizenship when he arrives in Denmark, the Houston Chronicle said.

"Next to New Zealand, I regard the Danish state as that which best resembles my conception of a Socialist nation, and, too, I have friends there who will help me," Dillon said.

"I leave with no bitterness and no regrets," Dillon said before boarding the plane for Copenhagen.

India Defense Minister Has Brain Surgery

NEW YORK (AP)—Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon was reported resting comfortably in Montefiore Hospital Saturday after undergoing surgery for removal of a blood clot on the brain.

Dr. Leon Davidoff, a brain surgeon, said the one-hour operation was successful and "a small collection of blood was found and removed from the brain."

A hospital spokesman described the Indian statesman's condition as "satisfactory" and said Menon probably would be permitted to get on his feet Sunday.

Menon is expected to remain in the hospital for about 10 days.

Sources close to the Indian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly said Dr. A. Baliga, Bombay surgeon and close friend of Menon, was present during the operation.

Shortly after the morning surgery, Menon recovered from anesthesia and sipped some tea.

Menon is chairman of India's delegation to the U. N. General Assembly.

Negro Students Stage Boycott

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)— About 400 students at Jackson State College for Negroes boycotted classes Friday, a student leader said Saturday.

Walter Williams, last year's student government president, said the students were protesting an order by school president Jacob Reddix which dissolved the student government association. Williams said the order was given to cut down organized resistance to racial segregation.

Williams said the "dissatisfied" students met at the school stadium Friday and paraded around the campus.

Reddix said he dissolved the student government association because its actions had "embarrassed" the school. He said the dispute had nothing to do with race. "I just had to put my foot down," he said.

Membership Doubles In Local SLTA

Membership of Northeast State's T. O. Brown chapter of the Student Louisiana Teachers Association already has more than doubled its figures of last year, Sandra Johnson, organization president of Fairbanks, announced.

The SLTA opened fall activities with an informal reception in the newly-constructed addition of T. O. Brown Hall, occupied by the Division of Education.

Approximately 175 persons affiliated with the chapter or interested in its projects attended the affair, planned by the executive committee as entertainment for the faculty and students in the Division of Education.

"Let's get to know each other better" was carried out in the informality of the event.

Receiving guests with the president of SLTA were Mrs. Ruby Ball, faculty adviser; Miss Peggy Busbice, treasurer; and Miss Niki Poulos, reporter.

During the refreshment hour, George Owen sang a medley of folk songs which were taught to him by his father and grandfather. Background music also was used throughout the afternoon hours of entertainment.

The tea table, centered with a gold container of flowers in autumn shades, held cold drinks and trays of confections. Serving were the SLTA president's mother, Mrs. E. H. Johnson, Miss Mary Jane Young, Miss Millie Wendorf and Miss Leona Watson. They were assisted by Miss Sarah Jordan, secretary of the organization.

Navigators' Strike Lasts Few Minutes

NEW YORK (AP) — Trans World Airlines navigators struck Saturday but agreed to return to work a few minutes later after the company agreed to a crew change. TWA blamed the incident on a misunderstanding.

In Chicago, the Air Line Pilots Association served notice that the union is withdrawing from mediation in a dispute with TWA affecting 1,500 pilots. The ALPA said it expected to set a strike date soon.

The dispute here stemmed from TWA's attempt to replace navigators on overseas flights with an electronic navigational aid. The union contends the change will replace 66 navigators with copilots who are trained to operate the new equipment.

The trouble reportedly started when the navigator assigned to flight 802 to Paris protested that the flight's first officer—copilot—was not qualified to handle the new equipment.

The airlines settled the matter by calling a copilot who already had been checked out on the new equipment. The flight left only 30 minutes after its scheduled 9:30 A.M. takeoff time. The navigator went along, too.

Local 520 of the Transport Workers Union contended that the attempt to use a copilot not checked out on the new equipment violated an earlier agreement.

This provided that copilots already checked out on the device could continue to use it but that no new men could be trained until the management and the union settle the disagreement.

A presidential emergency board was appointed earlier in the week to study the dispute. This procedure normally bars a strike for 30 days.

A strike set for midnight Oct. 4 was called off at the last minute after appointment of the board.

In Chicago, Clarence N. Sayen, president of the ALPA, gave notice of the union's intention to withdraw from mediation in a telegram to the National Railway Mediation Board. He said negotiations which began 14 months ago are stalled.

The pilots union is impatient with TWA's insistence that the pilots' dispute be settled only after a report by a presidential commission appointed to study the crew composition situation. The union contends the work of the commission has no bearing on contract talks.

Chief issues, the pilots said, are pension and working conditions such as layover time and turnaround rules.

Diplomats Say Syria Anxious For U.S. Ties

Moscow radio said Lt. Col Mikhail R. Voronov was unanimously elected by "Communist soldiers."

The broadcast said his present job is "training new soldiers in the art of sharpshooting."

U.S. Troops Use In Laos Is Opposed

TOKYO (AP) — Cambodi's neutralist Prince Sihanouk warned Saturday that sending American or SEATO troops to Laos might provoke a Korean-type war in which the West would be "surely defeated" by the Chinese Communists.

But he said in his opinion sending U.S. troops to South Viet Nam would mean "less danger" of triggering massive Communist intervention and a major conflict in Southeast Asia.

"I think it would be possible for the United States to interfere militarily in South Viet Nam because North Viet Nam is interfering in South Viet Nam," the Cambodian chief of state told a news conference. "If the United States wants to send troops there, in my opinion there is less danger than sending American troops or SEATO troops into Laos," he said.

SEATO is the Western-sponsored eight-nation Southeast Asian Treaty Organization.

"But I advised my American friends not to send troops to Laos, because you can be sure the Chinese would intervene too," said Sihanouk.

"And you know, they are very numerous. There would be another Korean War. The Americans would be surely defeated. There would be a serious conflict and we would be its victims."

(High State Department sources in Washington disclosed Friday that the United States is considering sending troops to South Viet Nam, which is faced with increasingly dangerous operations by Communist guerrillas.

Sihanouk, here on an unofficial visit, placed most of the blame for that nation's troubles on President Ngo Dinh Diem. He called him a dictator with no popular support.

Sihanouk said he was "very pessimistic" about Laos and saw little chance for neutrality there.

He played a mediator's role when he proposed the international conference on Laos at Geneva and brought Laos' conservative, neutralist and pro-Communist princes together for a meeting this summer at Zurich. The three princes agreed to work toward a coalition government but have deadlocked on the details.

Sihanouk predicted a government, headed by neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma would be a first step toward communism in Laos.

Souvanna has the backing of the pro-Communists.

"The process of communization will come step by step like microbes in a body—like iancer," Sihanouk warned.

"In Laos," he said, "it is too late."

Laos Princes Disagree On Power Division

HIN HEUP, Laos (AP)—Representatives of the three Laotian princes disagreed Saturday on the main issue of their talks in this village on the edge of the nation's no-man's land—the division of power in a coalition government.

After discussing for more than five hours how the 16 seats in the proposed Cabinet should be parceled out, the three factions issued separate statements.

The neutralists and pro-Communist Pathet Lao spokesmen claimed it had agreed eight seats would go to neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, four to his pro-Communist half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, and four to Premier Boun Oum, a pro-Westerner.

The government faction took exception. It demanded that Souvanna Phouma's allocation be open to groups other than his own.

"We want to see a really neutral Laos," said a government spokesman. "For that Souvanna Phouma must have only four seats for those with him and use the other four to serve politicians who have not been directly involved in the recent war."

Man Recovers $5,000 After Messy Search

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) —Raymond E. Martin, 41, did better than find a needle in a haystack —he found his $5,000 in 10,000 pounds of garbage.

After battling flies and decayed tomato, dog food, dried oranges, corn cobs and other garbage for two hours to recover his hardware store receipts, Martin explained how the money got to the incinerator.

The bank closed before Martin could make his Thursday deposit. So he brought the cash home in a brown paper bag.

Yesterday his wife placed the bag on top of a waste paper basket to get it momentarily out of the way. When garbage collectors approached, the maid, scooped up the basket and the brown sack, just in time for the pickup.

Mrs. Martin noticed the bag missing minutes later, was too frightened to call her husband, but drove to the store to advise him.

They rushed to the incinerator, explained their problem and the truck dumped its 10,000 pounds of garbage three feet high for the search.

There were only about 100 pounds of the stuff left to search when Martin found the bag. He passed out rewards for the sanitation department workers who helped him and said garbage men "are regular fellows."

NEARING MILLION MARK

PARIS (AP) — "Brigitte Bardot," a recording made in Brazil in Portuguese, is nearing the million sales mark in France, distributors report. The disc sung by Jorge Viega is hardly comprehensible to Frenchmen but many seem satisfied with occasional recognition of the name.

Soviet Press Publishes First A-Sub Picture

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press published for the first time Saturday a picture of what it claimed was one of a fleet of Soviet atomic submarines.

Premier Khrushchev has said in speeches that the Soviet Union has nuclear-powered underwater ships armed with missiles, but there has never been any direct mention of them in the press nor has any Westerner ever seen one.

They were expected to be on display at Soviet Navy Day last July but did not appear.

The picture shown in the newspaper Izvestia did not give away any secrets and could have been a picture of almost anything.

The newspaper story made no mention of missiles, but was devoted mostly to how safe the vessel was with shielded reactor and tremendous power not available fro many other form of energy.

The sudden unexpected publicity for the nuclear submarine seemed intended as another display of Soviet armed might during the Berlin crisis and as a counter to America's Polaris fleet.

Town Receives Death Sentence

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) —The people of Yallourn did little else Saturday but discuss the death sentence passed on their town.

The State Electricity Commission announced that Yallourn, 90 miles east of Melbourne, population 4,500, was to be demolished.

The reason was 200 million tons of brown coal under the town which the commission wants to extract by open-cut methods.

The town's 1,100 houses are owned by the commission which rents them.

Hit-Run Death Driver Sought

BATON ROUGE (AP) — State police Saturday searched for a motorist who hit and killed an 80-year-old man who had been thrown from an automobile in which he had been riding.

Police from troop "A" said James Smith of Gonzales was thrown from a car driven by Sulcer John Smith of Gonzales after their automobile had been struck when it pulled out of a street onto Highway 61.

Police said a passing motorist struck Smith and then sped away. Smith died instantly.

Hike Record Try Is Due Across U.S.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Harry (The Hiker) Johnson is on his way again—this time headed for Charleston, S. C., and an assault on the cross-country hiking record.

Johnson, who hiked from Florence, on the Oregon coast, to New York City in 133 days earlier this year, hopes to walk from Charleston to Los Angeles in 59 days. This would break the record of 66 days set a couple of years ago by a pair of British army sergeants.

This time, Harry will sing as he walks. His faded grey raincoat bears the words, "With a song in my heart."

"I sing popular songs and classical," he said. "I'm no pro or anything, but I have had some training."

He hopes to earn enough with his singing along the way to buy a boat ticket to Europe, where he wants to make a hiking and singing tour.

Harry, 45, has been living with his brother in Salem, Ore., since returning from his last hike. He failed to get a hoped-for job in the Arabian oil fields as a result of that hike and returned to Salem in search of work.

Finding none, he's off again. He plans to hitchhike to Charleston and start his walk about the middle of this month.

"You have to get out and make yourself known in the world," Harry said Friday, just before leaving Eugene.

"Different people have different ways. This is the only way I know. I'm just trying to put myself forward a little."

Plans For Salt Dome Nuclear Blast Shelved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., has received notification from the Atomic Energy Commission it has shelved plans to set off an atomic explosion in a Mississippi salt dome.

The AEC Friday advised it will complete present exploratory drilling in the Tatum dome near Hattiesburg and has already finished such drilling in the Bruinsburg dome near Vicksburg.

The commission said the Mississippi domes were found suitable for testing if the $100 million project is resumed.

However, the commission said because of a "recent high priority requirements," possibly testing in Nevada or other areas, it will conduct no tests in the immediate future in Mississippi.

The commission had planned to touch off underground nuclear blasts in a salt dome to test nuclear detection devices and see whether they could pick up such explosions elsewhere. The state had cooperated on grounds such test blasts would spur nuclear industrialization in the state.

JFK Joins Family On Yacht Trip

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Kennedy rejoined his family Saturday for a weekend of rest and relaxation ashore and afloat on the presidential yacht.

The President was on the ground only a few minutes after his 52-minute flight from Washington, and then he was aboard the yacht Honey Fitz and off for an afternoon on the water.

Mrs. Kennedy waited for him aboard the boat.

The Kennedys' daughter, Caroline, couldn't wait—she was driven up from the pier in an automobile and wriggled her way through a group of naval officers.

The President was being greeted by an admiral when Caroline broke through the line and threw her arms around his knees, shouting, "Hi, Daddy." She wore pink overalls over a blue shirt.

The President hugged and kissed Caroline and then led her to an open car for the short drive to the waiting yacht.

As he sailed on the yacht the President was greeted by the crews of three Navy ships, the carrier Essex and submarines Corsair and Croaker.

Sailors manned the rails, lining the flight deck of the carrier, which displays on her gangplanks the ship's slogan "The oldest and the boldest."

The President also put in a phone call from the White House to Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin, who is in New York.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the President put in the call "to welcome him to the United States."

In New York, Brandt said the President congratulated him for his speech, in which he said the wall that divides Berlin must come down.

Brandt made the speech Friday in New York. He said he and the President had an exchange of views during their telephone talks and added he thought it "reassuring that the President was able to identify himself to some degree with the ideas I expressed yesterday."

Missing Civil War Papers Are Found

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The long-missing personal papers of Maj. Gen. Don Carlos Buell, a ranking Union commander in the Civil War, have turned up in Houston.

The Houston Post said in a copyright story Saturday that a scholar from Rice University found the bulk of the papers in a battered trunk inside a tool shed.

The collection contains letters to the bewhiskered general from Abraham Lincoln, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, Gen. George B. McClellan, Andrew Johnson and others.

There are hundreds of letters —both originals and copies — which Buell wrote in his scrathy script to his wife, his fellow generals, and his friends.

"As far as the western theater of the Civil War is concerned, this is the most important collection found in the last 10 or 20 years," said Dr. Frank Vandiver, a historian and author of several books on the Civil War.

Vandiver and other Rice officials negotiated with Buell's descendants for the purchase of rights to microfilm the papers and keep them on loan at Rice.

The collection also includes a 200-page transcript of Buell's hearing before an Army board of inquiry in 1862-63.

The board investigated Buell's leadership in the Union campaign against Confederate Gen. Braxton Bragg in Kentucky in 1862.

Although the board never made its findings public, the inquiry cast a shadow over Buell's long military career. After a year awaiting new orders, he retired from the Army.

The West Pointer earlier had fought in the Seminole War of 1841-42 and had been breveted for bravery at Monterey in the Mexican War.

The papers, in two caches, were in the hands of two Houston descendants of the general's family. The Buell family originally was from Ohio, but some of its members drifted to Texas.

Most of the papers were in the possession of Henry Lee Buell, an 80-year-old nephew of the general. He lives alone in a two-story house off South Post Oak on the southern fringe of Houston. Two of his nieces, Mrs. H. A. Tschumy and Mrs. James M. Andrews, first disclosed the existence of the papers during telephone calls to Vandiver in May 1960.

Mrs. Tschumy had the second sizable collection of papers. They were passed along to her by her mother, Flora Buell Powers.

Mrs. Andrews lives near and cares for Henry Lee Buell.

"Unvle had no particular interest in seeing the papers made public," Mrs. Tschumy said. "He treasured them and he's old and just likes to be left alone."

N.Y. Orchestra Votes To End Concert Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra voted Saturday to end a week-long strike. They will resume work Monday.

By a 56-41 vote the members agreed to accept a three-year contract, which the musicians had rejected last week despite the recommendation of the executive board of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians.

The strike silenced the orchestra, which had just opened its 1961-1962 season.

A union spokesman said the vote to accept management's offer was a "reluctant one" due in part to "management's adamant attitude" in refusing to mediate or discuss contract terms further.

The management offer accepted on the second vote was a three-year contract with guaranteed seasons of increasing length, a $10 increase in the present $180 minimum salary rate with $10 more in 1963-64, and other benefits.

Management announced that the concert series would resume with the regularly scheduled concert Thursday evening. Leonard Bernstein will conduct.

Brandt's Wife Has Third Son

Brandt's secretary said it was a big boy and that the Norwegian-born mother was doing well.

Brandt met his attractive second wife while in wartime exile. They already have two sons, Peter, 13, and Lars, 10. Brandt also has a daughter by his first marriage.

Cotton Futures Show Increase As Week Ends

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures firmed up this week and closed 60 cents to $1.95 a bale higher than the closing prices of a week before.

The best gain was in distant March deliveries.

The strength of the market reflected mill price fixing, short covering and trade and commission house demand. These were influenced by a pickup in loan entries, weather and expectations of a moderate decrease in the forthcoming crop forecast.

Offerings resulted from scattered liquidation and hedge selling. Much in evidence was a tendency by spot houses to transfer to the more distant positions.

The possibility of a lower crop forecast was indicated by a report from a leading stock house placing output as of Oct. 1 at 14,076,000 bales. One month ago, a crop reporting board estimated the crop would be 14,262,000 bales.

However, exports for the season through Oct. 3 remained far ahead of last season. Exports then totaled only 321,000. This year 934,000 bales have been exported.

U.S. Volunteer Exile Leaves For Denmark

Dillon, 57, son of a Boston family, first picked New Zealand as the country he wanted to live in but visa troubles canceled his scheduled departure Tuesday. New Zealand officials indicated he might not be allowed to enter.

Robert E. Nesmith, a Houston engineer, paid his way, making good an offer of a one-way ticket last year to anyone who would rather live in a socialistic country than in the United States Nesmith asked that the person accepting his offer renounce his U.S. citizenship and never return.

Dillon a free-lance writer, said he will renounce his U.S. citizenship when he arrives in Denmark, the Houston Chronicle said.

"Next to New Zealand, I regard the Danish state as that which best resembles my conception of a Socialist nation, and, too, I have friends there who will help me," Dillon said.

"I leave with no bitterness and no regrets," Dillon said before boarding the plane for Copenhagen.

India Defense Minister Has Brain Surgery

NEW YORK (AP)—Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon was reported resting comfortably in Montefiore Hospital Saturday after undergoing surgery for removal of a blood clot on the brain.

Dr. Leon Davidoff, a brain surgeon, said the one-hour operation was successful and "a small collection of blood was found and removed from the brain."

A hospital spokesman described the Indian statesman's condition as "satisfactory" and said Menon probably would be permitted to get on his feet Sunday.

Menon is expected to remain in the hospital for about 10 days.

Sources close to the Indian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly said Dr. A. Baliga, Bombay surgeon and close friend of Menon, was present during the operation.

Shortly after the morning surgery, Menon recovered from anesthesia and sipped some tea.

Menon is chairman of India's delegation to the U. N. General Assembly.

Negro Students Stage Boycott

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)— About 400 students at Jackson State College for Negroes boycotted classes Friday, a student leader said Saturday.

Walter Williams, last year's student government president, said the students were protesting an order by school president Jacob Reddix which dissolved the student government association. Williams said the order was given to cut down organized resistance to racial segregation.

Williams said the "dissatisfied" students met at the school stadium Friday and paraded around the campus.

Reddix said he dissolved the student government association because its actions had "embarrassed" the school. He said the dispute had nothing to do with race. "I just had to put my foot down," he said.

Unique Trust Agreement Is Made Public

By ROBERT PAGE

DETROIT (UPI) — A unique trust agreement established by the late Edward MacCrone, a Detroit investment specialist, and based on confidence in American business and the investment savvy of the trustees was made public Saturday.

The trust is based on the theory that if the principal of the trust is invested in business and continuously reinvested along with its earnings wisely for a hundred years, a substantial amount of money can be accumulated.

The fund may multiply 500 times by the year 2061. MacCrone believed.

MacCrone created the trust fund to consist of a substantial portion of his estate. But he wants the money to accumulate for 100 years before it is distributed to nine educational cultural and charitable institutions.

The principal is still an unknown quantity because MacCrone's estate has not been inventoried. Just the same, the trustees believe, MacCrone's beneficiaries can expect a "substantial" gift from the trust in 2061.

The trust is to be administered by the Detroit Bank and Trust Co. At the end of the 100 years, the total amount accumulated is to be divided into ten equal parts and distributed in the following manner:

Two shares will go to Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis. One share each will go to the Protestant Children's Home of Detroit, the Detroit Museum of Art Founders Society, the Detroit area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the Detroit Library Commission, the trustees of Princeton University, Princeton, N.J., the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., Boston, Mass., the trustees of the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., and to a charitable organization to be designated by a special "board of review" set up under the terms of the trust.

MacCrone, in a letter to the trustees before his death, pointed out that the money — continually invested in the "substantial concerns" of America — should multiply 500 times by the end of 100 years, "at a conservative estimate."

A spokesman for the trustees, B. James Theodoroff, a vice president of the bank, said that the trust gave the bank virtually complete control over the investment of the principal fund and its accumulation of profits.

MacCrone was known around Detroit as a "rugged individualist" in the truest sense. He was born in Duluth, Minn., in 1892 but came to Detroit in his teens and began an investment career.

After several years with the H. W. Noble Co., MacCrone formed his own firm of E. E. MacCrone & Co. and became one of the youngest members of the New York Stock Exchange.

He was one of the original partners of Merrill Lynch and during this association he participated in the underwriting of many major stock issues, including the original stock of the S. S. Kresge Co.

Anticancer Drugs Eyed For Rayburn

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)— House Speaker Sam Rayburn's doctors disclosed Saturday they may try to slow Rayburn's widespread cancer with new experimental drugs.

Rayburn has been a congressman and speaker longer than any other man in history.

Rest, transfusions and drugs—chiefly cortisone—increased the 79-year-old Rayburn's strength so greatly Saturday that he smiled, sat up and dangled his feet over the edge of his bed.

He ate a small but solid breakfast—his first meal-by-mouth except for liquids in days—and ordered steak for lunch.

But his general condition remained the same: He has a cancer, probably in his pancreas, that has colonized malignant tumors throughout at least half his body.

His blood is saturated with cancer cells. Cancer such as his has never been known to have been cured. Doctors think the remainder of his life may be measured in days.

Rayburn is in Baylor University Medical Center. Dr. Ralph Tompsett, director of internal medicine at Baylor, and one of four consulting physicians in the Rayburn case, disclosed Saturday that Rayburn may be given experimental drugs.

"We are considering administering in a day or two new drugs, some of which are labeled experimental by the Food and Drug Administration," Dr. Tompsett said.

"They are called 'chemo-therapeutic' drugs, and, as best I can describe them, have an anti-tumor effect."

He indicated the best he and his colleagues hope for is to slow the progress of the tumors and prolong Rayburn's life. Dr. Tompsett said Friday there was no record of cancer such as Rayburn's ever being cured. It is too far advanced to operate.

The U. S. has about 9 million golfers on the links, with almost half of them playing 15 or more rounds a season. In 1960, they spent more than $86 million for equipment. To reach this lucrative market, sporting goods stores invest approximately 85 per cent of their advertising budgets in their local daily newspapers.

DO THIS: Hang the bread on the wire inside the jar, as shown, or simply place it on a dish. Put water in the jar or dish to keep the bread moist. The jar may be covered with foil to keep the moisture in

WHAT HAPPENS: Fungus spores, including those that produce bread mold are always in the air. They fall on the bread, and when conditions are right, they grow into mold. It may take several days for a good covering of mold to appear.

The mold will be in several colors. A blue-green kind likely to appear is penicillium, a member of the genus from which penicillin is extracted. Examine some of the mold plants under a microscope or magnifying glass if one is available.

BY U.N. ASSEMBLY

Canada To Urge Radiation Probe

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —Canada is working on a resolution that would have the U. N. General Assembly call for an intensified study of radioactive fallout in the light of the new Soviet open-air tests of nuclear weapons.

Canadian sources, disclosing this Saturday, said their delegation and others probably would introduce the resolution next Thursday or Friday in the assembly's Special Political Committee.

On Canada's motion, that committee Friday put the fallout question at the top of its agenda in the form of a progress report from the 15-nation U. N. Scientific Committee on the effects of atomic radiation.

Shintaro Fukushima of Japan, of the Special Political Committee, indicated in an interview that he wished the Scientific Committee would hurry up its second comprehensive report, scheduled for next year.

"The Japanese people are not going to be satisifed with that," said Fukushima, a Tokyo newspaper publisher. "That is too late. Fallout danger is growing now.

"While the atomic bomb is the danger we dread, fallout is doing actual damage right now. It may not be killing anybody, but it is gradually accumulating and we must know more about it."

He said he did not know about Canada's proposal but Japan would support or cosponsor it if it was in line with her desire to have the real meaning and danger of fallout measured by some organization like the United Nations.

The Soviet Union resumed open-air nuclear tests and the United States underground nuclear tests last month while the Scientific Committee was drafting its progress report here. The report, issued Sept. 21, said the new testing "increases the urgency for intensification of relevant scientific studies."

The Canadian informants said the resolution would seek to beef up studies of fallout patterns now being carried on by the United Nations, specialized agencies and governments.

They said an early report on fallout since the resumption of tests would be only one of the things it would call for.

"What we're aiming at," said one source, "is to intensify the very valuable work that the committee is already doing, and to seek ways of increasing man's knowledge about this important subject, and some way to put a stop to fallout."

Canadian Foreign Secretary Howard Green stressed this point when he spoke Tuesday in the General Assembly's policy debate.

"We know that radiation presents a hazard to human health," he said, "and the more we learn about the extent of its consequences, the more disturbed we become."

He declared that the assembly "must insist that there be no further testing of nuclear weapons" —hinting perhaps that a proposal to that effect would be put before the assembly's main Political Committee, which will debate test suspension.

In sufficient quantities, radioactive fallout products can cause bone and blood cancer in living human beings and monstrosities in their descendants. In its first comprehensive report in 1958, the Scientific Committee concluded that "even the smallest amounts of radiation" were liable to cause deleterious effects.

Adolescents Riot After Grid Contest

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP)— Opening of the high school football season Friday night triggered a teen-age riot which embroiled police and between 500 and 1,000 adolescents early Saturday.

When the battling was finally finished, police from every department in the area had rounded up 88 boys—54 of them under 18 years of age. Those over 18 were booked for failing to disperse and the younger rioters were turned over to their parents.

Nobody was hurt seriously.

The fighting started at a drive-in restaurant and, like a lit chain of firecrackers, spread to other restaurants.

Alhambra police quickly broadcast for help to nine neighboring law agencies.

Roadblocks were set up and the drive-in restaurant closed by police. The youths were ordered to disperse over a broadcasting system, but the orders were not heeded, police said.

"It was spontaneous," an officer said. "We had hundreds of kids fighting half a dozen cops before help could arrive."

Officers John Seney and Joe DeMatteo said the riots broke out about midnight—after Alhambra High School had lost the football opener to Monrovia High, 33-9.

"The city isn't going to stand for any more of this," said City Councilman Dan Bruno. "The city has treated teen-agers fair and square but you can only take so much."

Bruno said the city two months ago passed an ordinance prohibiting assembly more than three persons on a city street. It was passed, he said, "to avoid what happened tonight."

Unique Trust Agreement Is Made Public

By ROBERT PAGE

DETROIT (UPI) — A unique trust agreement established by the late Edward MacCrone, a Detroit investment specialist, and based on confidence in American business and the investment savvy of the trustees was made public Saturday.

The trust is based on the theory that if the principal of the trust is invested in business and continuously reinvested along with its earnings wisely for a hundred years, a substantial amount of money can be accumulated.

The fund may multiply 500 times by the year 2061. MacCrone believed.

MacCrone created the trust fund to consist of a substantial portion of his estate. But he wants the money to accumulate for 100 years before it is distributed to nine educational cultural and charitable institutions.

The principal is still an unknown quantity because MacCrone's estate has not been inventoried. Just the same, the trustees believe, MacCrone's beneficiaries can expect a "substantial" gift from the trust in 2061.

The trust is to be administered by the Detroit Bank and Trust Co. At the end of the 100 years, the total amount accumulated is to be divided into ten equal parts and distributed in the following manner:

Two shares will go to Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis. One share each will go to the Protestant Children's Home of Detroit, the Detroit Museum of Art Founders Society, the Detroit area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the Detroit Library Commission, the trustees of Princeton University, Princeton, N.J., the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., Boston, Mass., the trustees of the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., and to a charitable organization to be designated by a special "board of review" set up under the terms of the trust.

MacCrone, in a letter to the trustees before his death, pointed out that the money — continually invested in the "substantial concerns" of America — should multiply 500 times by the end of 100 years, "at a conservative estimate."

A spokesman for the trustees, B. James Theodoroff, a vice president of the bank, said that the trust gave the bank virtually complete control over the investment of the principal fund and its accumulation of profits.

MacCrone was known around Detroit as a "rugged individualist" in the truest sense. He was born in Duluth, Minn., in 1892 but came to Detroit in his teens and began an investment career.

After several years with the H. W. Noble Co., MacCrone formed his own firm of E. E. MacCrone & Co. and became one of the youngest members of the New York Stock Exchange.

He was one of the original partners of Merrill Lynch and during this association he participated in the underwriting of many major stock issues, including the original stock of the S. S. Kresge Co.

Anticancer Drugs Eyed For Rayburn

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)— House Speaker Sam Rayburn's doctors disclosed Saturday they may try to slow Rayburn's widespread cancer with new experimental drugs.

Rayburn has been a congressman and speaker longer than any other man in history.

Rest, transfusions and drugs—chiefly cortisone—increased the 79-year-old Rayburn's strength so greatly Saturday that he smiled, sat up and dangled his feet over the edge of his bed.

He ate a small but solid breakfast—his first meal-by-mouth except for liquids in days—and ordered steak for lunch.

But his general condition remained the same: He has a cancer, probably in his pancreas, that has colonized malignant tumors throughout at least half his body.

His blood is saturated with cancer cells. Cancer such as his has never been known to have been cured. Doctors think the remainder of his life may be measured in days.

Rayburn is in Baylor University Medical Center. Dr. Ralph Tompsett, director of internal medicine at Baylor, and one of four consulting physicians in the Rayburn case, disclosed Saturday that Rayburn may be given experimental drugs.

"We are considering administering in a day or two new drugs, some of which are labeled experimental by the Food and Drug Administration," Dr. Tompsett said.

"They are called 'chemo-therapeutic' drugs, and, as best I can describe them, have an anti-tumor effect."

He indicated the best he and his colleagues hope for is to slow the progress of the tumors and prolong Rayburn's life. Dr. Tompsett said Friday there was no record of cancer such as Rayburn's ever being cured. It is too far advanced to operate.

The U. S. has about 9 million golfers on the links, with almost half of them playing 15 or more rounds a season. In 1960, they spent more than $86 million for equipment. To reach this lucrative market, sporting goods stores invest approximately 85 per cent of their advertising budgets in their local daily newspapers.

Science For You

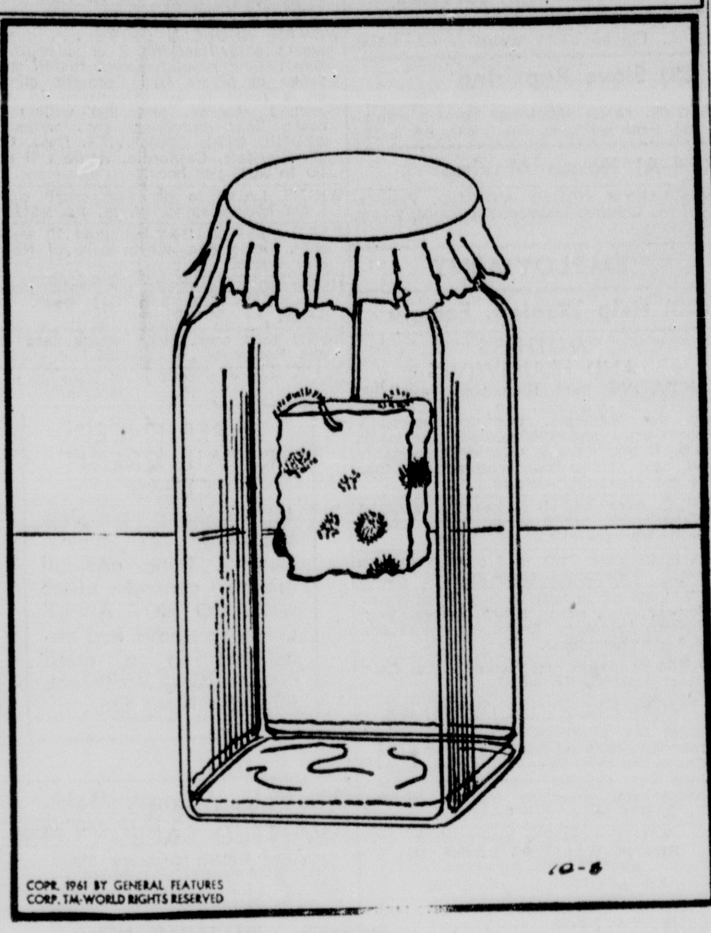
By BOB BROWN



COPR. 1961 BY GENERAL FEATURES CORP. TM-WORLD RIGHTS RESERVED

PROBLEM: Bread Mold.

NEEDED: Glass jar or dish, foil, wire, water and a piece of bread.

DO THIS: Hang the bread on the wire inside the jar, as shown, or simply place it on a dish. Put water in the jar or dish to keep the bread moist. The jar may be covered with foil to keep the moisture in

WHAT HAPPENS: Fungus spores, including those that produce bread mold are always in the air. They fall on the bread, and when conditions are right, they grow into mold. It may take several days for a good covering of mold to appear.

The mold will be in several colors. A blue-green kind likely to appear is penicillium, a member of the genus from which penicillin is extracted. Examine some of the mold plants under a microscope or magnifying glass if one is available.

BY U.N. ASSEMBLY

Canada To Urge Radiation Probe

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —Canada is working on a resolution that would have the U. N. General Assembly call for an intensified study of radioactive fallout in the light of the new Soviet open-air tests of nuclear weapons.

Canadian sources, disclosing this Saturday, said their delegation and others probably would introduce the resolution next Thursday or Friday in the assembly's Special Political Committee.

On Canada's motion, that committee Friday put the fallout question at the top of its agenda in the form of a progress report from the 15-nation U. N. Scientific Committee on the effects of atomic radiation.

Shintaro Fukushima of Japan, of the Special Political Committee, indicated in an interview that he wished the Scientific Committee would hurry up its second comprehensive report, scheduled for next year.

"The Japanese people are not going to be satisifed with that," said Fukushima, a Tokyo newspaper publisher. "That is too late. Fallout danger is growing now.

"While the atomic bomb is the danger we dread, fallout is doing actual damage right now. It may not be killing anybody, but it is gradually accumulating and we must know more about it."

He said he did not know about Canada's proposal but Japan would support or cosponsor it if it was in line with her desire to have the real meaning and danger of fallout measured by some organization like the United Nations.

The Soviet Union resumed open-air nuclear tests and the United States underground nuclear tests last month while the Scientific Committee was drafting its progress report here. The report, issued Sept. 21, said the new testing "increases the urgency for intensification of relevant scientific studies."

The Canadian informants said the resolution would seek to beef up studies of fallout patterns now being carried on by the United Nations, specialized agencies and governments.

They said an early report on fallout since the resumption of tests would be only one of the things it would call for.

"What we're aiming at," said one source, "is to intensify the very valuable work that the committee is already doing, and to seek ways of increasing man's knowledge about this important subject, and some way to put a stop to fallout."

Canadian Foreign Secretary Howard Green stressed this point when he spoke Tuesday in the General Assembly's policy debate.

"We know that radiation presents a hazard to human health," he said, "and the more we learn about the extent of its consequences, the more disturbed we become."

He declared that the assembly "must insist that there be no further testing of nuclear weapons" —hinting perhaps that a proposal to that effect would be put before the assembly's main Political Committee, which will debate test suspension.

In sufficient quantities, radioactive fallout products can cause bone and blood cancer in living human beings and monstrosities in their descendants. In its first comprehensive report in 1958, the Scientific Committee concluded that "even the smallest amounts of radiation" were liable to cause deleterious effects.

Adolescents Riot After Grid Contest

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP)— Opening of the high school football season Friday night triggered a teen-age riot which embroiled police and between 500 and 1,000 adolescents early Saturday.

When the battling was finally finished, police from every department in the area had rounded up 88 boys—54 of them under 18 years of age. Those over 18 were booked for failing to disperse and the younger rioters were turned over to their parents.

Nobody was hurt seriously.

The fighting started at a drive-in restaurant and, like a lit chain of firecrackers, spread to other restaurants.

Alhambra police quickly broadcast for help to nine neighboring law agencies.

Roadblocks were set up and the drive-in restaurant closed by police. The youths were ordered to disperse over a broadcasting system, but the orders were not heeded, police said.

"It was spontaneous," an officer said. "We had hundreds of kids fighting half a dozen cops before help could arrive."

Officers John Seney and Joe DeMatteo said the riots broke out about midnight—after Alhambra High School had lost the football opener to Monrovia High, 33-9.

"The city isn't going to stand for any more of this," said City Councilman Dan Bruno. "The city has treated teen-agers fair and square but you can only take so much."

Bruno said the city two months ago passed an ordinance prohibiting assembly more than three persons on a city street. It was passed, he said, "to avoid what happened tonight."

The SLTA opened fall activities with an informal reception in the newly constructed addition of T. O. Brown Hall, occupied by the Division of Education.

Diplomats Say Syria Anxious For U.S. Ties

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet officer credited with shooting down U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers was named Saturday as a delegate to the 22nd congress of the Soviet Communist party this month in Moscow.

Moscow radio said Lt. Col Mikhail R. Voronov was unanimously elected by "Communist soldiers."

Voronov was a major in a rocket unit when Powers' plane crashed near Sverdslovsk in May 1960.

The broadcast said his present job is "training new soldiers in the art of sharpshooting."

TOKYO (AP) — Cambodia's neutralist Prince Sihanouk warned Saturday that sending American or SEATO troops to Laos might provoke a Korean-type war in which the West would be "surely defeated" by the Chinese Communists.

But he said in his opinion sending U.S. troops to South Viet Nam would mean "less danger" of triggering massive Communist intervention and a major conflict in Southeast Asia.

"I think it would be possible for the United States to interfere militarily in South Viet Nam because North Viet Nam is interfering in South Viet Nam," the Cambodian chief of state told a news conference. "If the United States wants to send troops there, in my opinion there is less danger than sending American troops or SEATO troops into Laos," he said.

"But I advised my American friends not to send troops to Laos, because you can be sure the Chinese would intervene too," said Sihanouk.

"And you know, they are very numerous. There would be another Korean War. The Americans would be surely defeated. There would be a serious conflict and we would be its victims."

High State Department sources in Washington disclosed Friday that the United States is considering sending troops to South Viet Nam, which is faced with increasingly dangerous operations by Communist guerrillas.

Sihanouk, here on an unofficial visit, placed most of the blame for that nation's troubles on President Ngo Dinh Diem. He called him a dictator with no popular support.

Sihanouk said he was "very pessimistic" about Laos and saw little chance for neutrality there.

He played a mediator's role when he proposed the international conference on Laos at Geneva and brought Laos' conservative, neutralist and pro-Communist princes together for a meeting this summer at Zurich. The three princes agreed to work toward a coalition government but have deadlocked on the details.

Sihanouk predicted a government, headed by neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma would be a first step toward communism in Laos.

Souvanna has the backing of the pro-Communists.

"The process of communization will come step by step like microbes in a body—like iancer," Sihanouk warned.

"In Laos," he said, "it is too late."

Three Princes Disagree On Power Division

HIN HEUP, Laos (AP)—Representatives of the three Laotian princes disagreed Saturday on the [illegible] issue of their talks in this village on the edge of the [illegible] land—the division of power in a coalition government.

After discussing for more than [illegible] how the 16 seats in the proposed Cabinet should be [illegible] out, the three factions issued separate statements.

The neutralists and pro-Communist Pathet Lao spokesmen [illegible] it had agreed eight seats would go to neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, four to his pro-Communist half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, and four to Premier Boun Oum, a pro-Westerner.

The government faction took exception. It demanded that Souvanna Phouma's allocation be open to groups other than his own.

"We want to see a really neutral Laos," said a government spokesman. "For that Souvanna Phouma must have only four seats for those with him and use the other four to serve politicians who have not been directly involved in the recent war."

Man Recovers $5,000 After Messy Search

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) —Raymond E. Martin, 41, did better than find a needle in a haystack —he found his $5,000 in 10,000 pounds of garbage.

After battling flies and decayed tomatoes, coffee grounds, dried oranges, corn cobs and other garbage for two hours to recover his hardware store receipts, Martin explained how the money got to the incinerator.

The bank closed before Martin could make his Thursday deposit. So he brought the cash home in a brown paper bag.

Yesterday his wife placed the bag on top of a waste paper basket to get it momentarily out of the way. When garbage collectors approached, the maid, scooped up the basket and the brown sack, just in time for the pickup.

Mrs. Martin noticed the bag missing minutes later, was too frightened to call her husband, but drove to the store to advise him.

They rushed to the incinerator, explained their problem and the truck dumped its 10,000 pounds of garbage three feet high for the search.

There were only about 100 pounds of the stuff left to search when Martin found the bag. He passed out rewards for the sanitation department workers who helped him and said garbage men "are regular fellows."

NEARING MILLION MARK

PARIS (AP) — "Brigitte Bardot," a recording made in Brazil in Portuguese, is nearing the million sales mark in France, distributors report. The disc sung by Jorge Viega is hardly comprehensible to Frenchmen but many seem satisfied with occasional recognition of the name.

Soviet Press Publishes First A-Sub Picture

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press published for the first time Saturday a picture of what it claimed was one of a fleet of Soviet atomic submarines.

Premier Khrushchev has said in speeches that the Soviet Union has nuclear-powered underwater ships armed with missiles, but there has never been any direct mention of them in the press nor has any Westerner ever seen one.

They were expected to be on display at Soviet Navy Day last [illegible] but did not appear.

The picture shown in the newspaper Izvestia did not give away any secrets and could have been a picture of almost anything.

The newspaper story made no mention of missiles, but was devoted mostly to how safe the vessel was with shielded reactor and tremendous power not available from many other form of energy.

The sudden unexpected publicity for the nuclear submarine seemed intended as another display of Soviet armed might during the Berlin crisis and as a counter to America's Polaris fleet.

Town Receives Death Sentence

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) —The people of Yallourn did little else Saturday but discuss the death sentence passed on their town.

The State Electricity Commission announced that Yallourn, 90 miles east of Melbourne, population 4,500, was to be demolished.

The reason was 200 million tons of brown coal under the town which the commission wants to extract by open-cut methods.

The town's 1,100 houses are owned by the commission which rents them.

Hit-Run Death Driver Sought

d BATON ROUGE (AP) — State police Saturday searched for a motorist who hit and killed an 80-year-old man who had been thrown from an automobile in which he had been riding.

Police from troop "A" said James Smith of Gonzales was thrown from a car driven by Sulcer John Smith of Gonzales after their automobile had been struck when it pulled out of a street onto Highway 61.

Police said a passing motorist struck Smith and then sped away. Smith died instantly.

Hike Record Try Is Due Across U.S.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Harry (The Hiker) Johnson is on his way again—this time headed for Charleston, S. C., and an assault on the cross-country hiking record.

Johnson, who hiked from Florence, on the Oregon coast, to New York City in 133 days earlier this year, hopes to walk from Charleston to Los Angeles in 59 days. This would break the record of 66 days set a couple of years ago by a pair of British army sergeants.

This time, Harry will sing as he walks. His faded grey raincoat bears the words, "With a song in my heart."

"I sing popular songs and classical," he said. "I'm no pro or anything, but I have had some training."

He hopes to earn enough with his singing along the way to buy a boat ticket to Europe, where he wants to make a hiking and singing tour.

Harry, 45, has been living with his brother in Salem, Ore., since returning from his last hike. He failed to get a hoped-for job in the Arabian oil fields as a result of that hike and returned to Salem in search of work.

Finding none, he's off again. He plans to hitchhike to Charleston and start his walk about the middle of this month.

"You have to get out and make yourself known in the world," Harry said Friday, just before leaving Eugene.

"Different people have different ways. This is the only way I know. I'm just trying to put myself forward a little."

Plans For Salt Dome Nuclear Blast Shelved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., has received notification from the Atomic Energy Commission it has shelved plans to set off an atomic explosion in a Mississippi salt dome.

The AEC Friday advised it will complete present exploratory drilling in the Tatum dome near Hattiesburg and has already finished such drilling in the Bruinsburg dome near Vicksburg.

The commission said the Mississippi domes were found suitable for testing if the $100 million project is resumed.

However, the commission said because of a "recent high priority requirements," possibly testing in Nevada or other areas, it will conduct no tests in the immediate future in Mississippi.

The commission had planned to touch off underground nuclear blasts in a salt dome to test nuclear detection devices and see whether they could pick up such explosions elsewhere. The state had cooperated on grounds such test blasts would spur nuclear industrialization in the state.

JFK Joins Family On Yacht Trip

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Kennedy rejoined his family Saturday for a weekend of rest and relaxation ashore and afloat on the presidential yacht.

The President was on the ground only a few minutes after his 52-minute flight from Washington, and then he was aboard the yacht Honey Fitz and off for an afternoon on the water.

Mrs. Kennedy waited for him aboard the boat.

The Kennedys' daughter, Caroline, couldn't wait—she was driven up from the pier in an automobile and wriggled her way through a group of naval officers.

The President was being greeted by an admiral when Caroline broke through the line and threw her arms around his knees, shouting, "Hi, Daddy." She wore pink overalls over a blue shirt.

The President hugged and kissed Caroline and then led her to an open car for the short drive to the waiting yacht.

As he sailed on the yacht the President was greeted by the crews of three Navy ships, the carrier Essex and submarines Corsair and Croaker.

Sailors manned the rails, lining the flight deck of the carrier, which displays on her gangplanks the ship's slogan "The oldest and the boldest."

The President also put in a phone call from the White House to Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin, who is in New York.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the President put in the call "to welcome him to the United States."

In New York, Brandt said the President congratulated him for his speech, in which he said the wall that divides Berlin must come down.

Brandt made the speech Friday in New York. He said he and the President had an exchange of views during their telephone talks and added he thought it "reassuring that the President was able to identify himself to some degree with the ideas I expressed yesterday."

Missing Civil War Papers Are Found

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The long-missing personal papers of Maj. Gen. Don Carlos Buell, a ranking Union commander in the Civil War, have turned up in Houston.

The Houston Post said in a copyright story Saturday that a scholar from Rice University found the bulk of the papers in a battered trunk inside a tool shed.

There are hundreds of letters —both originals and copies — which Buell wrote in his scrathy script to his wife, his fellow generals, and his friends.

"As far as the western theater of the Civil War is concerned, this is the most important collection found in the last 10 or 20 years," said Dr. Frank Vandiver, a historian and author of several books on the Civil War.

Vandiver and other Rice officials negotiated with Buell's descendants for the purchase of rights to microfilm the papers and keep them on loan at Rice.

The board investigated Buell's leadership in the Union campaign against Confederate Gen. Braxton Bragg in Kentucky in 1862.

Although the board never made its findings public, the inquiry cast a shadow over Buell's long military career. After a year awaiting new orders, he retired from the Army.

The West Pointer earlier had fought in the Seminole War of 1841-42 and had been breveted for bravery at Monterey in the Mexican War.

The papers, in two caches, were in the hands of two Houston descendants of the general's family. The Buell family originally was from Ohio, but some of its members drifted to Texas.

Most of the papers were in the possession of Henry Lee Buell, an 80-year-old nephew of the general. He lives alone in a two-story house off South Post Oak on the southern fringe of Houston. Two of his nieces, Mrs. H. A. Tschumy and Mrs. James M. Andrews, first disclosed the existence of the papers during telephone calls to Vandiver in May 1960.

Mrs. Tschumy had the second sizable collection of papers. They were passed along to her by her mother, Flora Buell Powers.

Mrs. Andrews lives near and cares for Henry Lee Buell.

"Unvle had no particular interest in seeing the papers made public," Mrs. Tschumy said. "He treasured them and he's old and just likes to be left alone."

N.Y. Orchestra Votes To End Concert Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra voted Saturday to end a week-long strike. They will resume work Monday.

By a 56-41 vote the members agreed to accept a three-year contract, which the musicians had rejected last week despite the recommendation of the executive board of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians.

The strike silenced the orchestra, which had just opened its 1961-1962 season.

A union spokesman said the vote to accept management's offer was a "reluctant one" due in part to "management's adamant attitude" in refusing to mediate or discuss contract terms further.

The management offer accepted on the second vote was a three-year contract with guaranteed seasons of increasing length, a $10 increase in the present $180 minimum salary rate with $10 more in 1963-64, and other benefits.

Management announced that the concert series would resume with the regularly scheduled concert Thursday evening. Leonard Bernstein will conduct.

Brandt met his attractive second wife while in wartime exile. They already have two sons, Peter, 13, and Lars, 10. Brandt also has a daughter by his first marriage.

Cotton Futures Show Increase As Week Ends

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures firmed up this week and closed 60 cents to $1.95 a bale higher than the closing prices of a week before.

The best gain was in distant March deliveries.

The strength of the market reflected mill price fixing, short covering and trade and commission house demand. These were influenced by a pickup in loan entries, weather and expectations of a moderate decrease in the forthcoming crop forecast.

Offerings resulted from scattered liquidation and hedge selling. Much in evidence was a tendency by spot houses to transfer to the more distant positions.

The possibility of a lower crop forecast was indicated by a report from a leading stock house placing output as of Oct. 1 at 14,076,000 bales. One month ago, a crop reporting board estimated the crop would be 14,262,000 bales.

However, exports for the season through Oct. 3 remained far ahead of last season. Exports then totaled only 321,000. This year 934,000 bales have been exported.

U.S. Volunteer Exile Leaves For Denmark

Dillon, 57, son of a Boston family, first picked New Zealand as the country he wanted to live in but visa troubles canceled his scheduled departure Tuesday. New Zealand officials indicated he might not be allowed to enter.

Robert E. Nesmith, a Houston engineer, paid his way, making good an offer of a one-way ticket last year to anyone who would rather live in a socialistic country than in the United States. Nesmith asked that the person accepting his offer renounce his U.S. citizenship and never return.

Dillon a free-lance writer, said he will renounce his U.S. citizenship when he arrives in Denmark, the Houston Chronicle said.

"Next to New Zealand, I regard the Danish state as that which best resembles my conception of a Socialist nation, and, too, I have friends there who will help me," Dillon said.

"I leave with no bitterness and no regrets," Dillon said before boarding the plane for Copenhagen.

India Defense Minister Has Brain Surgery

NEW YORK (AP)—Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon was reported resting comfortably in Montefiore Hospital Saturday after undergoing surgery for removal of a blood clot on the brain.

Dr. Leon Davidoff, a brain surgeon, said the one-hour operation was successful and "a small collection of blood was found and removed from the brain."

Menon is expected to remain in the hospital for about 10 days.

Sources close to the Indian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly said Dr. A. Baliga, Bombay surgeon and close friend of Menon, was present during the operation.

Shortly after the morning surgery, Menon recovered from anesthesia and sipped some tea.

Menon is chairman of India's delegation to the U. N. General Assembly.

Negro Students Stage Boycott

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)— About 400 students at Jackson State College for Negroes boycotted classes Friday, a student leader said Saturday.

Walter Williams, last year's student government president, said the students were protesting an order by school president Jacob Reddix which dissolved the student government association. Williams said the order was given to cut down organized resistance to racial segregation.

Williams said the "dissatisfied" students met at the school stadium Friday and paraded around the campus.

Reddix said he dissolved the student government association because its actions had "embarrassed" the school. He said the dispute had nothing to do with race. "I just had to put my foot down," he said.

Membership Doubles In Local SLTA

Membership of Northeast State's T. O. Brown chapter of the Student Louisiana Teachers Association already has more than doubled its figures of last year, Sandra Johnson, organization president of Fairbanks, announced.

The SLTA opened fall activities with an informal reception in the newly-constructed addition of T. O. Brown Hall, occupied by the Division of Education.

Approximately 175 persons affiliated with the chapter or interested in its projects attended the affair, planned by the executive committee as entertainment for the faculty and students in the Division of Education.

"Let's get to know each other better" was carried out in the informality of the event.

Receiving guests with the president of SLTA were Mrs. Ruby Ball, faculty adviser; Miss Peggy Busbice, treasurer; and Miss Niki Poulos, reporter.

During the refreshment hour, George Owen sang a medley of folk songs which were taught to him by his father and grandfather. Background music also was used throughout the afternoon hours of entertainment.

The tea table, centered with a gold container of flowers in autumn shades, held cold drinks and trays of confections. Serving were the SLTA president's mother, Mrs. E. H. Johnson, Miss Mary Jane Young, Miss Millie Wendorf and Miss Leona Watson. They were assisted by Miss Sarah Jordan, secretary of the organization.

Navigators' Strike Lasts Few Minutes

NEW YORK (AP) — Trans World Airlines navigators struck Saturday but agreed to return to work a few minutes later after the company agreed to a crew change. TWA blamed the incident on a misunderstanding.

In Chicago, the Air Line Pilots Association served notice that the union is withdrawing from mediation in a dispute with TWA affecting 1,500 pilots. The ALPA said it expected to set a strike date soon.

The dispute here stemmed from TWA's attempt to replace navigators on overseas flights with an electronic navigational aid. The union contends the change will replace 66 navigators with copilots who are trained to operate the new equipment.

The trouble reportedly started when the navigator assigned to flight 802 to Paris protested that the flight's first officer—copilot—was not qualified to handle the new equipment.

The airlines settled the matter by calling a copilot who already had been checked out on the new equipment. The flight left only 30 minutes after its scheduled 9:30 A.M. takeoff time. The navigator went along, too.

Local 520 of the Transport Workers Union contended that the attempt to use a copilot not checked out on the new equipment violated an earlier agreement.

This provided that copilots already checked out on the device could continue to use it but that no new men could be trained until the management and the union settle the disagreement.

A presidential emergency board was appointed earlier in the week to study the dispute. This procedure normally bars a strike for 30 days.

A strike set for midnight Oct. 4 was called off at the last minute after appointment of the board.

In Chicago, Clarence N. Sayen, president of the ALPA, gave notice of the union's intention to withdraw from mediation in a telegram to the National Railway Mediation Board. He said negotiations which began 14 months ago are stalled.

The pilots union is impatient with TWA's insistence that the pilots' dispute be settled only after a report by a presidential commission appointed to study the crew composition situation. The union contends the work of the commission has no bearing on contract talks.

Chief issues, the pilots said, are pension and working conditions such as layover time and turnaround rules.

Diplomats Say Syria Anxious For U.S. Ties

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet officer credited with shooting down U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers was named Saturday as a delegate to the 22nd congress of the Soviet Communist party this month in Moscow.

Moscow radio said Lt. Col Mikhail R. Voronov was unanimously elected by "Communist soldiers."

Voronov was a major in a rocket unit when Powers' plane crashed near Sverdslovsk in May 1960.

The broadcast said his present job is "training new soldiers in the art of sharpshooting."

U.S. Troops Use In Laos Is Opposed

TOKYO (AP) — Cambodi's neutralist Prince Sihanouk warned Saturday that sending American or SEATO troops to Laos might provoke a Korean-type war in which the West would be "surely defeated" by the Chinese Communists.

But he said in his opinion sending U.S. troops to South Viet Nam would mean "less danger" of triggering massive Communist intervention and a major conflict in Southeast Asia.

"I think it would be possible for the United States to interfere militarily in South Viet Nam because North Viet Nam is interfering in South Viet Nam," the Cambodian chief of state told a news conference. "If the United States wants to send troops there, in my opinion there is less danger than sending American troops or SEATO troops into Laos," he said.

SEATO is the Western-sponsored eight-nation Southeast Asian Treaty Organization.

"But I advised my American friends not to send troops to Laos, because you can be sure the Chinese would intervene too," said Sihanouk.

"And you know, they are very numerous. There would be another Korean War. The Americans would be surely defeated. There would be a serious conflict and we would be its victims."

(High State Department sources in Washington disclosed Friday that the United States is considering sending troops to South Viet Nam, which is faced with increasingly dangerous operations by Communist guerrillas.

Sihanouk, here on an unofficial visit, placed most of the blame for that nation's troubles on President Ngo Dinh Diem. He called him a dictator with no popular support.

Sihanouk said he was "very pessimistic" about Laos and saw little chance for neutrality there.

He played a mediator's role when he proposed the international conference on Laos at Geneva and brought Laos' conservative, neutralist and pro-Communist princes together for a meeting this summer at Zurich. The three princes agreed to work toward a coalition government but have deadlocked on the details.

Sihanouk predicted a government, headed by neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma would be a first step toward communism in Laos.

Souvanna has the backing of the pro-Communists.

"The process of communization will come step by step like microbes in a body—iike iancer," Sihanouk warned.

"In Laos," he said, "it is too late."

Laos Princes Disagree On Power Division

HIN HEUP, Laos (AP)—Representatives of the three Laotian princes disagreed Saturday on the main issue of their talks in this village on the edge of the nation's no-man's land—the division of power in a coalition government.

After discussing for more than five hours how the 16 seats in the proposed Cabinet should be parceled out, the three factions issued separate statements.

The neutralists and pro-Communist Pathet Lao spokesmen claimed it had agreed eight seats would go to neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, four to his pro-Communist half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, and four to Premier Boun Oum, a pro-Westerner.

The government faction took exception. It demanded that Souvanna Phouma's allocation be open to groups other than his own.

"We want to see a really neutral Laos," said a government spokesman. "For that Souvanna Phouma must have only four seats for those with him and use the other four to serve politicians who have not been directly involved in the recent war."

Man Recovers $5,000 After Messy Search

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) —Raymond E. Martin, 41, did better than find a needle in a haystack —he found his $5,000 in 10,000 pounds of garbage.

After battling flies and decayed tomato, dog food, dried oranges, corn cobs and other garbage for two hours to recover his hardware store receipts, Martin explained how the money got to the incinerator.

The bank closed before Martin could make his Thursday deposit. So he brought the cash home in a brown paper bag.

Yesterday his wife placed the bag on top of a waste paper basket to get it momentarily out of the way. When garbage collectors approached, the maid, scooped up the basket and the brown sack, just in time for the pickup.

Mrs. Martin noticed the bag missing minutes later, was too frightened to call her husband, but drove to the store to advise him.

They rushed to the incinerator, explained their problem and the truck dumped its 10,000 pounds of garbage three feet high for the search.

There were only about 100 pounds of the stuff left to search when Martin found the bag. He passed out rewards for the sanitation department workers who helped him and said garbage men "are regular fellows."

NEARING MILLION MARK

Soviet Press Publishes First A-Sub Picture

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press published for the first time Saturday a picture of what it claimed was one of a fleet of Soviet atomic submarines.

Premier Khrushchev has said in speeches that the Soviet Union has nuclear-powered underwater ships armed with missiles, but there has never been any direct mention of them in the press nor has any Westerner ever seen one.

They were expected to be on display at Soviet Navy Day last July but did not appear.

The picture shown in the newspaper Izvestia did not give away any secrets and could have been a picture of almost anything.

The newspaper story made no mention of missiles, but was devoted mostly to how safe the vessel was with shielded reactor and tremendous power not available fro many other form of energy.

The sudden unexpected publicity for the nuclear submarine seemed intended as another display of Soviet armed might during the Berlin crisis and as a counter to America's Polaris fleet.

Town Receives Death Sentence

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) —The people of Yallourn did litule else Saturday but discuss the death sentence passed on their town.

The State Electricity Commission announced that Yallourn, 90 miles east of Melbourne, population 4,500, was to be demolished.

The reason was 200 million tons of brown coal under the town which the commission wants to extract by open-cut methods.

The town's 1,100 houses are owned by the commission which rents them.

Hike Record Try Is Due Across U.S.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Harry (The Hiker) Johnson is on his way again—this time headed for Charleston, S. C., and an assault on the cross-country hiking record.

Johnson, who hiked from Florence, on the Oregon coast, to New York City in 133 days earlier this year, hopes to walk from Charleston to Los Angeles in 59 days. This would break the record of 66 days set a couple of years ago by a pair of British army sergeants.

This time, Harry will sing as he walks. His faded grey raincoat bears the words, "With a song in my heart."

"I sing popular songs and classical," he said. "I'm no pro or anything, but I have had some training."

He hopes to earn enough with his singing along the way to buy a boat ticket to Europe, where he wants to make a hiking and singing tour.

Harry, 45, has been living with his brother in Salem, Ore., since returning from his last hike. He failed to get a hoped-for job in the Arabian oil fields as a result of that hike and returned to Salem in search of work.

Finding none, he's off again. He plans to hitchhike to Charleston and start his walk about the middle of this month.

"You have to get out and make yourself known in the world," Harry said Friday, just before leaving Eugene.

"Different people have different ways. This is the only way I know. I'm just trying to put myself forward a little."

Plans For Salt Dome Nuclear Blast Shelved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., has received notification from the Atomic Energy Commission it has shelved plans to set off an atomic explosion in a Mississippi salt dome.

The AEC Friday advised it will complete present exploratory drilling in the Tatum dome near Hattiesburg and has already finished such drilling in the Bruinsburg dome near Vicksburg.

The commission said the Mississippi domes were found suitable for testing if the $100 million project is resumed.

However, the commission said because of a "recent high priority requirements," possibly testing in Nevada or other areas, it will conduct no tests in the immediate future in Mississippi.

The commission had planned to touch off underground nuclear blasts in a salt dome to test nuclear detection devices and see whether they could pick up such explosions elsewhere. The state had cooperated on grounds such test blasts would spur nuclear industrialization in the state.

JFK Joins Family On Yacht Trip

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Kennedy rejoined his family Saturday for a weekend of rest and relaxation ashore and afloat on the presidential yacht.

The President was on the ground only a few minutes after his 52-minute flight from Washington, and then he was aboard the yacht Honey Fitz and off for an afternoon on the water.

Mrs. Kennedy waited for him aboard the boat.

The Kennedys' daughter, Caroline, couldn't wait—she was driven up from the pier in an automobile and wriggled her way through a group of naval officers.

The President was being greeted by an admiral when Caroline broke through the line and threw her arms around his knees, shouting, "Hi, Daddy." She wore pink overalls over a blue shirt.

The President hugged and kissed Caroline and then led her to an open car for the short drive to the waiting yacht.

As he sailed on the yacht the President was greeted by the crews of three Navy ships, the carrier Essex and submarines Corsair and Croaker.

Sailors manned the rails, lining the flight deck of the carrier, which displays on her gangplanks the ship's slogan "The oldest and the boldest."

The President also put in a phone call from the White House to Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin, who is in New York.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the President put in the call "to welcome him to the United States."

In New York, Brandt said the President congratulated him for his speech, in which he said the wall that divides Berlin must come down.

Brandt made the speech Friday in New York. He said he and the President had an exchange of views during their telephone talks and added he thought it "reassuring that the President was able to identify himself to some degree with the ideas I expressed yesterday."

IN BATTERED TRUNK

Missing Civil War Papers Are Found

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The long-missing personal papers of Maj. Gen. Don Carlos Buell, a ranking Union commander in the Civil War, have turned up in Houston.

The Houston Post said in a copyright story Saturday that a scholar from Rice University found the bulk of the papers in a battered trunk inside a tool shed.

The collection contains letters to the bewhiskered general from Abraham Lincoln, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, Gen. George B. McClellan, Andrew Johnson and others.

There are hundreds of letters —both originals and copies — which Buell wrote in his scrathy script to his wife, his fellow generals, and his friends.

"As far as the western theater of the Civil War is concerned, this is the most important collection found in the last 10 or 20 years," said Dr. Frank Vandiver, a historian and author of several books on the Civil War.

Vandiver and other Rice officials negotiated with Buell's descendants for the purchase of rights to microfilm the papers and keep them on loan at Rice.

The collection also includes a 200-page transcript of Buell's hearing before an Army board of inquiry in 1862-63.

The board investigated Buell's leadership in the Union campaign against Confederate Gen. Braxton Bragg in Kentucky in 1862.

Although the board never made its findings public, the inquiry cast a shadow over Buell's long military career. After a year awaiting new orders, he retired from the Army.

The West Pointer earlier had fought in the Seminole War of 1841-42 and had been breveted for bravery at Monterey in the Mexican War.

The papers, in two caches, were in the hands of two Houston descendants of the general's family. The Buell family originally was from Ohio, but some of its members drifted to Texas.

Most of the papers were in the possession of Henry Lee Buell, an 80-year-old nephew of the general. He lives alone in a two-story house off South Post Oak on the southern fringe of Houston. Two of his nieces, Mrs. H. A. Tschumy and Mrs. James M. Andrews, first disclosed the existence of the papers during telephone calls to Vandiver in May 1960.

Mrs. Tschumy had the second sizable collection of papers. They were passed along to her by her mother, Flora Buell Powers.

Mrs. Andrews lives near and cares for Henry Lee Buell.

"Unvle had no particular interest in seeing the papers made public," Mrs. Tschumy said. "He treasured them and he's old and just likes to be left alone."

N.Y. Orchestra Votes To End Concert Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra voted Saturday to end a week-long strike. They will resume work Monday.

By a 56-41 vote the members agreed to accept a three-year contract, which the musicians had rejected last week despite the recommendation of the executive board of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians.

The strike silenced the orchestra, which had just opened its 1961-1962 season.

A union spokesman said the vote to accept management's offer was a "reluctant one" due in part to "management's adamant attitude" in refusing to mediate or discuss contract terms further.

The management offer accepted on the second vote was a three-year contract with guaranteed seasons of increasing length, a $10 increase in the present $180 minimum salary rate with $10 more in 1963-64, and other benefits.

Management announced that the concert series would resume with the regularly scheduled concert Thursday evening. Leonard Bernstein will conduct.

Cotton Futures Show Increase As Week Ends

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures firmed up this week and closed 60 cents to $1.95 a bale higher than the closing prices of a week before.

The best gain was in distant March deliveries.

The strength of the market reflected mill price fixing, short covering and trade and commission house demand. These were influenced by a pickup in loan entries, weather and expectations of a moderate decrease in the forthcoming crop forecast.

Offerings resulted from scattered liquidation and hedge selling. Much in evidence was a tendency by spot houses to transfer to the more distant positions.

The possibility of a lower crop forecast was indicated by a report from a leading stock house placing output as of Oct. 1 at 14,076,000 bales. One month ago, a crop reporting board estimated the crop would be 14,262,000 bales.

However, exports for the season through Oct. 3 remained far ahead of last season. Exports then totaled only 321,000. This year 934,000 bales have been exported.

U.S. Volunteer Exile Leaves For Denmark

Dillon, 57, son of a Boston family, first picked New Zealand as the country he wanted to live in but visa troubles canceled his scheduled departure Tuesday. New Zealand officials indicated he might not be allowed to enter.

Robert E. Nesmith, a Houston engineer, paid his way, making good an offer of a one-way ticket last year to anyone who would rather live in a socialistic country than in the United States Nesmith asked that the person accepting his offer renounce his U.S. citizenship and never return.

Dillon a free-lance writer, said he will renounce his U.S. citizenship when he arrives in Denmark, the Houston Chronicle said.

"Next to New Zealand, I regard the Danish state as that which best resembles my conception of a Socialist nation, and, too, I have friends there who will help me," Dillon said.

"I leave with no bitterness and no regrets," Dillon said before boarding the plane for Copenhagen.

India Defense Minister Has Brain Surgery

NEW YORK (AP)—Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon was reported resting comfortably in Montefiore Hospital Saturday after undergoing surgery for removal of a blood clot on the brain.

Dr. Leon Davidoff, a brain surgeon, said the one-hour operation was successful and "a small collection of blood was found and removed from the brain."

A hospital spokesman described the Indian statesman's condition as "satisfactory" and said Menon probably would be permitted to get on his feet Sunday.

Menon is expected to remain in the hospital for about 10 days.

Sources close to the Indian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly said Dr. A. Baliga, Bombay surgeon and close friend of Menon, was present during the operation.

Shortly after the morning surgery, Menon recovered from anesthesia and sipped some tea.

Menon is chairman of India's delegation to the U. N. General Assembly.

Negro Students Stage Boycott

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)— About 400 students at Jackson State College for Negroes boycotted classes Friday, a student leader said Saturday.

Walter Williams, last year's student government president, said the students were protesting an order by school president Jacob Reddix which dissolved the student government association. Williams said the order was given to cut down organized resistance to racial segregation.

Williams said the "dissatisfied" students met at the school stadium Friday and paraded around the campus.

Reddix said he dissolved the student government association because its actions had "embarrassed" the school. He said the dispute had nothing to do with race. "I just had to put my foot down," he said.

Unique Trust Agreement Is Made Public

By ROBERT PAGE

DETROIT (UPI) — A unique trust agreement established by the late Edward MacCrone, a Detroit investment specialist, and based on confidence in American business and the investment savvy of the trustees was made public Saturday.

The trust is based on the theory that if the principal of the trust is invested in business and continuously reinvested along with its earnings wisely for a hundred years, a substantial amount of money can be accumulated.

The fund may multiply 500 times by the year 2061, MacCrone believed.

MacCrone created the trust fund to consist of a substantial portion of his estate. But he wants the money to accumulate for 100 years before it is distributed to nine educational cultural and charitable institutions.

The principal is still an unknown quantity because MacCrone's estate has not been inventoried. Just the same, the trustees believe, MacCrone's beneficiaries can expect a "substantial" gift from the trust in 2061.

The trust is to be administered by the Detroit Bank and Trust Co. At the end of the 100 years, the total amount accumulated is to be divided into ten equal parts and distributed in the following manner:

Two shares will go to Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis. One share each will go to the Protestant Children's Home of Detroit, the Detroit Museum of Art Founders Society, the Detroit area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the Detroit Library Commission, the trustees of Princeton University, Princeton, N.J., the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., Boston, Mass., the trustees of the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., and to a charitable organization to be designated by a special "board of review" set up under the terms of the trust.

MacCrone, in a letter to the trustees before his death, pointed out that the money — continually invested in the "substantial concerns" of America — should multiply 500 times by the end of 100 years, "at a conservative estimate."

A spokesman for the trustees, B. James Theodoroff, a vice president of the bank, said that the trust gave the bank virtually complete control over the investment of the principal fund and its accumulation of profits.

MacCrone was known around Detroit as a "rugged individualist" in the truest sense. He was born in Duluth, Minn., in 1892 but came to Detroit in his teens and began an investment career.

After several years with the H. W. Noble Co., MacCrone formed his own firm of E. E. MacCrone & Co. and became one of the youngest members of the New York Stock Exchange.

He was one of the original partners of Merrill Lynch and during this association he participated in the underwriting of many major stock issues, including the original stock of the S. S. Kresge Co.

Anticancer Drugs Eyed For Rayburn

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)— House Speaker Sam Rayburn's doctors disclosed Saturday they may try to slow Rayburn's widespread cancer with new experimental drugs.

Rayburn has been a congressman and speaker longer than any other man in history.

Rest, transfusions and drugs—chiefly cortisone—increased the 79-year-old Rayburn's strength so greatly Saturday that he smiled, sat up and dangled his feet over the edge of his bed.

He ate a small but solid breakfast—his first meal-by-mouth except for liquids in days—and ordered steak for lunch.

But his general condition remained the same: He has a cancer, probably in his pancreas, that has colonized malignant tumors throughout at least half his body.

His blood is saturated with cancer cells. Cancer such as his has never been known to have been cured. Doctors think the remainder of his life may be measured in days.

Rayburn is in Baylor University Medical Center. Dr. Ralph Tompsett, director of internal medicine at Baylor, and one of four consulting physicians in the Rayburn case, disclosed Saturday that Rayburn may be given experimental drugs.

"We are considering administering in a day or two new drugs, some of which are labeled experimental by the Food and Drug Administration," Dr. Tompsett said.

"They are called 'chemo-therapeutic' drugs, and, as best I can describe them, have an anti-tumor effect."

He indicated the best he and his colleagues hope for is to slow the progress of the tumors and prolong Rayburn's life. Dr. Tompsett said Friday there was no record of cancer such as Rayburn's ever being cured. It is too far advanced to operate.

BY U.N. ASSEMBLY

Canada To Urge Radiation Probe

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Canada is working on a resolution that would have the U. N. General Assembly call for an intensified study of radioactive fallout in the light of the new Soviet open-air tests of nuclear weapons.

Canadian sources, disclosing this Saturday, said their delegation and others probably would introduce the resolution next Thursday or Friday in the assembly's Special Political Committee.

On Canada's motion, that committee Friday put the fallout question at the top of its agenda in the form of a progress report from the 15-nation U. N. Scientific Committee on the effects of atomic radiation.

Shintaro Fukushima of Japan, of the Special Political Committee, indicated in an interview that he wished the Scientific Committee would hurry up its second comprehensive report, scheduled for next year.

"The Japanese people are not going to be satisifed with that," said Fukushima, a Tokyo newspaper publisher. "That is too late. Fallout danger is growing now.

"While the atomic bomb is the danger we dread, fallout is doing actual damage right now. It may not be killing anybody, but it is gradually accumulating and we must know more about it."

He said he did not know about Canada's proposal but Japan would support or cosponsor it if it was in line with her desire to have the real meaning and danger of fallout measured by some organization like the United Nations.

The Soviet Union resumed open-air nuclear tests and the United States underground nuclear tests last month while the Scientific Committee was drafting its progress report here. The report, issued Sept. 21, said the new testing "increases the urgency for intensification of relevant scientific studies."

The Canadian informants said the resolution would seek to beef up studies of fallout patterns now being carried on by the United Nations, specialized agencies and governments.

They said an early report on fallout since the resumption of tests would be only one of the things it would call for.

"What we're aiming at," said one source, "is to intensify the very valuable work that the committee is already doing, and to seek ways of increasing man's knowledge about this important subject, and some way to put a stop to fallout."

Canadian Foreign Secretary Howard Green stressed this point when he spoke Tuesday in the General Assembly's policy debate.

"We know that radiation presents a hazard to human health," he said, "and the more we learn about the extent of its consequences, the more disturbed we become."

He declared that the assembly "must insist that there be no further testing of nuclear weapons"—hinting perhaps that a proposal to that effect would be put before the assembly's main Political Committee, which will debate test suspension.

In sufficient quantities, radioactive fallout products can cause bone and blood cancer in living human beings and monstrosities in their descendants. In its first comprehensive report in 1958, the Scientific Committee concluded that "even the smallest amounts of radiation" were liable to cause deleterious effects.

Adolescents Riot After Grid Contest

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP)—Opening of the high school football season Friday night triggered a teen-age riot which embroiled police and between 500 and 1,000 adolescents early Saturday.

When the battling was finally finished, police from every department in the area had rounded up 88 boys—54 of them under 18 years of age. Those over 18 were booked for failing to disperse and the younger rioters were turned over to their parents.

Nobody was hurt seriously.

The fighting started at a drive-in restaurant and, like a lit chain of firecrackers, spread to other restaurants.

Alhambra police quickly broadcast for help to nine neighboring law agencies.

Roadblocks were set up and the drive-in restaurant closed by police. The youths were ordered to disperse over a broadcasting system, but the orders were not heeded, police said.

"It was spontaneous," an officer said. "We had hundreds of kids fighting half a dozen cops before help could arrive."

Officers John Seney and Joe DeMatteo said the riots broke out about midnight—after Alhambra High School had lost the football opener to Monrovia High, 33-9.

"The city isn't going to stand for any more of this," said City Councilman Dan Bruno. "The city has treated teen-agers fair and square but you can only take so much."

Bruno said the city two months ago passed an ordinance prohibiting assembly more than three persons on a city street. It was passed, he said, "to avoid what happened tonight."

Unique Trust Agreement Is Made Public

By ROBERT PAGE

DETROIT (UPI) — A unique trust agreement established by the late Edward MacCrone, a Detroit investment specialist, and based on confidence in American business and the investment savvy of the trustees was made public Saturday.

The trust is based on the theory that if the principal of the trust is invested in business and continuously reinvested along with its earnings wisely for a hundred years, a substantial amount of money can be accumulated.

The fund may multiply 500 times by the year 2061. MacCrone believed.

MacCrone created the trust fund to consist of a substantial portion of his estate. But he wants the money to accumulate for 100 years before it is distributed to nine educational cultural and charitable institutions.

The principal is still an unknown quantity because MacCrone's estate has not been inventoried. Just the same, the trustees believe, MacCrone's beneficiaries can expect a "substantial" gift from the trust in 2061.

The trust is to be administered by the Detroit Bank and Trust Co. At the end of the 100 years, the total amount accumulated is to be divided into ten equal parts and distributed in the following manner:

Two shares will go to Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis. One share each will go to the Protestant Children's Home of Detroit, the Detroit Museum of Art Founders Society, the Detroit area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the Detroit Library Commission, the trustees of Princeton University, Princeton, N.J., the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., Boston, Mass., the trustees of the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., and to a charitable organization to be designated by a special "board of review" set up under the terms of the trust.

MacCrone, in a letter to the trustees before his death, pointed out that the money — continually invested in the "substantial concerns" of America — should multiply 500 times by the end of 100 years, "at a conservative estimate."

A spokesman for the trustees, B. James Theodoroff, a vice president of the bank, said that the trust gave the bank virtually complete control over the investment of the principal fund and its accumulation of profits.

MacCrone was known around Detroit as a "rugged individualist" in the truest sense. He was born in Duluth, Minn., in 1892 but came to Detroit in his teens and began an investment career.

After several years with the H. W. Noble Co., MacCrone formed his own firm of E. E. MacCrone & Co. and became one of the youngest members of the New York Stock Exchange.

He was one of the original partners of Merrill Lynch and during this association he participated in the underwriting of many major stock issues, including the original stock of the S. S. Kresge Co.

Anticancer Drugs Eyed For Rayburn

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)— House Speaker Sam Rayburn's doctors disclosed Saturday they may try to slow Rayburn's widespread cancer with new experimental drugs.

Rayburn has been a congressman and speaker longer than any other man in history.

Rest, transfusions and drugs—chiefly cortisone—increased the 79-year-old Rayburn's strength so greatly Saturday that he smiled, sat up and dangled his feet over the edge of his bed.

He ate a small but solid breakfast—his first meal-by-mouth except for liquids in days—and ordered steak for lunch.

But his general condition remained the same: He has a cancer, probably in his pancreas, that has colonized malignant tumors throughout at least half his body.

His blood is saturated with cancer cells. Cancer such as his has never been known to have been cured. Doctors think the remainder of his life may be measured in days.

Rayburn is in Baylor University Medical Center. Dr. Ralph Tompsett, director of internal medicine at Baylor, and one of four consulting physicians in the Rayburn case, disclosed Saturday that Rayburn may be given experimental drugs.

"We are considering administering in a day or two new drugs, some of which are labeled experimental by the Food and Drug Administration," Dr. Tompsett said.

"They are called 'chemo-therapeutic' drugs, and, as best I can describe them, have an anti-tumor effect."

He indicated the best he and his colleagues hope for is to slow the progress of the tumors and prolong Rayburn's life. Dr. Tompsett said Friday there was no record of cancer such as Rayburn's ever being cured. It is too far advanced to operate.

PROBLEM: Bread Mold.

NEEDED: Glass jar or dish, foil, wire, water and a piece of bread.

DO THIS: Hang the bread on the wire inside the jar, as shown, or simply place it on a dish. Put water in the jar or dish to keep the bread moist. The jar may be covered with foil to keep the moisture in

WHAT HAPPENS: Fungus spores, including those that produce bread mold are always in the air. They fall on the bread, and when conditions are right, they grow into mold. It may take several days for a good covering of mold to appear.

The mold will be in several colors. A blue-green kind likely to appear is penicillium, a member of the genus from which penicillin is extracted. Examine some of the mold plants under a microscope or magnifying glass if one is available.

BY U.N. ASSEMBLY

Canada To Urge Radiation Probe

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —Canada is working on a resolution that would have the U. N. General Assembly call for an intensified study of radioactive fallout in the light of the new Soviet open-air tests of nuclear weapons.

Canadian sources, disclosing this Saturday, said their delegation and others probably would introduce the resolution next Thursday or Friday in the assembly's Special Political Committee.

On Canada's motion, that committee Friday put the fallout question at the top of its agenda in the form of a progress report from the 15-nation U. N. Scientific Committee on the effects of atomic radiation.

Shintaro Fukushima of Japan, of the Special Political Committee, indicated in an interview that he wished the Scientific Committee would hurry up its second comprehensive report, scheduled for next year.

"The Japanese people are not going to be satisifed with that," said Fukushima, a Tokyo newspaper publisher. "That is too late. Fallout danger is growing now.

"While the atomic bomb is the danger we dread, fallout is doing actual damage right now. It may not be killing anybody, but it is gradually accumulating and we must know more about it."

He said he did not know about Canada's proposal but Japan would support or cosponsor it if it was in line with her desire to have the real meaning and danger of fallout measured by some organization like the United Nations.

The Soviet Union resumed open-air nuclear tests and the United States underground nuclear tests last month while the Scientific Committee was drafting its progress report here. The report, issued Sept. 21, said the new testing "increases the urgency for intensification of relevant scientific studies."

The Canadian informants said the resolution would seek to beef up studies of fallout patterns now being carried on by the United Nations, specialized agencies and governments.

They said an early report on fallout since the resumption of tests would be only one of the things it would call for.

"What we're aiming at," said one source, "is to intensify the very valuable work that the committee is already doing, and to seek ways of increasing man's knowledge about this important subject, and some way to put a stop to fallout."

Canadian Foreign Secretary Howard Green stressed this point when he spoke Tuesday in the General Assembly's policy debate.

"We know that radiation presents a hazard to human health," he said, "and the more we learn about the extent of its consequences, the more disturbed we become."

He declared that the assembly "must insist that there be no further testing of nuclear weapons" —hinting perhaps that a proposal to that effect would be put before the assembly's main Political Committee, which will debate test suspension.

In sufficient quantities, radioactive fallout products can cause bone and blood cancer in living human beings and monstrosities in their descendants. In its first comprehensive report in 1958, the Scientific Committee concluded that "even the smallest amounts of radiation" were liable to cause deleterious effects.

Adolescents Riot After Grid Contest

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP)— Opening of the high school football season Friday night triggered a teen-age riot which embroiled police and between 500 and 1,000 adolescents early Saturday.

When the battling was finally finished, police from every department in the area had rounded up 88 boys—54 of them under 18 years of age. Those over 18 were booked for failing to disperse and the younger rioters were turned over to their parents.

Nobody was hurt seriously.

The fighting started at a drive-in restaurant and, like a lit chain of firecrackers, spread to other restaurants.

Alhambra police quickly broadcast for help to nine neighboring law agencies.

Roadblocks were set up and the drive-in restaurant closed by police. The youths were ordered to disperse over a broadcasting system, but the orders were not heeded, police said.

"It was spontaneous," an officer said. "We had hundreds of kids fighting half a dozen cops before help could arrive."

Officers John Seney and Joe DeMatteo said the riots broke out about midnight—after Alhambra High School had lost the football opener to Monrovia High, 33-9.

"The city isn't going to stand for any more of this," said City Councilman Dan Bruno. "The city has treated teen-agers fair and square but you can only take so much."

Bruno said the city two months ago passed an ordinance prohibiting assembly more than three persons on a city street. It was passed, he said, "to avoid what happened tonight."

ASK ANY BARKEEP STARTING A NEW JOB···THERE'S ALWAYS THE HIP GUY WHO MAKES WITH THE FRIENDLY OVERTURES AND WARNINGS···
I'M LIKE THAT WITH YOUR BOSS, PAL···I'LL PUT IN THE GOOD WORD FOR YOU···WATCH OUT FOR THAT GUY DOWN AT THE END···HE'S A DEAD BEAT···DON'T PUT HIM ON THE CUFF····
LATER THAT SAME AFTERNOON, IN HE COMES, AND THEN THE PITCH BEGINS···
HUH?
LET ME HAVE TEN BUCKS TILL PAYDAY, PAL···AND HOLD MY BILLS···I FORGOT MY CREDIT CARD···IT'S OKAY WITH THE BOSS···WE'RE JUST LIKE THIS···

LANDLORD GOODBYE!

We've been paying you $110 a month for this apartment, which has been fine for you, but not so good for us. No closet space. Dinky kitchen. No yard for kids. No garden for the wife. No privacy. No security.

Today, we were riding around Monroe and West Monroe, College, Southside and Lakeshore Area, and by sheer chance discovered a lot of nice homes in good family communities listed by Irene Reid for sale. You haven't seen them, have you? Well, Irene Reid Realty has always kept a big advertising campaign going, and it's a wonder you didn't make it your business to find out what kind of lovely homes she has listed, and do something about your outdated apartments. We found out that for a reasonable down payment and monthly payments, we can OWN our own 3 bedroom home. Now we will have big closets, glamorous tile baths, snazzy kitchen, AND a yard, AND a garden, AND privacy, AND security. We're going to be property owners, Mr. Landlord.

So, Landlord, Good-by! No hard feelings, but we're telling all our rent-paying friends, our old-old-house friends, and our new-in-town friends to go see—and buy—Irene Reid's listings. They're fabulous and varied. Just any part of Monroe or West Monroe that you're looking for, and say, Mr. Landlord, maybe you ought to call Irene Reid's sales department yourself. The number is FA 3-1679 and FA 5-4373 or FA 5-4374. Ask anybody in her sales department, here they are:

WHAT COMPLETE RUINS! THIS OLD PLACE GIVES ME THE CREEPS.
AND THE RAIN DOESN'T HELP MATTERS.
SO FAR WE'VE FOUND A LILY POOL THAT USED TO HAVE WATER IN IT, BUT IT WAS ROUND SO IT COULDN'T HAVE HAD AN "EAST WALL" OR A "NORTH WALL."
LOOK! AN OLD FOUNTAIN! BUT THE ENTIRE DEPTH OF IT ISN'T OVER A FOOT.
OLD ETAH HAD A BIG PLACE HERE. LET'S KEEP LOOKING.
WHAT'S THAT?
SOUNDS LIKE POUNDING.
IT'S OVER THIS WAY.
THERE!
THE POOL WE'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR!
A SWIMMING POOL! OR WHAT'S LEFT OF ONE.
IT'S THEM!
AND LOOK!
WHAT DO WE DO NOW?

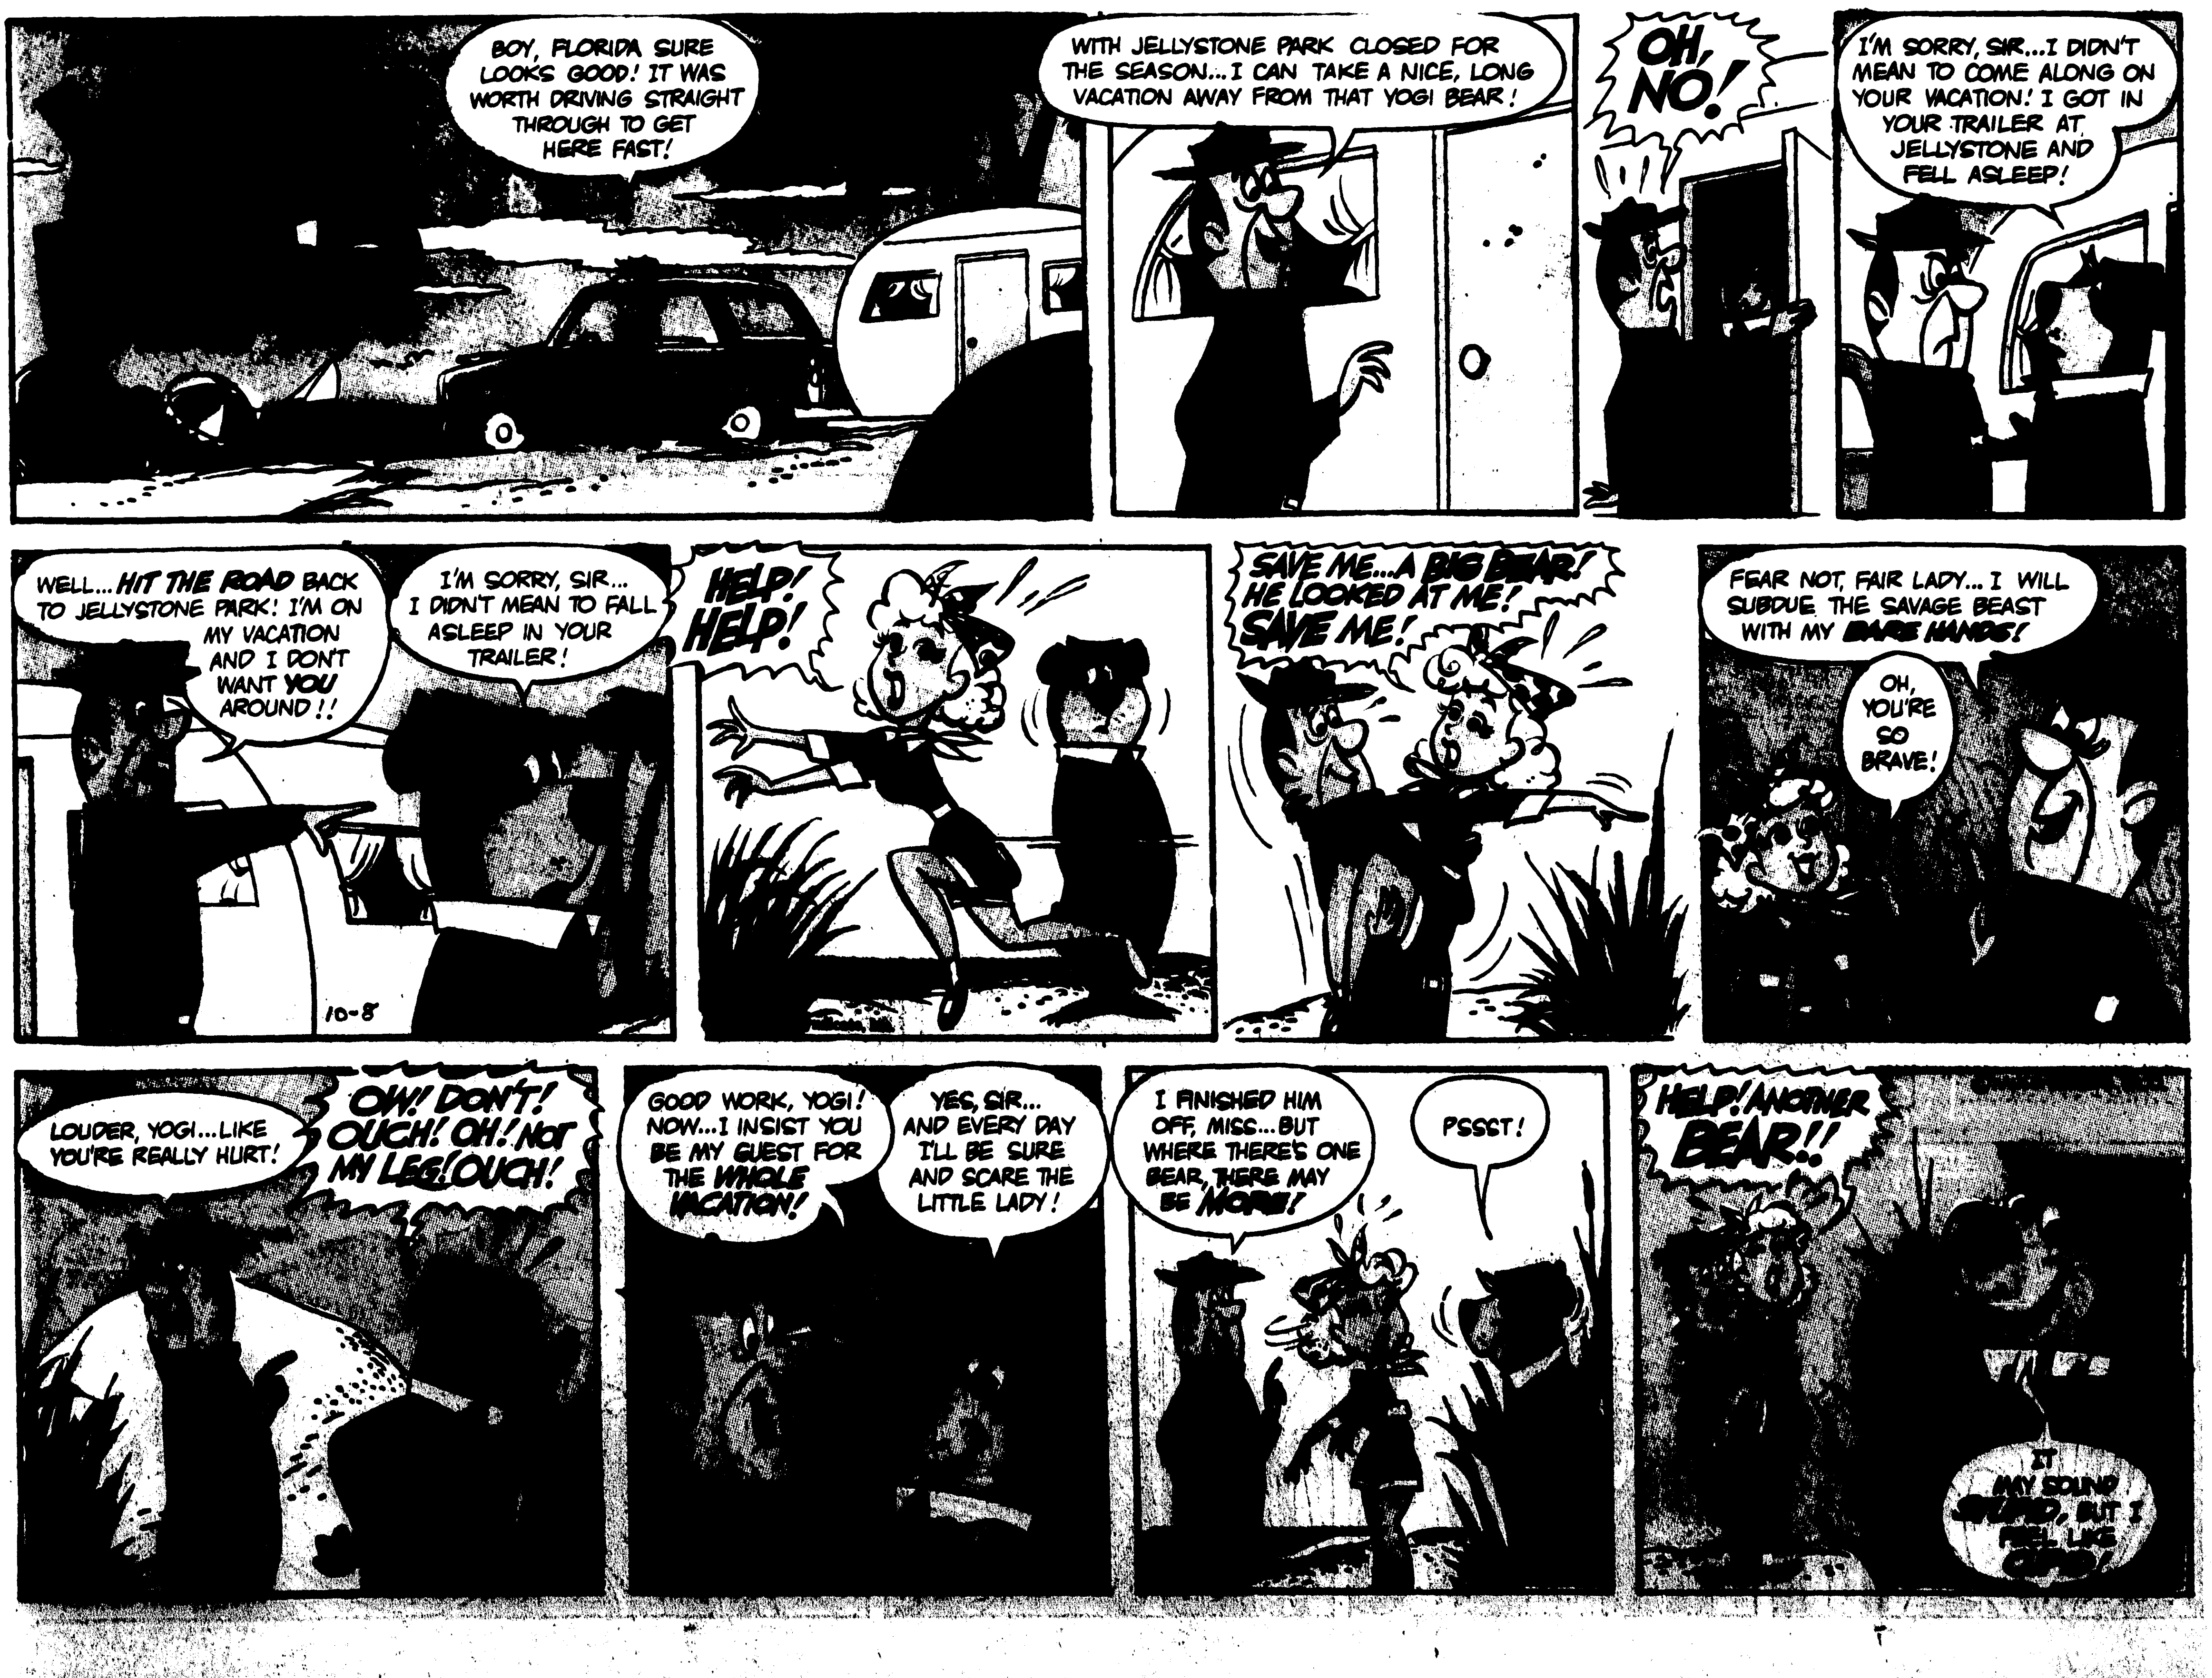
ALTHOUGH BADLY HURT, TOM COUNCIL SURVIVES THE CRASH...
MISS HAIDEE SMITH, WILL YOU TELL THESE GENTLEMEN WHAT HAPPENED?
I-I WAS AFRAID MAJOR COUNCIL WOULD FREEZE UP FROM HYPERTENSION
I STOPPED HIM ON THE WAY TO THE TEST AREA AND GAVE HIM A DRINK FROM MY THERMOS!
THERE WAS A TRANQUILIZER DRUG IN THE COFFEE!
IF SHE GAVE HIM ONLY ONE OF THESE TABLETS—IT IS HARDLY ENOUGH TO HAVE INDUCED FULL SEDATION!
YET—UNDER THE STRAIN OF THE TEST, MAJ. COUNCIL COULD HAVE BECOME UNCONSCIOUS!
WOULDN'T ALL THIS HAVE SHOWN UP IN MAJ. COUNCIL'S FINAL PULSE AND HEART COUNTS?
HE WENT STRAIGHT TO THE TEST AREA! IN HIS FINAL CHECK HE SEEMED MORE COMPOSED THAN EVER BEFORE
PENDING A FINAL REPORT, WE MAY ASSUME THAT MAJ. COUNCIL'S ACCIDENT WAS CAUSED BY THIS DRUG—ADMINISTERED WITHOUT HIS KNOWLEDGE...AND—
SIR, I--
YES, MRS. COUNCIL!
UH... MRS. COUNCIL WISHES TO THANK THIS BOARD FOR CLEARING HER HUSBAND OF PILOT ERROR...
SHE IS UPSET—AND...
NATURALLY! COL. CANYON, WILL YOU SEE THAT MRS. COUNCIL IS PROPERLY ESCORTED TO HER QUARTERS...
STEVE, YOU REMEMBER THAT I CALLED AND TOLD YOU THAT I---
DARN JETS! NO WONDER THE CITIZENS COMPLAIN! I CAN'T HEAR A WORD YOU'RE SAYING, JINGLE!
PIPPER, WHERE DID HAIDEE SMITH GO?
SHE ASKED ME TO CALL HER A TAXI—WHICH I DID! SHE WENT TO THE CIVILIAN AIRPORT, SIR...
AS SHE LEFT SHE SAID AN ODD THING—TO TELL MRS. COUNCIL THAT SHE DID ONLY WHAT ANY WOMAN IN LOVE WOULD HAVE DONE UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES!



BOY, FLORIDA SURE LOOKS GOOD! IT WAS WORTH DRIVING STRAIGHT THROUGH TO GET HERE FAST!
WITH JELLYSTONE PARK CLOSED FOR THE SEASON...I CAN TAKE A NICE, LONG VACATION AWAY FROM THAT YOGI BEAR!
OH, NO!
I'M SORRY, SIR...I DIDN'T MEAN TO COME ALONG ON YOUR VACATION! I GOT IN YOUR TRAILER AT JELLYSTONE AND FELL ASLEEP!
WELL...HIT THE ROAD BACK TO JELLYSTONE PARK! I'M ON MY VACATION AND I DON'T WANT YOU AROUND!!
I'M SORRY, SIR... I DIDN'T MEAN TO FALL ASLEEP IN YOUR TRAILER!

HELP! HELP!

FEAR NOT, FAIR LADY... I WILL SUBDUE THE SAVAGE BEAST WITH MY BARE HANDS!
OH, YOU'RE SO BRAVE!

OW! DON'T! OUCH! OH! NOT MY LEG! OUCH!
GOOD WORK, YOGI! NOW...I INSIST YOU BE MY GUEST FOR THE WHOLE VACATION!

STEVE CANYON
MILTON CANIFF
ALTHOUGH BADLY HURT, TOM COUNCIL SURVIVES THE CRASH...
MISS HAIDEE SMITH, WILL YOU TELL THESE GENTLEMEN WHAT HAPPENED?
I-I WAS AFRAID MAJOR COUNCIL WOULD FREEZE UP FROM HYPERTENSION
I STOPPED HIM ON THE WAY TO THE TEST AREA AND GAVE HIM A DRINK FROM MY THERMOS!
THERE WAS A TRANQUILIZER DRUG IN THE COFFEE!
IF SHE GAVE HIM ONLY ONE OF THESE TABLETS—IT IS HARDLY ENOUGH TO HAVE INDUCED FULL SEDATION!
YET—UNDER THE STRAIN OF THE TEST, MAJ. COUNCIL COULD HAVE BECOME UNCONSCIOUS!
WOULDN'T ALL THIS HAVE SHOWN UP IN MAJ. COUNCIL'S FINAL PULSE AND HEART COUNTS?
HE WENT STRAIGHT TO THE TEST AREA! IN HIS FINAL CHECK HE SEEMED MORE COMPOSED THAN EVER BEFORE
PENDING A FINAL REPORT, WE MAY ASSUME THAT MAJ. COUNCIL'S ACCIDENT WAS CAUSED BY THIS DRUG—ADMINISTERED WITHOUT HIS KNOWLEDGE... AND—
SIR, I--
YES, MRS. COUNCIL!
-UH... MRS. COUNCIL WISHES TO THANK THIS BOARD FOR CLEARING HER HUSBAND OF PILOT ERROR...
SHE IS UPSET—AND...
NATURALLY! COL. CANYON, WILL YOU SEE THAT MRS. COUNCIL IS PROPERLY ESCORTED TO HER QUARTERS...
STEVE, YOU REMEMBER THAT I CALLED AND TOLD YOU THAT I---

PIPPER, WHERE DID HAIDEE SMITH GO?
SHE ASKED ME TO CALL HER A TAXI—WHICH I DID! SHE WENT TO THE CIVILIAN AIRPORT, SIR...
AS SHE LEFT SHE SAID AN ODD THING——TO TELL MRS. COUNCIL THAT SHE DID ONLY WHAT ANY WOMAN IN LOVE WOULD HAVE DONE UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES!
